Kenyon Would Force Nominees for President to Name Men They Intend to Appoint in Cabinet

Iowa Senator Will Urge That Provision for Announcement 30 Days Before Election Be Included in Republican Platform.

By ROWLAND THOMAS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

WASHINGTON, March 20.

THE desk was one of those magnificent distance pieces of furniture which dignify so many of the inner sanctums in the Senate Office Building, and on the other side of its quarter acre or so of polished oak sat a big boyish, smooth-faced man who looked as if he found it a good deal of pleasure just to be alive.

"The idea," he told me, and his eyes twinkled as he spoke, "has one merit, anyway. It's novel. People tell me it's the only really new suggestion in regard to politics which they remember having heard made for at least a fortnight."

And it is new, so brand-new that it shines—this idea of having the party nominees for President, at least 30 days before the election, announce the names of the men they will appoint to Cabinet positions in case they are elected.

"If you have not had any contact with national politics in the working," Senator Kenyon went on, "you will not mind being told how the average cabinet appointment is made. You may have wondered, vaguely. In a few sporadic cases you may even have been a little puzzled by some particular appointment. You may have asked yourself, why the President, supposedly with the whole American electorate to choose from, picked the individual he did pick. You may have thought he could have done better. And he probably could have—only he couldn't."

He paused an instant to let this paradox sink in. Then he went on:

"The other day I met a man who has a friend who is one of the aspirants for one of the party nominations. 'Your candidate doesn't seem to be running very hard,' I told him. 'No,' he agreed, 'he isn't. But,' he added, 'I guess the run he's making ought to be good enough to land him in the cabinet, anyhow.'

Secret of "Lauding" in Cabinet.

"That remark," said Senator Kenyon, "give away the secret of how more than one man has been 'landed' in the cabinet, in the past, I mean, which is of course, the only time I'm speaking of. Of the present I make no comment. People ought to be polite to each other, so far as their strength is equal to the task. So we will talk only about the past and the future.

"In the past the tendency was to make cabinet appointments a matter for the party back room with only insiders present. Of course, I don't mean to imply that Presidents never exercised an independent choice of their advisers, or that appointments were never made on the merit system, the best man for the place. But the tendency was to bring pressure to bear on the President, to urge him to weigh considerations of party expediency, and to use his cabinet appointments to pay political debts his managers had contracted during the complicated job of getting him safely elected.

"I'm not saying that such practices were uniformly followed, even in the bad old past we ought to be so glad to have escaped from, or that the plan I propose for the future will wholly eliminate them. As long as men or groups of men have to find some way of merging their conflicting interests and uniting their efforts for some common achievement, the scratch-my-back-and-I'll-scratch-yours idea will, as the sporting pages say, pack a wallop, and men will make quiet bargains and gentlemen's agreements with each other. But private bargains involving public interests will arouse more curiosity in the future than they used to.

"Hasn't the public," asked Senator Kenyon, "a right to be fully informed before it votes for a candidate, just as much need for advance information concerning the men who are to be his official advisers and the executive chiefs of his administration, as it has for advance information concerning the economic and social ideas and ideals he pledges himself to support and maintain? The latter needs have become so well recognized that a party would as soon think of going to bat without a candidate or a campaign fund as without a carefully prepared and widely published platform of principles. The proposed policies are announced beforehand. Then why not the personality and capacity and tendencies of the men who are to put them into execution? A tentative cabinet slate before election—that's all I'm suggesting.

Would Include Pledge in Platform.

"I shall endeavor to have included in the Republican party platform a resolution pledging that at least 30 days before election the party nominee will announce the names of the men he will appoint to his Cabinet if he is elected. For the present campaign such a platform pledge would be more effective than a piece of legislation which probably could not be passed before November. My attempt will only affect the convention at Chicago of course, but if it should go through it seems to me the Democrats in San Francisco would follow suit."

"Do I take it," I asked him, "that this suggestion is the entering wedge of an effort to bring about in this country the type of responsible Cabinet Government which exists, for example, in France and England, and the absence of which we so often hear lamented as the weak spot in our constitutional system? Is the President's Cabinet to cease to be a body of advisers, and become a Ministry?"

"No," he answered. "Cabinet Government could only be brought about in the United States by an amendment to the constitution. Under our basic law the whole responsibility for the executive conduct of the Government is vested in the President alone, and though he may assign whatever duties he chooses to others, not a jot or tittle of his responsibility can be devolved on any other person or body. So far as the Cabinet officers are his advisers, they have no official standing, and so far as they are chiefs of the executive departments are merely the President's agents.

Taft Suggested Change.

"The proposal to establish responsible Cabinet Government has been advanced at times, but has never made much headway. President Taft, I am told, was strongly in favor of having Cabinet officers sit in the house. Again at a White House luncheon at which President Roosevelt, Mr. Taft and Elihu Root were present, it has recently been said that it was agreed by all three, according to a statement made at the time, that the establishment of some form of ministerial responsibility was desired.

"But nothing ever came of such suggestions, and as I see the law nothing could come save through constitutional amendment. Certainly my proposal does not look that way. What I have in mind is more like this:

"Though the executive powers vested in the Cabinet officers in their capacity of departmental secretaries are only delegated powers, they have become very great powers as the Federal Government has increased in size and complexity, and are likely to become still greater as the years go on. And with any increase in power an increase in responsibility inevitably must keep step. It has kept step in this case. The responsibility of the Cabinet department heads for the whole conduct of the Government is increasing, and though it is not, strictly speaking, a legal responsibility, it is of quite as much practical importance in the daily conduct of political affairs as if it had been signed, sealed and delivered to their trust by act of Congress.

"As I said, under the Constitution this is still a one-man Government. The whole responsibility for its executive conduct is vested in the President alone. But in practice it has outgrown the one-man stages, and what an administration does and is must depend very largely on the character, capacities and tendencies of the men who relieve the President of all the detail of his executive burdens. If we were not agreed to confine our talk to the past and to the future, I might cite some cases in point.

Three Courses Open.

"But the point I'm making is this: With more and more devolved responsibility resting on each of the Cabinet secretaries, and more and more devolved power lodged in their hands, which is wiser; to leave it easy or make it embarrassing to pay political debts with Cabinet appointments? To expose a president to pressure all the more powerful because it is applied under a cloak of invisibility, or, as far as possible, to untie his hands? If we cannot, under the Constitution, make the Cabinet members responsible to the people for their acts, can we not at least make the party, before the election, responsible to the voters for the fitness, ability and complexion of the Cabinet, just as the party is now responsible for the issues and principles enunciated in its platform?

"Can we afford to overlook the Plan of the Industrial Commission to Prevent Strikes and Increase Production

-o- APPOINTED BY PRESIDENT WILSON -o-

Regional Conference Chairmen to Call Investigation Body From Two Sides to Determine Facts in Cases in Which Parties Fail to Agree.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, March 20.

JOINT organization of management and employes "as a means of preventing misunderstanding and of securing co-operative effort" throughout American industry is proposed by the Industrial Conference appointed by President Wilson in a report to the President made public here today.

The conferees in their report state that they have modified the tentative plan of machinery to adjust disputes in general industry by conference, conciliation, inquiry and arbitration, announced by the conference on Dec. 29, 1919, and that they have endeavored to develop methods of prevention rather than adjustment of labor difficulties. The modified plan, devised since the conference reconvened last Jan. 12, it is said, makes machinery available for "collective bargaining with only incidental and limited arbitration." The plan has been extended to cover disputes affecting public utilities other than steam railroads, and also to Government and other employes.

Causes of Unrest Set Forth.

In addition the report analyzes the development of industrial relations, hours of labor, women in industry, child labor, housing, wages, profit-sharing and gain-sharing, thrift agencies, inflation and high cost of living, agriculture, unemployment and a public employment clearing house.

The causes of industrial unrest are set forth as including "the rise in the cost of living, unrestrained speculation, spectacular instances of excessive profits, excessive accumulation and misuse of wealth, inequality and readjustment of wage schedules, release of ideas and emotions by the war, social revolutionary theories imported from Europe, the belief that free speech is restricted, the intermittency of employment, fear of unemployment, unnecessarily high infant mortality in industrial centers, loss of personal contact in large industrial units and the culmination of a growing belief on the part of both employers and employes that a readjustment is necessary to a wholesome continuity of their united effort."

Each Case Different.

Industrial problems vary not only with each industry, the report says, but in each establishment. "Therefore the strategic place to begin battle with misunderstanding is within the industrial plant itself. Primarily the settlement must come from the bottom, not from the top." The conference, in expressing its approval of "employe representation," says it is not a field for legislation, because the form which such representation should take may vary in every plant. For this reason the recommendation is directed solely to managers and employes.

"If the joint organization of management and employes in the plant or industry fails to reach the collective agreement," says the report, "or if without such joint organization, disputes arise which are not settled by existing agencies, then the conference proposes a system of settlement through a National Industrial Board, Local Regional Conference and Board of Inquiry.

Regional Conference Plan.

This plan which the conference says is "based upon American experience and designed to meet American conditions" is national in scope and operation and yet decentralized. It is said to be different from anything in operation elsewhere and employs no local authority except the right of inquiry. Its basic idea is stimulation to settlement of peace by the parties in conflict and the enlistment of public opinion toward enforcing that method of settlement.

The Regional Adjustment Conference proposes a board to consist of four representatives selected by the parties to the dispute, and four others in their industry chosen by them and familiar with their problems. It would be presided over by a trained Government official, the Regional chairman, who would act as a conciliator. If a unanimous agreement were reached, it would result in a collective bargain having the same effect as if reached by joint organization in the shop.

Failing to agree unanimously the matter, with certain restrictions, would go to the National Industrial Board, unless the disputants preferred a mutually chosen umpire.

Inquiry Body May Call Witnesses.

Meanwhile both parties to the dispute have agreed that there shall be no interference with production pending the processes of adjustment. If the parties, or either of them, however, refuses voluntarily to submit the dispute to the processes of the plan of adjustment, a Regional Board of Inquiry is formed by the regional chairman of two employers and two employes from the industry and not parties to the dispute. This board may subpena witnesses and records and publish its findings as a guide to public opinon.

The National Industrial Board in Washington would have general oversight of the workings of the plan which in adition to being applicable to public utilities, provides machinery for "prompt and fair adjustment of wages and working conditions of Government employes." The plan involves no penalties, it is said, other than those imposed by public opinon. It does not impose compulsory representation. It does not deny the right to strike. It does not submit to arbitration the policy of "closed" or "open" shop.

Employe Representation.

Regarding "employe representation," the report says "the subject has been discussed under such different names and forms as shop committees, shop councils, work councils, representative government in industry and others, but the conference says it prefers the generic term having in mind the successful application of the principle to various activities outside, as well as within the purely industrial field.

"These suggestions," says the report, "referring to the help which the conference received from both employers and employes, "clearly proceed from a genuine desire that the movement for democratic representation as a substitute for direct personal contact, may spread in accordance with sound principles and be kept from perversion which would threaten the idea as lasting usefulness by making it an agency of attack rather than a means to peace."

Opposition From Two Sides.

The idea of "employe representation," the report says, has aroused opposition from two sources, viz: Employers who still adhere to the theory that labor is a commodity, a view which is said to be steadily disappearing, and trade union leaders, who regard shop representation as a subtle weapon directed against the unions.

"Employe representation," the conference says, "offers no royal road to industrial peace. No employer should suppose that merely by installing some system of shop representation he can be assured, without continued effort, of harmony and increased production. Doubtless there will be failures where the plan is adopted as a fad or a panacea. It is only a means whereby sincerity of purpose, frank dealing and establishment of common interests, may bring mutual advantage."

Collective Bargaining.

Relative to collective bargaining, the conference "sees in a frank acceptance of this principle the most helpful approach to industrial peace," and states that it believes the great body of the employers of the country accept that principle. The difference of opinion, it says, appears in regard to the method of representation. Bargains of certain kinds between employers and employes do not lend themselves readily to legal enforcement and the conference therefore expresses the belief that, for the present at least, enforcement must rest substantially upon "good faith."

Regarding hours of labor, the conference states that experience has demonstrated that they should be fixed in industrial establishments "at a point consistent with the health of the employes and with proper opportunity for rest and recreation, there being in all cases provision for one day's rest in seven."

Reference to Wages.

The conference further finds that from the standpoint of public interest "it is fundamental that the basic wages of all employes should be adequate to maintain the employe and his family in reasonable comfort and with adequate opportunity for the education of his children. When the wages of any group fall below this standard for any length of time, the situation becomes dangerous to the well-being of the state." As for profit-sharing being regarded as a complete solution of industrial problems, the conference says that while it has "promise in some directions, it cannot by itself be considered to be of far-reaching effect. Nevertheless," the report says, "the field is one in which sincere experiment may add a real knowledge of desirable procedure."

Touching on the subject of child labor, the conference says "sheer prohibition of child labor is, at best, only a negative attack upon the problem. It is not thoroughly effective in promoting the economic welfare of the nation unless the time spent by the child in industry is devoted to adequate schooling and to activity which will develop his physical well-being." The report announces the 'startling fact" that of the 5,516,163 illiterate persons over 10 years of age in the United States, more than 68 per cent were native-born. Attention is called to the fact that the Federal Government up to the present "makes no provision which assures the non-employment of children in street trades and various blind alley occupations during the time they should be at school."

Evils May Continue.

The conference states that, in presenting its recommendations, "they are not merely designed to tide over a troublesome period of economic readjustment. Many of the evils pointed out," it says, "were in existence before the war and will remain in existence if steps are not taken to remedy them." In conclusion, the report says, the reforms advocated are urged "not with any feeling of panic but with the belief that they will not only contribute largely toward the elimination of the causes of industrial strife, but that they will make for the introduction, in American industry, of those democratic principles which constitute the most precious heritage of the American citizen."

The report is signed by Secretary of Labor Wilson as chairman; Herbert Hoover, as vice chairman, and the following other members of the conference: Martin H. Glynn, Thomas W. Gregory, Richard Hooker, Stanley King, Samuel W. McCall, Henry M. Robinson, Julius Rosenwald, George T. Slade, Oscar S. Straus, Henry C. Stuart, William O. Thompson, Frank W. Taussig, Henry J. Waters, George W. Wickersham and Owen D. Young, and Willard E. Hotchkiss and Henry R. Seager, executive secretaries.

Recommendations Unanimous.

The conference report embodies the unanimous recommendations of the conference, Hoover said today, discussing the document. As a background, he said, the conferees took the success obtained in some instances with shop councils and built their plan around this "entirely American development."

"The only powers provided in our report," Hoover continued, "are investigatory. It is assumed that the Government possesses powers of that nature. The new procedure that is suggested differs from others in the important essential that nothing is compulsory or per se repressive. If differences between industrial groups are not settled by this machinery, provision is made only for the invocation of public opinion as a measure of moral suasion and we believe that public opinion is the most powerful weapon in modern public life. It and co-operation between employes and employers may be considered twin keystones in the plan proposed by the conference report."

Explanation by Hoover.

As explained by Hoover, the industrial plan proposed would operate as follows:

The regional chairman, as soon as informed of an industrial situation in which action is desirable, will call upon both parties to enter a conference. If the invitation be accepted, the participants enter with the specific agreemnt that they will be bound by the findings; if the invitation be declined or ignored by either party, the chairman then selects two members from the employes' groups and two from the employers, not involved in the dispute, to act as an "investigating committee." The disputants have the privilege of entering this committee, but should they do so it immediately becomes a conference as in the first instance and drops the inquiry feature to take up that of arbitration. The investigation is conducted with the sole purpose of securing and publishing the facts that lie beneath the original dispute.

An important feature of the regional chairman's conferences, Hoover explained, lies in the elimination of the open and closed shop question and similar "controversial principles" from the list of subjects which may be discussed.

Matter for Argument.

"No conference can settle these questions of principle," the conference chairman believed, "and in most cases, it is a matter of argument between the groups whether or not they are principles. So if objection is raised by either party they are not allowed to come up. Collective bargaining was adopted by the conference as a policy but not as a principle."

The industrial conference, during its three months' life, had the advice and constructive criticism of more than 3000 individuals, representing both employer and employe, according to Hoover, and the final report reflects the ideas indorsed by the great majority of these men.

"The machinery as outlined in our report," Hoover said, "offers a neutral ground upon which employers who are bitterly antagonistic to the organized labor, can still be kept in contact with their men, in case of disagreement, under the auspices of a Government official who, ex-officio, represents the public.

"Get-Together" Plan.

"The background of the conference report is a policy of 'get together' for joint settlement with pressures to bring it about where the parties were unwilling. The conference considered that modern industry, as conducted in large establishments, had caused a loss of personal contact between employers and employes. It, of course, makes possible the greater production that has made our high standard of living. Direct personal contact, in the old manner of smaller units, with the sense of personal responsibility for the interest of both sides cannot be restored.

"The conference, therefore, believes that the just, human relationships between the employer and the employe can only be promoted by deliberate organization to bring them together. It feels that a new American basis of industrial relationships has been developing during the last two or three years in the widespread and deliberate organization of these relations between employers and employes in many hundred establishments through the country on a democratic basis. The great value of this arrangement is that it enlists the co-operation of the employes in production and management, harmonizes relations and settles disputes at the source. This plan is working successfully under trade union agreements, in organized shops, in closed shops; it is operating in nonunion shops; it is operating in shops where union and nonunion men work side by side. In shops working under union agreement, it adds to collective bargaining an agency of co-operation within the plant.

Councils Must Be Voluntary.

"The conference considers that it is idle wholly to deny the existence of conflicting interests between employers and employes, but there are wide areas of activity in which their interests coincide. The public has a primary interest in the prevention of these conflicts causing stoppage to production and service and the creation of processes leading to agreement as to wages and conditions of labor without the stoppage of production is the greatest hope of mitigating strikes and lockouts.

"The conference proposes a plan whereby, when parties approach too near conflict, their freely and properly chosen representatives can be brought together in council under conditions that make for a collective agreement. But the conference also holds that such councils must be entered into voluntarily on both sides.

"The plan involves but small Government expenditure and but little extension of permanent public officials. A board of nine members at Washington, together with 12 regional chairmen, comprise all there is to this basic machinery.

"It is interesting to note that so

America Will Lead World in Art and Letters in Next Century, Ibanez, Spanish Novelist, Says

Life and Culture of Europe Affect United States as Does the Rain the Sea, He Tells Interviewer.

By ARTHUR LIVINGSTON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 20.

BLASCO IBANEZ was just leaving his hotel for Washington, where he was to be honored with a Doctor's degree from George Washington University and make a tour of the official drawing rooms of the capital under the guidance of John Hays Hammond, thus adding another burden to a digestion that is already overtaxed by four months of real American hospitality.

"I am going to write several books about the United States," he told me in his rapid Spanish, "not as a traveler, but as a novelist. First, I am going to Mexico and then I am going back to Europe to get my breath. I am going to tell about New York life first in my 'Chameleon City,' where New York will appear in all the variety of a great metropolis. All great nations have a cosmopolis, a window out on the world. In ancient Rome there were Greeks and Carthagenians, and Egyptians, and Jews, and Persians, and even a few Romans. So, in New York you have Spaniards, and Italians, and Orientals, and all kinds of Europeans, and even a few Americans. That makes a curious blend of life. I am going to interpret it as I see.

"What 's America, after all? It is a new land to which the Europeans of various nationalities bring their own life and culture. It is like the rain falling on the sea. The sea absorbs the drops and they become part of it. But the sea is different afterward, it is something new. In your great America the European elements are absorbed. They become American. But there are, way down deep, many different kinds of Americans. That is why your country is so strong, and why, in the next century, it is going to lead the world not in its power and industry only, but in art and letters, the things in which Europe hitherto has led. You see, these different currents of national and racial inheritance are going to come out in new forms, with all the beauty they had in Europe, with all the novelty and originality they have acquired in the United States.

Live in Ancient Dreams.

"I don't think it easy for most European authors to understand the United States. So many of them live in the old Europe of ancient dreams and ancient ideas. America will not understand them, nor will they understand America."

"But America seems to have understood you," I observed. "Your success here has been the most surprising thing in recent literary history. How do you explain that?"

"Now I can see that you are an American, like the rest. I am not a Catholic, but I can see the terrible depredations that Protestantism has made on people like you. Protestantism is reactional. It wants to know everything, even the unexplainable mysteries. Why do I succeed in America? How many fish are there in the Hudson River? If you ask me that question I would say two things: First, I don't know; second, I don't care. But ask one of you reasoners, and what answer do you get? In the Hudson River there are, let me see, 1,200,746,291 fish—and a half."

"But won't you make a guess?" I insisted. "Your success is an historical fact, and the professors of history some day are going to explain it. It might help to have an authoritative view in advance. There are great European writers who have failed in the United States. You have succeeded. Fogazzaro was a failure, D'Annunzio was a failure, Tolstoy was a failure."

Wrong About Tolstoy.

"You are wrong about Tolstoy," said Blasco Ibanez. "Everywhere I go I find traces of Tolstoy. Such an influence must rest on a vogue you have forgotten. Those other men you mention, of course. How do you expect men of the old system of ideas in Europe to have anything to say to this country? To get along here you have to believe in progress; you have to believe in change; you have to believe in revolution in the best sense of the word; you have to be a humanitarian. Victor Hugo was all those things. I find him everywhere in the United States. I think there may be something of these things in me too. Perhaps that is the point you are after. You see, I feel I am an American in my outlook on life. And I think Americans find me American too. But the humanitarian spirit is the basis of all that. You must be convinced that the world must be made a good place to live in."

"Mr. Maeterlinck found the west much more cultivated than the east," I ventured with the idea of compromising Blasco Ibanez.

"Ne me faites pas dire de betises," snapped the author of the "Four Horsemen." "Don't make my breaks for me. It is not a question of more or less cultivation, but of difference of culture. It is sufficient that the different parts of this enormous territory in the United States be themselves and don't try to imitate anybody else. The skyscraper in New York, for instance, is a natural adaptation to circumstances. It is an original form of art. But I find skyscrapers also in Chicago and other cities of the west. That is an absurdity. There is plenty of room there to spread out. But I don't look at the affectations and the unnatural. When you take the west and the east when they are themselves you get originality and difference, but not superiority or inferiority."

Quoted Maeterlinck.

"But," I insisted, "Mr. Maeterlinck says that people in New York smack their lips when they eat, while people in Detroit sip their soup with the silence of a high tide crossing the bar."

"I really don't know whom Mr. Maeterlinck met in New York," said Mr. Ibanez with a smile, "unless it be some reporters, playing a joke on him."

"In the West you must have noticed a considerable change of ideas and feeling."

"That is what surprised me. I found that Los Angeles was to New York what Nice is to Paris, a holiday, almost a week-end resort. The commonest thing was for me to receive visiting cards in Los Angeles, asking me to call at such and such a street in New York on my return. No, your country is a unit."

I wanted to ask him something of his impressions of Washington, but Blasco interrupted me by pointing to a huge pile of books on his study table. "All about New Mexico," he said. "That was the trip I enjoyed most of all I have made in the United States. Santa Fe! There the old culture of Latin Europe broods over the American Continent like a spirit with drooping wings. It is more clearly typical of the interaction of the Old World and the New than anything I have seen in the United States. That is what has gone on in New Mexico and Southern California. No Spanish heart could fail to thrill at the ancient Spanish memories that he meets there at every turn. Yet it is not Spanish any more. It is American. That is the point."

"What details are you thinking of particularly?" I asked.

Artistic Western Railroads.

"Oh, almost anything you wish," replied the novelist. "They tell me the mission furniture was invented by a man in Boston. Perhaps it was; but it is in the hardy spirit of the old Spanish missions to the Southwest. Straight, hard lines, yet comfortable and graceful—something simple and practicable such as a new country would find for itself. This is Spanish in origin; yet it is something Spanish you will not find in Spain. You find it only in the United States. Or take railroads of New Mexico. I have seen plenty of railroads, but, do you know, that is the only one I have ever seen laid out from an artistic point of view throughout. The stations try to take on the spirit of the country. What is more, they do it. It is an artistic experience, that ride through the Southwest. It isn't the natural beauty of it only, there is artistic sense behind it all. It is America bringing out an inheritance that is old in forms that are new."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

All Teachers' Salaries.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

There is not a day passes but what our daily press is not filled with columns of news regarding salaries paid our public school teachers. Would it not be well to analyze present conditions a little more carefully? Last fall the taxpayers voted for an increase of 13c per $100 for the benefit of our public schools, this increase to be devoted to raising salaries of those connected with our public school system. It was understood that the bulk of this increase was to go to the low-salaried teachers.

A short time ago Supt. Withers submitted a schedule which appeared to be fair and just. Since then hardly a day passes when we do not read of a complaint from various bodies of teachers. No one seems to be satisfied. In the meantime we read of resignations of such men as Powell, Curtiss, Huch and a number of high salaried men of our educational system. Right here is food for thought. In our anxiety to satisfy our low-salaried teachers, we are overlooking the fact that some of the best talents and brains of our teaching force are resigning. It would be well to look into this. By all means see that the grade and kindergarten teachers get a substantial increase, but if we want to retain the present high system of efficiency in our public schools, the Superintendent, his assistants, the principals of other schools, as well as high school teachers must also receive a substantial increase in salaries. Unless this is done we will hear of many more resignations from principals, high school teachers and that class which we can ill afford to lose.

If necessary increase the taxes next fall from 15c to 20c per $100 valuation. Very truly yours, H. L. SCHAEFER.

Is This Right?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In looking over an old edition of Greenleaf's Arithmetic, the last problem in the book reads as follows: A farmer has a fenced piece of ground 12 rods square, how many trees may be planted on it, each tree to be one rod distant from the other, and no tree to be within one-half rod of the fence? The answer given is 152. Is this correct? If so, what is the solution? J. D.

The Matter With Kansas.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In regard to resolutions adopted by the Kansas miners to quit work, regardless of a law adopted by the Kansas Legislature to keep the workers in subjection, it seems that the Kansas miners are more in harmony with the Constitution of the United States than the lawmakers. The amendment which prohibits involuntary servitude has been to some extent annulled by the Kansas lawmakers in their efforts to chain the workers. Kansas was at one time the most violent State in the Union, in opposition to slavery, and civil war was carried on for two years in Kansas by the pioneer citizens to prevent it becoming a slave State. Privately owned capital seems to be the cause of the Kansas law, which would take the only power labor has for asserting its right. They are not satisfied with private ownership of labor as other states have, but would make servitude involuntary.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Herewith I give you information which I think is a real joke on the fellow who has to pay his railroad and Pullman fare, and Government 8 per cent tax.

On the evening of March 13 I called up the Pullman Co., Main 4700, to try and make a reservation for a lower berth for Cincinnati, O., on the B. & O., for Sunday, March 14, and was informed that if I wanted to make a reservation I would have to call Main 801. On doing so I told the ticket agent I wished to make a reservation on Pullman for Cincinnati, and he (the ticket agent) asked me "What is your number?" Thinking he wanted my phone number, I gave it to him, and he said "That is not what I want, I want your pass number." When I replied that I did not have a pass he said "We don't make reservations by phone, you will have to come down and buy your ticket first."

I spend several thousand dollars a year for myself and assistant in traveling and many nights on the Pullman, and of course the U. S. Government tax of 8 per cent on each fare, and get no accommodation in the way of reservation, etc., but the fellow with a pass gets the preference.

It is a fact that there are more people traveling on passes today than at any time I have known. We, the people who have to travel, pay the railroad fare of the privileged fellow who travels on a pass.

I am going to start right now to kick and kick hard, and hope to enlist the help of every man who is traveling.

CHAS. O. JANSSEN.

WHAT NEXT?

The American people are in the wilderness, without a Moses. Their Government is unable to function on the most momentous question since the declaration of war—the question of peace and guaranties of peace. Party leadership has utterly failed.

After the greatest war effort in history and the greatest victory for the rights of men, we are unable to gather the fruits of victory and establish peace because the President and the Senate refuse to agree on the wording of the peace treaty. The tremendous achievement of the war, with its costly sacrifice of life and treasure, is turned into a tragic farce, on account of partisanship, personal animosity, pride, vanity and obstinacy. The way to peace is blocked by divided counsels. The plan for the co-operation of the nations to establish peace and to maintain peace with justice and liberty—the greatest advance in the history of civilization—falls to the ground through party and personal divisions. The welfare of the American people and the welfare of mankind are naught in the balance with party and personal considerations.

Postmortems merely reveal causes and fix responsibility. The guilt for the death of the peace treaty is divided. The chief conspirators were the members of the Battalion of Death, the faction of all political shades, who wanted no peace covenant and who worked with all other factions to kill it. They worked with the Republicans to frame and adopt reservations which would be obnoxious to the President. They voted with the Democratic Senators, who supported the President, to kill the treaty on account of the reservations the Battalion had helped to vote into the treaty. The Battalion worked with every faction and for every move that would help to defeat the treaty.

The Battalion is the victor in the treaty battle, but its victory is the defeat of everything for which the American people fought in the war—the defeat of peace and the guaranties of peace, the defeat of the guaranties of human rights and of international co-operation and arbitration to protect the rights of peoples.

The Republican Senators, and the President, with the support of his Democratic followers, contributed to the defeatist victory of the Battalion of Death. They helped the Battalion to work its will upon the treaty and the peace covenant. They helped to destroy all the labors of the peace conference and to place the United States in the most humiliating position that any nation has ever occupied—the position of a nation which abandons its associates in war, casts aside all the weighty problems of peace and refuses to make peace after a successful war because of personal and partisan internal dissensions.

Lodge and his partisans, the President and his partisans, are participators in the mess of failure in Washington.

What next? We must have peace. We must be rid of the status of war which hampers all our activities. The vital question now is not who killed the treaty, but what satisfactory substitute can be found. What have the slayers of the peace treaty to offer the people whom they represent and have betrayed?

What will the President do with the corpse turned over to him by the Senate? Has he nothing better to offer than an issue in the presidential campaign? Can he control the candidacies, write the platforms and make the issue so clear and exclusive that votes can be intelligently cast?

Is it possible to get a clear decision in the confusion of men and issues of a presidential campaign? Will the election control the Senate? If a clear decision is obtained, will not the delay of a year or two be fatal to our effective participatfon in this treaty and in the peace covenant? Will not the treaty corpse be ready for burial?

We know what the bitter-enders have to offer—isolation and jingoism, with a return of all the selfish and rotten conditions that brought on the war.

What has Mr. Lodge and his Republican followers to offer? Only a resolution declaring the state of war at an end? Shall we have no agreement with regard to the terms of peace? Shall we abandon altogether guaranties of peace? What of the future?

The American people have a right to ask these questions and to demand satisfactory answers. If the answers are not satisfactory, they have, above all, the duty to act. The sovereignty is in the people and they must redeem the Government from the disgrace and humiliation caused by the disabilities of party leadership. They must save it from the consequences of party bankruptcy and factional divisions. They must set up a Government that will function on all questions that concern the public welfare.

The world looks to the American people to do their share. The people are heavily handicapped now by their party leaders, but they can overcome all handicaps. They can justify democracy and the faith of the world in the great American republic. We believe they will do this. We believe they will, in their own way and time, work out their own salvation and help work out the world's salvation.

This is the immediate task of the American people. The first step in the task is to find and elect men who can and will do the work they want done.

Hiram Johnson has had to tear himself away from the Michigan primaries at the call of his colleagues in the Senate, while at the same time the Secretary of War has given Gen. Wood a two months' leave of absence to devote himself exclusively to his campaign. Is it possible that the Republican Senate and Democratic administration have secretly combined to keep Hiram Johnson out of the White House?

Pussyfoot Johnson hopes to hasten prohibition in England by showing the school children the evil effects of alcohol in the vegetable kingdom. Will his exhibits be the pickled onion and the stewed tomato?

FARMS AND OIL WELLS.

Oklahoma retained her oil leadership last year with a production that yielded $356,000,000, but 1920 will see a new oil champion. In the first two months of the present year Texas has jumped far ahead of its neighbor, as well as its distant rival, California, and seemingly is sure to be in first place at the end of the year.

But Oklahoma can look upon the passing of her oil premiership with considerable complacency. She has a far greater source of wealth. Last year the farms of Oklahoma produced $2 for every oil dollar, the total crop value being $547,748,000.

In its "Invoice for 1919," published by the Oklahoma State Board of Agriculture, a number of astonishing facts are revealed. It is difficult to grade them as to their importance. Chief among them, though, is the proven claim that Oklahoma is no longer a one-crop State. Cotton is, of course, her greatest crop, but its value is only 36 per cent of the State's total crop value. In many states the dominant crop—whether cotton, corn or wheat—is equal to 50 per cent of the total. A failure in the leading crop where that proportion obtains is disastrous. The lesson of diversification has been learned in Oklahoma, and as a result the State is now rated tenth, agriculturally. A few years ago she was twenty-second.

Another astonishing fact is that the per-acre crop value last year was greater than the price of the land. The invoice shows, too, that the 200,000 farmer families in the State had an average income of $3600. In sum and in detail it is pronounced by Prof. Malone of the Oklahoma Agricultural College the "most wonderful agricultural record ever shown by any state."

Oklahoma doesn't worry about her fading oil glory. She has farms.

In explaining that his ambition in the famous campaign of 1918 was to be a useful citizen Commodore Newberry of Michigan is too modest. At the very least the Commodore was an eight-cylinder philanthropist.

THE OUTLOOK FOR MELONS.

Speaking of price-boosting in gasoline and other refined oils, we beg to call the gentle reader's attention to some illuminating statistics concerning the Standard Oil units, and the happy results of past adherence to this policy. The following table contains the last reported capital and surplus of these companies:

COMPANY.	Capital.	Surplus.
Atlantic Refining	$ 5,000,000	$ 55,316,042
Ohio Oil	15,000,000	63,839,642
Prairie Oil and Gas..	18,000,000	70,443,441
S. O. of New Jersey..	98,338,300	463,712,409
S. O. of California....	99,373,311	58,000,000
S. O. of Indiana.....	30,000,000	105,118,256
S. O. of Kansas	2,000,000	5,477,179
S. O. of Kentucky....	6,000,000	4,240,640
S. O. of New York...	75,000,000	110,028,633
S. O. of Ohio.....	7,000,000	11,138,174
Vacuum Oil	15,000,000	43,546,790

Since the amendment of the income tax law in 1916, raising the surtax rates and declaring stock dividends taxable, the Standard Oil companies have paid only moderate cash dividends and no stock dividends, with the result that in one case the surplus account has grown to 11 times the capital. In view of the Supreme Court's decision, declaring stock dividends not taxable as income under the constitutional amendment, some idea may be gained of the possibilities of Standard Oil melon cutting. Thus the Atlantic Refining Co. has $45,000,000 of undivided surplus in its treasury, the Standard Oil of Indiana has $70,000,000, while the Standard Oil of Ohio has $14,000,000.

Turning these huge surpluses formally into capital and issuing certificates as dividends is fine for the stockholders, and probably none of them will care how high the price of gasoline goes. But the rest of us, looking back on the time when gasoline was dangerous to have around, even at 8 cents a gallon, may be pardoned for incivility at the filling station.

Against a news agency that transmitted a false report of the court decision on taxing stock dividends a Wall street speculator has brought suit for $2218, the amount of his losses in the market in consequence of the report. If he wins the suit, will the news agency have a right of action against those who made handsome profits as a result of the blunder?

Enterprising burglars in Texas now have blueprints made of premises before engaging in their lucrative descents. Burglary engineers with corps of draftsmen are an undesirable addition to the multiplying class of specialists of all sorts.

Delegates to the San Francisco convention are advised to bring light and heavy clothing and umbrellas. Delegates to the Chicago convention needn't bring anything but their checkbooks.

PANETELA.

YES, Luella,
Politicians
Killed the treaty
At the last;
Once it fell
Between the parties
As it did
The die was cast.
Since they live
By public favor,
Holding office
As their goal,
They cannot
Let one another
Seem to put them
In the hole.

Had the treaty
Been accepted
And the cause
Of war removed,
Doubtless then
The Democratic Party fortune
Had improved.
No Republican,
My dearie,
Could afford
To help with that,
Wherefore Lodge,
The party leader
In the Senate,
Stepped to bat.

Then we got
The reservations,
Which the Democrats
Opposed—
Though for reasons
Not exactly
Such as might
Have been supposed.
What the Democrats
Feared truly
Was that most Of us would make
Out of it
The reservations
Saved us from
A great mistake.

That, of course,
Had placed the thunder
Of the Democrats
With those Known among
The politicians
As hereditary foes.
Therefore both sides,
Standing grimly,
Each within
Its own redoubt,
Saw the hopes
And aspirations
Of the planet
Blotted out.

So we have it,
Sweet Luella,
Leaving nothing
To explain;
Neither side
Desires perfection
Under one
Another's reign.
Any place
Where either party
Rules alone
Does very well,
Whereas ruled
By their opponents
Even Heaven
Would be Hell.

In a St. Louis saloon holdup the proprietor lost $600. Nick Politexchiyexc $240, Guglielmo Scottiscaruso $308, Gorg Gyhakployusgthez $187 and Dominic Salvint $45. Times in the foreign quarters must be something terrible.

AMONG SIGN HUNTERS.

Sign Hunter No. 28942567809645, who has had the north side of Market street from Broadway to Twelfth street, has surrendered that part of his territory west of Eighth street to No. 526753478907456, temporarily without a sufficient preserve because of the destruction of the buildings formerly occupying the site of the new Rice-Stix structure at Eleventh and Locusts streets.

Dr. Walter Williams, dean of the School of Journalism at the Missouri State University, recently returned from a trip to the Orient. In a hotel in Japan he met an American gentleman who has found a funny sign in the hotel and expressed his intention to send it to Just a Minute. Naturally, this gave Dean Williams an insight into the extent to which sign hunting is carried on that those of us who are not circumnavigators cannot possibly enjoy.

Sign Hunter No. 1625890642567890, who has a territory in Kansas City, says apostrophes are wilder than he ever known them to be. He fears we shall never be able to tame them again, but we are nevertheless going to work at it just as if we were gaining. There is some reason not yet plain to us why sign painters take so many liberties with the apostrophe. What that reason is we can only guess, but once we get it things ought to move. Out on Delmar avenue in St. Louis a baker carries in his store perhaps a dozen signs like this:

Pie's

He must have something in mind, just as the man who put up this sign must have it doubly on his mind:

Roll's

Let us remember that the apostrophe is not ours to dissipate, but something we are holding trust for subsequent generations which shal want to use it correctly.

It seems that Mr. Ford really won the senatorial race in Michigan something more than a year ago. It has taken a while for the Ford to finish, but the fact that its principal opponent has been ruled out for fraud ought to settle the matter. The race reminds one of that which Buffalo Bill used to pull off between two burros. He started this race before the performance began, and it was then forgotten. After the various battles between the Indian and the paleface, the exhibition of rough riding, saddle songs by the Cossacks and all that made up the Wild West show, Buffalo Bill would ask the audience to wait a moment before going home and see the finish of the burro race, then coming down the home stretch. We always felt that the Ford won in Michigan, and have been waiting all this time for the finish. We had never gone home.

AS WE FORGIVE.

TO err is human, to forgive divine,
The Love Who has us in His keeping knows
The life He gives us is a heady wine,
Which our small cup too often overflows.

We are such silly children in His sight,
And each so dear, the product of His reins.
He fain would wash our blackest errors white,
Dry all our tears and carry all our pains.

And faults of love, as we know love, He turns,
By His pure loving into gems and flowers.
Till each one crystal clear in beauty burns,
To prove His pardon through eternal hours.

But only as we pardon each his brother,
As children who have in a quarrel been,
Through that forgiveness which we owe each other,
Can He unite us in His joy serene.

FIRE WASTE A PUBLIC LOSS.

From Scribner's.

LAST year the total direct money loss in the United States and Canada from fire, considered quite apart from the indirect loss through dislocation of trade, delay and waste of energy, was not less than $317,014,385, or nearly $3 per capita for the entire population. This loss was the largest shown by any single year except one, 1906, the year of the San Francisco conflagration, when it was not less than $459,710,000. There is a popular misconception that this fearful waste is made good, at least partially, by insurance. This cannot be. Insurance distributes the loss, but it cannot possibly restore it. Whenever the owner of destroyed property is compensated, so far as money can compensate him, every other policy holder throughout the country contributes his part of the compensation; and these individual contributions, added to the overhead charge of carrying on business, are passed on, necessarily, to every consumer. The fire has placed upon him a heavy and inescapable tax for which he has not a thing in the world to show. When it is remembered that this tax aggregates upward of $300,000,000 a year, it may be realized how heavily the needless burden rests upon every community.

CZECHO-SLOVAK PROGRESS.

From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

ALONE among the new states which have arisen from the great war Czecho-Slovakia is free from serious external disputes and is equally fortunate in the absence of any menacing domestic dissension. Since the disagreement with the Poles over Teschen the Czecho-Slovak Government has attended strictly to its own business, with the pleasing result that the Czecho-Slovak republic is already safely and sanely established on a business basis. There are many details to be worked out, but in the main the progress of the republic during the past year has been satisfactory both to the Czecho-Slovak people and to their well wishers in other lands. Czecho-Slovakia's advance has been due to two causes. It must be admitted that the Prague Government has been fortunate in not having had serious boundary disputes thrust upon its attention. But the more important cause is to be found in the solid common sense of the Czecho-Slovak people. They have been careful to seek no quarrels. They have plugged ahead steadily and with excellent foresight. They are well fed and comfortably clad. They need outside capital, but they are able to offer substantial and convincing inducements instead of whining for charity.

THE MEAT PROBLEM.

JOHN T. BARTLETT in Collier's

WE fall into the habit of regarding present conditions as permanent, which is probably why so many have skeptically repudiated the idea that to beef, mutton, pork and poultry another American meat—rabbit—would be added. But history doesn't bear out this skepticism. It is only within recent years that poultry has been the relatively important meat it now is. Chicken was always good eating, just as is rabbit for that matter, but it took the American farmer, and in a smaller way the town family, a mighty long time to conclude there was "anything in" raising chickens. A chicken was only a chicken. But today the American poultry crop reaches into the hundreds of millions of dollars every year, and poultry meat is accepted permanently for our national diet. So, possibly it may be with rabbits. As production and selling costs of the older meats like beef and pork go up, smaller creatures, like rabbits and chicken make excellent additions. One thing is sure, there already has been an extraordinary increase in rabbit meat consumption in the United States.

Events in the Social World

Many Weddings Scheduled for Next Month and Brides-to-Be Are Busy With Preparations—First Rehearsal for Junior League Follies Tomorrow.

THE brief two weeks between this and Easter Sunday will be well filled with preparations for the many events that will take place in April. From the numbers of weddings scheduled for next month one wonders if April is not going to rival June as the favorite month for the bride. These prospective Easter brides are busy, shopping here and sewing there, and making all the necessary preparations for their weddings. The displays in the shops this spring are unusually beautiful, and at the more prominent costumers' one finds Miss Bride-to-be admiring the spring finery and making selections for her trousseau.

Those not interested in spring weddings will be busy with the many other things of interest that are demanding attention right now. The first rehearsal for the Junior League Follies will take place at the First Regiment Armory tomorrow evening when more than 100 of the league members and not a few of the beaux of the city will place themselves under the training of Dinnie Macdonald.

Last week the league announced the new members that have been taken into the league during the year. Among the number are several brides lately come to St. Louis to reside, and most of the 1920 buds. Included in the list are Mmes. Charles C. Allen Jr., Clement Brown, Effie Bagnell Culbertson, Dan W. Jones, Reid Jones, Wilbur Jones, Lloyd Wells, Frank Mayfield and Robert B. Wallace, and Misses Elizabeth Benoist, Eva Cotter, Emily Eaton, Ann Farrar, Stella Garrett, Catherine Gordon, Evelyn Guy, Eunice Hodgman, Carol Jarvis, Ada Johnson, Elizabeth Mauran, Charlotte Reyburn, Juliette Reyburn, Edith Skipworth, Elizabeth Smith, Rosalind Thomas and Dorothy Walker.

The Letmar and Y. W. C. A. housing campaign begins tomorrow to last a week and several semiofficial affairs in the form of luncheons will be given in connection with this. Two of these luncheons will be given at the Statler on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons. Mrs. Harvey G. Mudd, head of the campaign, and Mrs. Charles P. O'Fallon will preside at them, and all the team captains and their lieutenants will attend.

There will also be a number of informal parties given in connection with the preparation for the College Club benefit performance that will be given at the American Theater April 14, one of which is the tea Miss Alice Ernst, chairman of decorations, will give at her home tomorrow.

An out-of-town wedding of interest to St. Louis society will take place in Louisville next Saturday evening, when Mrs. Katharine Bonnie and Carl Langenberg are married at Mrs. Bonnie's home. The ceremony will take place at 4 o'clock and will be followed by a large reception. Mrs. Bonnie will have her sister, Mrs. Hugh Caperton, as matron of honor, and Mr. Langenberg's brother, Harry Langenberg, will serve him as best man. Mrs. Bonnie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Bonnie of Louisville. Mr. Langenberg is the son of Mrs. Henry F. Langenberg and is a member of the St. Louis Country and Racquet clubs. The couple will take a four months' tour of the Orient for their bridal trip and on their return will make their home at Mr. Langenberg's home on the Country Club grounds. Among the St. Louis people who will attend the wedding are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Langenberg, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Williams Jr., Charles Parsons Pettus and Boyle Rhodes. Maj. Nutter of Montreal, Canada, also will attend.

An engagement announced recently is that of Miss Evelyn Stevens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Stevens of 5535 Cabanne avenue, and Walter Jackson Taylor, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Mansfield Taylor of 1204 McCausland avenue, which was made known at a card party given last week by the prospective bride. The wedding probably will take place next fall.

Formal announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Harrie King Alcock, daughter of Mrs. Emilie McGrath Alcock of the Shardell Hotel, to McLaran Sawyer, son of Mrs. Ella McLaran Sawyer of 4231 Lindell boulevard. The bride-elect was graduated from the Sacred Heart Convent at Maryville, and the following year, she spent at a convent in Brussels. Prior to making her debut, Miss Alcock spent some time in England with her grandmother, Mrs. Mary B. Alcock, of Portland Manor, Staffordshire, England. She was a maid at the Veiled Prophet's ball in her debut year, and also the year following.

The late James Willing McGrath of this city was her grandfather, and her maternal great-grandfather was the late Judge John Cadwalader of Philadelphia.

Mr. Sawyer is the grandson of the late Mrs. Charles McLaran, and was educated at the Smith Academy, and at a school in the East.

The wedding will take place after Easter.

Mrs. Joseph B. Coleman of Chicago, on of the society leaders who directed the successful presentation of the "Board Walk" in that city earlier in the season, clearing $93,000, has accepted an invitation of the "Board Walk" managers here to be present to open the festivities on April 5.

A dinner party at Cedar Grove, the restaurant feature of the Board Walk, has been arranged for the opening night of the walk, at which Mrs. Coleman will be guest of honor.

Hedges of 320 Union boulevard, was announced recently at a party given for the prospective bride at the Country Club in Dayton. Miss Croninger is the niece of Clifford R. Croninger of 33 Aberdeen place and has visited in St. Louis as the guest of the Croningers. The wedding will take place in the spring.

Miss Alice Ernst of 6061 Pershing avenue, who is chairman of decorations for the College Club benefit performance, which will be given at the American Theater April 14, will give a tea tomorrow afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock for the following women, who are working in interest of the performance: Mrs. E. S. Abbott, Miss Irene Wooster, Mrs. William Dick, Mrs. L. P. Bahrenburg, Mrs. Earl Nelson, Miss Inez Schage-

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Moffat of 4739 Westminster place have as their guests Mrs. William Moffat of Buffalo and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew C. Moffat and their daughter, Miss Helen Moffat of Pittsburg, who have come to be present at the marriage of Miss Ruth Moffat and Edwin H. Hilmer next Tuesday evening.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Helen Braun Arthur, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Arthur of 5558 Enright avenue, to Charles Reed Ragsdale of New Orleans. Miss Arthur is a graduate of Hosmer Hall. She is taking an active part in the Board Walk preparations. Mr. Ragsdale is the son of Mr. and Mrs.

POSITION IN NEW YORK OFFERED TO HIM, DR. WITHERS ADMITS

Superintendent of Schools Denies, However, That It Is Chancellorship of University in That City.

Supt. John W. Withers of the public schools, yesterday denied a report, contained in a dispatch from New York, that the chancellorship of the University of the City of New York had been offered to him. At the same time, he said a position in New York had been offered to him. He did not say what institution made the offer, or whether he was giving it serious consideration. In a prepared statement on the matter Dr. Withers said:

"The report that I have been requested to accept a position in New York is correct, but the statement that the chancellorship of New York University is about to be vacant, and that the position has been offered to me, is not true.

"It is well known that Dr. Elmer E. Brown has been exceedingly successful as chancellor of the University. He is still a young man and, so far as I know, has no thought of resigning. I am sure the Council of the University would not permit him to go if it could be avoided."

Mason & Hamlin

PIANO

"Unequaled in Artistic Excellence"

Read Their Letter

"The rich, musical tone, susceptible of such infinitely beautiful nuance, the noble and serene majesty of tone quality, the almost human and appealing sympathy of both tone and action—all these and other characteristics combine to make the Mason & Hamlin Piano unique, unequaled in artistic excellence.

"Your patented Tension Resonator, in itself so simple, is of the utmost importance, and it is evident to us that its efficiency in assuring durability to your pianos is like the posts in our violins, viola and 'cello."

Let us show you the Mason & Hamlin and why it is universally proclaimed

WOMAN WHO FOUNDED SCHOOL 59 YEARS AGO

MRS. ANNA SNEED CAIRNS

MRS. CAIRNS HONORED ON HER 79TH BIRTHDAY

Guest of Honor at College Club Luncheon—Founded Girls' School When 20.

Mrs. Anna Sneed Cairns, president of Forest Park University since she founded that institution 59 years ago on nothing save intelligence, zeal and energy, yesterday celebrated her seventy-ninth birthday, and was guest of honor at the annual luncheon of the Forest Park College Club at the Planters Hotel.

More than 150 persons were present and many letters of regret were read from those unable to attend the luncheon. Students of the past joined students of the present in paying respect to Mrs. Cairns, and schoolday friendships were in many instances renewed.

Following the address of welcome by the president of the club, Mrs. Louis L. McCormick, the alumnae and students joined in chanting a "birthday wish" to their president. Ernest R. Kroeger, who has been director of music at the institution for 34 years, was toastmaster. Greetings were spoken by five former presidents of the College Club, these being Mmes. Innis Hopkins, L. C. Reilly, F. W. Hoyt, J. M. Long and C. H. Lyle.

Toasts were responded to by the Rev. M. Rhodes, the Rev. S. H. Woodrow, Miss Harriet Stone of the Forest Park University faculty, E. R. Kroeger and Judge Albert D. Nortoni.

"God Bless Our 'Varsity," the college song, was sung by the students and alumnae at the close of the program of toasts.

Mrs. Cairns responded to the toasts and told of some of her work at Forest Park University, expressing the hope that she might be permitted to continue her work among young girls for sometime to come.

The beginning of Forest Park University was in Kirkwood, on Sept. 6, 1861, when Mrs. Cairns, then Miss Anna Sneed, opened her little school. She had no books, no furniture, no building, but opened a room and invited the children to come and bring their own books and to make their own desks. Seven came the first day, four boys and three girls. At the end of the first year she had 25 pupils.

In 1864 the citizens erected a building for her and in 1868 she incorporated the Kirkwood Seminary and later erected a building on Webster avenue. May 7, 1891, she moved to the present location at Clayton and Oakland avenues, adjoining Forest Park. Her Kirkwood property at that time was valued at $35,000. The building on the new site cost $63,000. In 1893 she rechristened it Forest Park University and this it has remained. In 1886 she had adopted a four-year college course for her pupils.

"On the first day I opened my school I taught the Bible to my pupils," said she yesterday, "and I have not missed a day since doing so. I believe firmly in the power of God and the teachings of the Bible. I try to instill this belief in the minds of my students. My whole aim has been to make cultured, useful, honorable women out of my students rather than butterflies of fashion."

In the black walnut mantel over the fireplace in her private parlor at the school she carved with her own hand this motto:

"As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

KIEL AGAINST TAX ON PARK TENNIS AND GOLF PERMITS

Mayor Says He Would Veto Bill for Such a Fee As Contrary to Principle.

Mayor Kiel said to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that he would veto any ordinance providing for a tax of $1 each on municipal golf permits and 50 cents each on tennis permits, such as would be assessed under a bill introduced in the Board of Aldermen Friday by Alderman Udell.

Park Commissioner Pape and Director of Public Welfare Schmoll said they were strongly against the proposal. They said the theory upon which the city golf links and tennis courts were established was that free recreation would be afforded to citizens, and that a license fee would be contrary to this principle.

Charles Meyer, head of the company, is a Belleville automobile dealer, and the plans are to form a $20,000 corporation. Busses carrying 70 people will be used. One bus will operate between Belleville and Scott Field which, it is said, will open early in spring as an aviation camp.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in; about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Board in the suburbs is offered through Post-Dispatch Wants.

MARYLAND, GREATEST BATTLESHIP, LAUNCHED

Superdrednaught Will Be First in U. S. Navy to Carry Battery of 16-Inch Guns.

By the Associated Press.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., March 20.—The superdreadnaught Maryland, designed as the most powerful battleship in the world, was launched here today by Mrs. E. Brook Lee, wife of the Comptroller of the State of Maryland, as sponsor.

Secretary Daniels, Gov. Ritchie of Maryland and a number of other naval officials and State officers attended the launching, which was the first public one held here since the United States entered the war.

First of Four to Be Launched.

The Maryland is the first of four ships of her class to be launched and is one of the ten superdreadnoughts authorized in the first three-year building program adopted in 1916. With a length of 624 feet over all, a beam of 97 feet and full load displacement of 32,950 tons, she is the largest fighting craft built for the American navy, and when commissioned will be one of the most powerful battleships in the world.

Originally designed to carry 12 14-inch rifles, the plans for the ship were so changed during the war that she will have instead eight 16-inch guns—the first of this size ever mounted on a ship. They will be placed two in each of four turrets on the center line, two forward and two aft. They will be larger by one inch than the great guns on the British ships of the Queen Elizabeth class, which were used in the bombardment of the Dardanelles.

More Powerful Ships Designed.

Battleships designed since the Maryland was laid down, however, will be even more powerful. They will carry 12 16-inch rifles and will measure 684 feet over all with a displacement of 43,200 tons. Their speed will be 23 knots as against the 21 knots of the Maryland and practically all previous classes of American dreadnoughts.

The Maryland's keel was laid on April 24, 1917, 18 days after the United States declared war on Germany. Work on her was delayed by reason of the rush in getting out destroyers to fight submarines, but it has been rushed since the armistice and the vessel is now nearly three-quarters completed. She will be electrically driven by four propellers, the power for which will be furnished by turbines of approximately 29,000 horsepower. Steam will be furnished by eight oil-burning boilers.

BARGE BIRMINGHAM TO BE LAUNCHED SATURDAY

Vessel First of Kind Built in St. Louis—Two Governors to Speak.

The "Birmingham," first modern self-propelling steel barge built in St. Louis, will be launched Saturday noon at the end of Carr street, with public ceremonies in which two Governors will participate.

Miss Dorothy Wood, daughter of the manager of the Port of Birmingham Co., will sponsor the barge. At the same time the "Tuscaloosa," sister barge of the "Birmingham," and still in construction, will be christened by Miss Oliver Verner, and the keel of the "Mobile," a third barge will be laid.

The barges are being built by the St. Louis Boat & Engineering Co., of which Edward A. Faust of 1 Portland place is president, and which was formed specifically for the purpose of building barges for the Mississippi and Warrior River waterways, now under Government management.

The "Birmingham" and "Tuscaloosa" will cost, when completed, $1,000,000. Each is 280 feet long, 50 feet wide and will draw seven feet of water. They are to be used in traffic on the Warrior River, each being constructed to carry 1600 tons of coal and 400 tons of package freight.

Gov. Thomas E. Kirby of Alabama and Gov. Gardner of Missouri will make addresses at the launching and christening. Representatives will attend from Birmingham and Tuscaloosa, and officials of the barge line will be present. Arrangements have been made for accomodating 1500 spectators, and anybody may attend.

Officials and visiting delegates will be enterttained at a luncheon at the Faust home, following the ceremonies.

"$75,000 ACCOUNT," 61 CENTS

Motor Sales Company Head Disappears Leaving Many Victims.

TOLEDO, O., March 20.—Police continuing the search for Frank B. Lawrence, head of the Central Motor Sales Co., who is alleged to have absconded leaving a long trail of victims in a $75,000 swindle, claimed today to have discovered that in a bank where Lawrence said he had an account of $75,000 only 61 cents remained on the books in his favor.

A criminal warrant for Lawrence's arrest was sworn out yesterday. Lawrence, who came here from Chicago several months ago, and established an office for the sale and purchase of used cars, transacted business with promissory notes which have been found worthless, the authorities say. Police of Ohio, Michigan, Illinois and Indiana cities have been enlisted in the search for Lawrence.

Carries Bullet in Brain.

CHESTER, Pa.—Mrs. Lydia Jacobs of 122 St. Charles street is walking about the city with a 38-caliber bullet in her brain. Efforts of surgeons to remove the bullet proved futile because of its dangerous position. The woman was discharged several days ago from the Chester Hospital, as no more aid could be given her. Mrs. Jacobs feels no ill effects from the bullet, according to her statement. Hillman Mitchell, who fired it, is in jail pending the outcome of the woman's condition.

Intestinal Indigestion!

A Form of Dyspepsia Usually Resulting From the Inability to Digest Starchy Food.

A great many people are severely bothered with intestinal indigestion, due to the fact that the starchy foods, such as potatoes, rice, white bread, etc., are digested in the small intestine and not in the stomach as is generally supposed.

To relieve this condition Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are well supplied with an intestinal digestant so that instead of practicing severe diet you may eat these essential, nourishing foods without distress.

In the small intestine the pancreatic juice acts upon the starches and ordinarily, in a state of health, possesses the power of converting them into grape sugar and dextrine. Starch must be so transformed before it can be of use to the bodily economy. Remaining as unchanged starch, it either passes through the alimentary canal, and proves a useless burden to the system, because it resists absorption, or it causes intestinal indigestion, the food products becoming acrid through putrefaction, which often sets up a catarrhal inflammation of the intestine, resulting in diarrhoea.

In a complaint of this character many persons use paregoric, bismuth and tannin to relieve the diarrhoea, all powerful astringents, and they stop the trouble suddenly; "locking up" the morbid secretions, throwing the toxic intestinal poison back on the system, and often causing auto-intoxication.

STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS contain among other powerful digestives, a substance called pancreatin, which thoroughly digests starchy foods in the small intestine, thus preventing intestinal indigestion.

These tablets also contain calcium carbonate, which is a mild though effective sub-astringent, and which by its antiseptic properties removes the intestinal poisons that are always present in intestinal indigestion and diarrhoea.

Not only are the starches digested by the use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, but through the action of other ingredients they relieve stomach indigestion and dyspepsia. Buy a package from your druggist today for 50 cents and note the sense of relief that follows in short order.

ARE YOU EXPECTING A STORK?

When Baby comes he is going to ride in a carriage of the finest weave, which you will be able to buy at the price of the coarsest reed.

A Carriage woven almost as fine as a fabric and a bed as soft as down. In short, His Majesty will have a Packard car at a Ford price.

For Marshall Lloyd, the wizard inventor, has patented a method of weaving and invented a loom that weaves Baby Carriages as wonderfully and as rapidly as a silk loom weaves silk.

Today the Lloyd method and Loom accomplish in a matter of minutes what used to take the fastest fingers many weary hours. They weave a wicker so fine it is almost like a fabric.

Three hundred thousand of these carriages are ready now, and ten thousand dealers have them. But still there are not enough to supply the demand.

So watch this paper today and on following days for the stores that will advertise the Lloyd Baby Carriage and also watch the Window Displays of your neighborhood stores.

Remember, you are going to get a Baby Carriage of the finest weave at the price of the coarsest reed.

NO CARS CAUSE PAPER SHORTAGE

Publisher Says Empties Are Not Returned From U. S. to Canada.

By the Associated Press.

MONTREAL, March 20.—Jason Rogers, publisher of the New York Globe, who has come to Montreal to investigate the causes of the serious news print shortage in the United States, said that it was due in large part to the fact that empty freight cars for the movement of the paper were not being returned to Canada from the United States.

"The situation is desperate," said Rogers. "Unless the empty cars are returned the mills must stop making paper as they are getting badly choked and cannot store further supplies."

AMERICAN CHEMISTS TO MEET HERE IN APRIL

English and French Experts to Attend Convention, One of the Biggest of Year.

The American Chemical Society, with a membership of approximately 14,000 educators and industrial chemists in various parts of the country, will hold its annual convention at Hotel Statler, April 12 to 17 inclusive. A number of English and French chemists are expected to attend the meeting, which is regarded as one of the most important industrial conventions of the year.

The program for the meeting includes addresses by experts on the relation of chemistry to agriculture, the preparation of foods, biology, water, sewage, general sanitation, pharmaceutical preparations, metals and rubber.

Among them are Dr. William A. Noyes of Chicago University, president of the society; Dr. Charles N. Herty, a technical adviser to the peace conference reparation commission, and Dr. Harry E. Barnard, president of the Institute of Baking at Minneapolis.

The development of St. Louis as a chemical manufacturing center is said to be of special interest to the delegates who expect to attend and for their benefit a series of inspection trips to local chemical plants and allied industries here is being arranged. This will include visits to such plants as the Mallinckrodt Chemical Co., the Monsanto Chemical Works, the Laclede Gas Light Co.'s by-product plant, the Laclede-Christy Clay Products Co., and the refineries of the Standard Oil Co. at Woodriver, Ill.

A committee of which Edward Mallinckrodt Sr. is chairman has been formed to arrange for the convention. Others on the committee are Charles E. Gaspard, L. F. Nickell, Gaston Dubois, H. A. Carlton, T. R. Ball, A. C. Boylston, E. J. Sheppard and F. W. Sultan.

There Is An Art in Being Attractive

Have You Mastered It?

Here Are Some Easy Helps.

By Madame Maree

NOT only must the woman of natural beauty be constantly on guard against the loss of her fascinations, but she who depends on artificial aids such as creams, hair tonics and the like, must be sure they are of permanent and lasting benefit.

Here are a few tested and tried preparations that may be made at home with your own hands. Then you'll know they are pure.

A Cream to Remove Blemishes.

There is but one thing you need to beautify your skin and bring it to a condition of incomparable loveliness in a short time. This has been used by thousands of women with extraordinary success. By the use of this cream you will soon find that all red spots, freckles, all muddiness and sallowness will have disappeared completely, leaving the skin pure and clear as a lily. You cannot get this result except by mixing yourself at home, in a very few moments, one ounce of zintone with a little glycerine and hot water. The zintone costs fifty cents at the drug store. This makes a remarkable cream, which, when used liberally, will not fail to give you the results.

Another Cream for Wrinkles.

It is really inspiring to know that removing wrinkles now depends almost entirely upon yourself. Just a few minutes' trouble at the start and more than half the battle is over. It will take but a few moments for you to make a mixture of two ounces of witol, a little water and glycerine. The witol can be obtained from your druggist for fifty cents. This cream produces startling changes in the skin in a short time. It renders the skin plump and youthful, very girlish, and the result is that wrinkles fill out and disappear. It will make you look many years younger if you will only use it faithfully.

For a Dependable Hair Invigorator.

You can easily prevent hair from falling, and you can make it grow thick and luxuriant by a very simple method, which is far superior in results to that of any so-called hair tonic you can buy. You will notice the difference in your hair in a very few days, and it will take on a vigorous lustre besides, and thin spots will at once begin to fill with new hair. This is done by simply adding one ounce of beta-quinol to a half pint of water and a half pint of bay rum. If you prefer you may use a full pint of witchhazel instead of the water and bay rum. The beta-quinol may be procured for fifty cents at any drug store. Try this and you will no longer find handfuls of hair coming out on your comb and brush, and your hair will be the envy of all your friends.

Or If You Wish a Shampoo.

Every scalp has constantly forming on it a thin, invisible film of fatty accumulations which soap cannot remove, not even with hard rubbing. The one way to remove this film, and let your hair breathe is to dissolve it. This is done by the use of a teaspoonful of eggol dissolved in a half cup of hot water, and used as a shampoo and headwash. This unseals the pores, and it will surprise you what a tremendous difference it produces in the appearance and growth of the hair. There is no more luxurious headwash possible, and it is, besides, very economical. In a twenty-five cent package of eggol, which can be secured at any drug store, there is enough to supply you with over a dozen of these shampoos.

To Remove Superfluous Hair.

There is a very remarkable way to remove superfluous hair. This is becoming exceedingly popular, because it is as easy and pleasing to use as a face lotion, and dissolves away the hair instead of burning it off as many other depilatories do. Simply moisten the hairs with a little sulfo solution. The hair begins to shrivel. You can see this dissolve, and then with just a swish of the finger, all the hairs can be rubbed off clear and clean. It leaves the skin thoroughly free from all superfluous hairs, not leaving even a suggestion that you had any superfluous hairs at all. It's glorious. Every woman should have some sulfo solution on her dresser. It will cost one dollar at any drug store, and will last for a considerable time.

Blackheads Go in a Few Minutes.

It is only a question of a few moments to get rid of blackheads. The only thing that will do this is neroxin. You sprinkle a little neroxin on a wet cloth or sponge and rub the blackheads with this for a few moments. Looking in your mirror, you will find the blackheads gone. This is a very remarkable article, and you need no longer use tonics, face-steaming, and pinching, and other useless methods for many months at a time. For fifty cents you can get the neroxin from your druggist.

MOOSE ORDER SEEKS 4000 MEMBERS HERE

Band From School at Mooseheart Will Come to St. Louis Saturday to Aid Campaign.

The Mooseheart Band of 50 boys from the training and vocational school at Mooseheart, Ill., will be in St. Louis next Saturday, as an exhibit in the campaign of the Loyal Order of Moose, which supports the school, for an increase of its membership in this city to 5000. The present membership here is about 1100.

The band will march to the City Hall in the morning, and will play in the corridor for the Mayor and other city officials. It will play on the floor of the Merchants' Exchange at noon, and in the afternoon will visit East St. Louis and Granite City. In the evening, a concert will be given in the Planters Hotel ballroom.

W. A. McGowan of Pittsburg, a former railroad commercial agent, a member of the supreme council of the order, who is taking an active part in the St. Louis membership campaign, told to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday the story of Mooseheart, its purposes and its methods.

801 Children at Mooseheart.

Mooseheart, where, he related, 801 boys and girls are now enrolled, is an estate of 1015 acres on the Lincoln Highway, 35 miles west of Chicago, being near the Fox River, between the towns of Aurora and Batavia, Ill. More than 50 buildings are on the estate, including school houses, dormitories, mechanical shops, dairy barn, hospital and auditorium.

"The boys and girls at Mooseheart," McGowan said, "are the sons and daughters of members of the Loyal Order of Moose. Those without father and mother, and those without father, are provided for by the order, which has made the maintenance of this school the chief purpose of its existence. Children without mother, whose fathers are living, and are members of the order, are received when there is room for them, the father paying in such cases for board and tuition.

"The Loyal Order of Moose was organized in Louisville 32 years ago, its origin being among theatrical folk. It had a certain growth along the ordinary lines of a fraternal order, then dwindled to a membership of a few hundred. In 1906, James J. Davis, a tin-plate worker with a talent for organization and leadership, undertook to rebuild the order and to give it a reason for being. Mooseheart is the carrying out of his idea.

"The membership dues of the Moose are $1 a month, and of the $12 paid annually by each member, $1 goes to the support of Mooseheart. In addition, Mooseheart receives $2 of every $10 initiation fee. Because of the demand for new buildings, an extra assessment of $1 has been paid in the past year by every member, making a contribution of $2 from each member, aside from initiation fee. The remainder of the money goes to the sick, injury and funeral benefits, and to organization expenses of the order.

Individuality Encouraged.

"Mooseheart was opened in 1913. Its motto is 'Preparation for Life.' Every effort is made to keep Mooseheart from being just another institution, with the standardized and uniform ways of institutions. Instead, individuality is encouraged. No two children dress alike. A boy picks out his suit, a girl her dress, from a commissary whose aim is variety as well as quality. They pay for the clothing with their own money, for each child is supplied by the school with his or her own bank account.

"In the government of the school there is no stick, no strap, no can't, no don't, no musn't. The children report their own misdemeanors, and the penalties are affixed by other children. The punishment for a boy may be exclusion from the baseball field; for a girl, to stay away from a party. 'Prisoners' March' about the grounds is another penalty, which there is a general wish to avoid.

"The religious training of children is given, as nearly as possible, in the churches of their parents. A Catholic chaplain ministers to the numerous Catholic children, while other children attend neighboring Protestant churches. There is separate religious instruction for Jewish children.

Trades Taught at Place.

"In the vocational training, emphasis is placed on farm management and animal industry. For those who prefer mechanical training, there are large and thoroughly equipped machine shops. Electrical trades, printing, wood working, shoemaking and dressmaking are among the branches taught.

"Concrete building work has been one of the specialties of the Mooseheart industrial training. During the war, the Government sent men to Mooseheart, 100 at a time, for special three months' training in practical concrete work. In the Roosevelt Auditorium, the large assembly hall, the iron girders have been covered with a white concrete preparation made by the boys of the school, and the effect has been admired by many visitors.

"The children received are of all ages up to 16, and the usual graduating age is 18 or 19. While boys and girls have separate dormitories, mostly of the smaller type, the general school classes are co-educational. Fourteen children from St. Louis and suburbs are now enrolled at Mooseheart.

Noted Men on Board.

"Albert Bushnell Hart, noted historian, and a member of the faculty of Harvard University, is a member of the Mooseheart board of governors, and visits the school sometimes as often as once a month. United States Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas is another member of the governing board, as is Dean Walter Williams of the Missouri University School of Journalism."

The St. Louis membership campaign is being directed by William Hayhurst, a special representative of the order. Charles A. Pearson of Webster Groves, trustee of the local lodge, is co-operating actively. The campaign headquarters are on the mezzanine floor of the Planters Hotel, and lodge meetings are held at the Planters every Saturday night. Last night, the Granite City team gave a ritual demonstration for the St. Louis lodge at the Planters.

A Clarion Call to Economy
The Reliable Announces
LOWER RETAIL PRICES

The Triumph of Economical Management, Low Rent Location, Small Profits, Tremendous Volume of Sales and a Strict Policy of No Profiteering!!!

We have combined economical management, the benefit of low rent location, small profits, with a tremendous volume of sales to cut down present high retail prices. In addition to this fact, we are giving the public full benefit of the low 1918 and 1919 prices at which we own over a quarter of a million dollars' worth of home furnishings. In other words, we are adhering to our strict policy of no profiteering. Other stores claim lower retail furniture prices are an impossibility, and in fact, are advancing furniture prices almost daily, however, the tremendous bargains offered below belie the truth of this statement. They prove that the Reliable is actually lowering the retail prices of furniture. Come to this store and you'll see for yourself. YOUTH WHO SHOT AT CHIEF GETS 20 YEARS FOR HOLDUP

Joseph Henry Convicted of Participation in Robbery of Jewelry Store on Florissant Avenue, Oct. 4.

Joseph Henry, 18 years old, was found guilty of first degree robbery yesterday and his punishment was fixed at 20 years' imprisonment for participating in the hold-up and robbery of Walter Voss' jewelry store, 4016W Florissant avenue, Oct. 4 last.

Four men held up Voss, stole jewelry and cash to a total value of $1300 and escaped in an automobile. Testimony at the trial showed that four days after the robbery Henry sold 14 watch cases to William Ash, a jeweler of 1306 Franklin avenue, receiving some cash and a check for $29, which Henry indorsed and cashed.

Henry made a confession to the police in which he admitted participation in many crimes, including the shooting of Police Chief O'Brien Oct. 31 last, after he and two others had attempted to rob H. H. Gerhardt's jewelry store at 3324 Olive street. Henry Carr in a confession Friday said he and Henry both shot at Chief O'Brien and he did not know which bullet struck the Chief.

Attorneys for Henry tried to question the jurors as to whether they had read newspaper accounts of the arrest and confession of Carr and whether they would be influenced by Carr's confession. Judge Taylor declined to permit the jury to be questioned on these points.

COL. POTTER TAKES CHARGE OF RIVER COMMISSION OFFICE

Col. Charles L. Potter of the United States Army Engineering Corps, recently appointed to succeed Col. Curtis McD. Townsend as president of the Mississippi River Commission, has taken charge of the office.

He said that he had nothing to give out as yet as to future plans, as he must first familiarize himself with local conditions. He has been in coast survey and river work since 1900, serving at Memphis from 1900 to 1903, at St. Louis 1910-1912, in St. Paul 1912-1915, on the Pacific Coast for several years and in Boston. Some months ago he was assigned again to the Pacific Coast and then to St. Louis.

Col. Potter said that the regular inspection trip of the commission would be made about the middle of April, from St. Louis to New Orleans.

KENYON TELLS OF GOOD IN PRE-ELECTION CABINET ANNOUNCEMENTS

demonstrated phenomenon that principles are not rigid bodies in practice? Principles are flexible. They have to be interpreted; and as they are interpreted by minds of different casts they result in dissimilar chains of action. This bit of phychological fact may mean much in the course of an administration. Take, for example, some labor issue. The way in which it will be adjusted under any given administration will necessarily depend very much on the outlook and sympathies of the man who happens to be Secretary of Labor. Does not the public need to know before deciding for or against the claims of a presidential aspirant, what the outlook and sympathies of that Secretary of Labor are likely to be? I believe such a need does exist before our presidential elections can become democratically ideal—that is, before they can reveal with a fair amount of precision the social and economic beliefs and desires of a majority of the voting citizens of the United States.

Would Give Public Line on Outlook.

"You will notice I just said the public needs to know what the outlook and sympathies of the different Cabinet appointees are likely to be. I am not proposing the certified chemical analysis of every potential head of a department. To know whether he is alkaline or acid, highly diluted or full strength, would give the rough advance information which is needed, and since every man matured enough to be proposed, before election, for a place of such responsibility and power in the national life, must have left a record all along the line of his advance, press and public would not be long in getting a line on his characteristics and character. In the same way," Senator Kenyon added, "I would not make it a high crime and misdemeanor if, for well-grounded reasons, a President-elect, after his election should find it necessary to change the names of one or more of his tentative Cabinet appointees, or if some person on the tentative Cabinet slate should decline the invitation. And now," he ended, "what have you to say against my proposal?"

I told him my first wonder was whether he would not be asking us voters to elect 11 men instead of one man at each presidential election.

"You should worry," answered Senator Kenyon, his eyes twinkling again. "If that should happen, couldn't you afford to let the managers of the candidate endure whatever insomnia there might be in the situation? As I said, it is impossible, under the Constitution, to have responsible Cabinet government in the United States, but it is not impossible to make the party in power more or less responsible for the Cabinet. It can be done, and I for one think doing it would be salutary."

INDUSTRIAL COMMISSIONS' PLAN TO END STRIKES, INCREASE PRODUCTION

great an authority as Mackenzie King, former Minister of Labor of Canada, who has been largely responsible for the origin and administration of the Canadian industrial procedure, considers the plan put forward by the conference as a constructive improvement on all others hitherto proposed.

"The report probably will not meet with the approval of the extremists of either side, but it has been approved in its broad lines by many hundreds of employers and many prominent labor leaders who have been consulted or communicated with. The conference believes that it will appeal to those who believe in sane and sure steps to advance human relations in industry.

"It will be interesting if critics will read the entire document before they launch forth criticisms. It would be even more interesting if political leaders would state their agreement or disagreement with it."

GOMPER'S ATTACKS FINDINGS AS TO INDUSTRIAL UNREST

Better Machinery Now Exists Than That Suggested by President's Conference, He Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Recommendations by President Wilson's conference for the settlement of industrial unrest were attacked today by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

The labor leader, in a prepared statement, said the machinery for adjusting disputes between employes and employers, "which has for years been in existence in practically every organized industry in the United States, is superior to the machinery now suggested by the industrial conference, both in point of simplicity and in point of effectiveness."

"The conference," said Gompers, "has devised a mass of machinery to be made effective by law, composed of a national industrial board and local and regional conferences, and boards of inquiry. The whole situation in this respect may be summed up as follows:

"Tried and tested machinery for conciliation and arbitration between employers and employes exists wherever employes are organized.

"This machinery functions perfectly wherever employers forsake the spirit of dominance and the attitude of democracy.

"Through the use of this machinery it has been found possible to maintain industrial peace with no stoppage of work of any kind for periods ranging from 10 to 40 years. No machinery devised by the Government or its agencies or supervised by the Government or any of its agencies, could achieve results superior to the results achieved by the machinery which has long been in operation in our industrial life.

"In industries where the employes are not organized, no machinery of any kind, whether supervised by governmental agencies or otherwise, can produce industrial justice. Organization of the workers is the fact upon which must be predicated the existence of any machinery for the settlement of disputes or the extension of the principles of democracy in industry.

"Surely no intelligent agency can hope to achieve progress in American industry without organization of the workers. With organization of workers, no structure of machinery need be thrust upon it from the outside. Organization brings with it machinery which is both adequate and practical, the result of experience shorn of any of the fantasies of pure theory."

The statement says, further, that it is to be feared "that the commission views industry from the viewpoint of the single shop and builds its machinery on the theory that disputes are to be settled shop by shop. If such a viewpoint is to be actually carried into operation it will be most disastrous."

"The fact of the whole matter is," says the statement, in conclusion, "that the President's commission, even though prompted by the best of motives, had neither the experience nor the understanding of the history, the methods and purposes of the organized labor movement, and it followed in the wake of others whose only real purpose has been to get away from the trade union influence and constructive work."

DE VALERA GRATIFIED OVER IRISH TREATY RESERVATION

Declares Senate's Action in Adopting Principle Fulfills His Mission to United States.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 20.—Eamonn de Valera, "President of the Republic of Ireland," announced yesterday that the adoption by the United States of a reservation to the peace treaty approving the principle of self-determination for the Irish people had fulfilled his mission in this country.

The announcement was made in a cablegram to Arthur Griffith, "Acting President of the Republic of Ireland," Mansion House, Dublin, which read:

"A te deum should be sung throughout all Ireland. We thank Almighty God we thank the noble American nation, we thank the friends of Ireland here who have worked so unselfishly for our cause, we thank the heroic dead whose sacrifices made victory possible.

"Our mission has been successful. The principle of self-determination has been formally adopted in an international instrument. Ireland has been given her place among the nations by the greatest nation of them all."

The cablegram was signed "Eamonn de Valera and Colleagues."

How to Keep Your Baby Always Well and Happy

Just see that the daily functions are regular and normal.

YOU can't expect the little ones to be happy and playful when the head feels dull and the stomach bloated. The normal habit of children is to be happy and when you notice them cross and fretful you will usually find constipation is responsible.

Perhaps they have missed that daily function so necessary to comfort and health. Look at the tongue and see if the breath is bad. Watch for belching. These are the tell-tale symptoms of constipation. Tonight give a little of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which you can buy at any drug store, and it will act in the morning and the troublesome symptoms promptly disappear.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin. Unlike the harsher physics it acts gently and without griping so that while grownups can use it freely it can also be given to a tiny baby with perfect safety. Thousands of American families would not think of being without a bottle in the house for the emergency arises almost daily when it is needed.

In spite of the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, there being over 6 million bottles sold each year, many who need its benefits have not yet used it. If you have not, send your name and address for a free trial bottle to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 511 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

Have Curly, Wavy Hair Like "Nature's Own"

Women who have trouble keeping their hair in curl, or of securing the desired wavy effect—and especially those who realize the harm that the hot iron does to the hair—will do well to try the new slimerine method. In no other way can they acquire such pretty waves and curls, having all the appearance of "Nature's own." And the hair, instead of being singed, razzed or dead looking, has such a lively lustre and wholesome beauty. The curliness is more quickly acquired than when a waving iron is used, and it lasts considerably longer. When the hair is combed out it is nice and fluffy. The hair will be quite manageable, no matter in what fashion it is done up.

If one will get a bottle of plain liquid slimerine at any drug store and follow the accompanying directions, she will be simply delighted with the result. This product is of course perfectly harmless and there is nothing sticky, greasy or unpleasant about it. It is also prized as a splendid dressing for the hair. As so small a quantity is required at a time, a few ounces will last for months.

DIVORCEE ASKS FOR NEW TRIAL

Mrs. Edith Blanche Weeke, who last week was divorced from August F. Weeke, deputy clerk of Division 4 of the St. Louis Circuit Court, yesterday filed a motion in the Circuit Court at Clayton for a new trial on the ground that the decree is indefinite.

The motion alleges that the award of $30 a month for the support of the Weeke's 10-year-old daughter is insufficient.

Her attorney, in the motion, states that his fee of $100 is too little, and also alleges lack of jurisdiction of the court in instructing Weeke to deliver to his wife certain personal papers, because no request for such action was made in the original paper.

PLAN TO POSTPONE VOTE ON BONDS IS CONSIDERED

Lawyers Investigating Arnold's Suggestion That Women's Vote Might Invalidate Issue.

QUESTION REGARDED AS NOT SERIOUS

Right of St. Louis Women to Vote Depends on Action of Delaware and Washington Before Thursday.

The suggestion of Chairman Glendy B. Arnold of the Election Board that the voting of women in the municipal bond issue election May 11 might endanger the validity of the bonds, is being examined by lawyers, Chairman Thomas H. Lovelace of the Citizens' Campaign Committee said yesterday. If there is a possibility that holding the election at that time would invalidate the bonds, the committee will endeavor to have it postponed, he said.

The point raised by Arnold was this: Thirty-four states have ratified the Federal suffrage amendment, and two more are required. If these two ratify before March 25, women will be permitted to register on that day, which would qualify them to vote in the bond issue election. If subsequently it should be found that some of the states had not legally ratified the amendment (some of the ratifications are being attacked) the women would have voted illegally, and Arnold was of the opinion that a bond issue carried partially by illegal votes would not stand.

Thought Question Not Serious.

City Counselor Daues said that he would make a thorough study of the subject. He was of the opinion, offhand, that the question was not a serious one. He pointed out that a separate tally will be kept of men's and women's votes, and that the latter can be thrown out later if found to be illegal.

Arnold also mentioned the possibility that the amendment might not be ratified until after the registration, and before the election, in which event women, though legal voters, would not be able to vote, because of not having registered. Daues did not think this objection material, but said he would give an opinion later.

Says Election Can Be Delayed.

Lovelace said the committee was grateful for Arnold's suggestion, and the public could rest assured the campaign would not be carried forward if any shadow rested upon the validity of the proposed bonds. The election, he said, could be postponed until such time as no doubts existed.

Somewhat oddly, the right of St. Louis women to vote in the election now depends upon the legislatures of Delaware and Washington. These bodies have been called in special sessions, and are expected to take final action upon ratification in a few days. Both will have to get "under the wire" before Thursday, to do the St. Louis women any good, because that is the last day they can register to vote May 11, unless, as suggested, the election is postponed.

There was a meeting of the chairmen of the Women's Organizations Committee yesterday afternoon, at which it was stated that all was to get the women out to register and subsequently to get them to the polls, in case they became legal voters by that time.

Labor Committee to Meet Today.

There will be a meeting at 3 o'clock this afternoon at 3024 Olive street, of the Labor Committee assigned to carry on the campaign for the bond issue among the unions. J. W. Williams, treasurer Central Trades and Labor Union, is the chairman. The committee is composed of 75 business agents and secretaries of local unions, and they will form an organization to swing the union labor vote for the measure.

Williams has pointed out that labor, perhaps more than any other class, would benefit from the bond issue, as it would serve to bring many new industries here.

The Lumbermen's Exchange, one of the organizations invited by Mayor Kiel to appoint a representative on the Citizen's Committee which will supervise expenditure of the money in case the bond issue carries, yesterday advised him of the appointment of F. J. Riefling of the George W. Miles Timber & Lumber Co.

Of the amount named $4193.25 is in notes, $5000 in life insurance, $5000 in stock of the Carleton-Ferguson Dry Goods Co., $3975 in bonds, a majority of which are Liberty Bonds; cash, $429.26, and chattels, $655. MARCH FIGURES SHOW LARGE RAILROAD TRAFFIC GAINS HERE

St. Louis business, according to traffic figures of the St. Louis railroads, shows great gain in volume over this season last year.

A report submitted yesterday to Acting President T. M. Pierce of the Terminal Railroad Association, for the first 15 days of March, records a gain of 38,268 cars over the corresponding period of last year. The total interchange service rendered by the Terminal for the St. Louis lines for the first half of the month represented a movement of 149,199 cars, an average of nearly 10,000 daily. For the same days last year there were 110,933 cars interchanged between connecting roads, a daily average of less than 7400. The increase in the 1920 volume exceeds by 25 per cent the March showing of last year and means that the industries of this city have greatly increased in number and volume of manufactured products.

The number of cars handled in the St. Louis gateway last month totaled 274,185, an increase of more than 52,000 over February of last year. Last Monday a new record for 1920 was made when the Terminal received from or delivered to connections 11,356 cars.

Bees on a "Spree."

LOS ANGELES, Cal. — Several swarms of "busy" bees in the vicinity of the Newhall grade, on the Ridge route, were not working, according to a report by Deputy Sheriffs Mason and Kennedy, who said the bees were all on a spree. The officers reported that a large truck, carrying considerable wine, was wrecked on the road and the wine had spilled out, a temptation to the bees, who appeared to be "under the influence."

Nemesis Meets Villain in Final Accounting though He Travels to the Ends of the Earth to do it....

THE rain was not of the kind which drizzles a suggestion of tame sadness: it came on at nightfall with a rush of cold autumn wind and covered the city with the wail and violence of wild tragic forecast. Perhaps there was in it also the laughter, the hysterical laughter of the gods of fate.

Uptown there is a certain apartment building; the owners of it have asked that its name be withheld. Reason enough! The place is most respectable; even more—some apartments there rent for $12,000 a year.

At 8 o'clock a taxicab, skidding over the black asphalt, came to a stop before this mangificent cliff dwellers' structure and stood panting and steaming in the downpour. No one behind the lighted windows above could hear it because the wind and rain and swirl and howl of the storm from the sea, bringing its clamor of hitherto untold secrets from the Atlantic, drowned the thumping of its engines.

A man in a gray tweed storm coat and wearing a black derby with a square top paid the taxicab driver through the window and made a run through the deulge for the front door. He did not open that door at once, but peered in through the plate glass—perhaps to see whether or not the uniformed elevator boy was sitting under the palms in the marble lobby. While he stared from the darkness and the rain beat down upon him the taxicab rounded the next corner and was gone. The man turned nervously, as if he had suddenly felt eyes upon him. It is extraordinary how few are the places and times when at least one pair of human eyes—and often the particular, fateful pair—do not see. And now, fateful or not, there was a chance. Across the street, under the overhanging dripping lower branches of a park tree, but almost indistinguishable through the diagonals and the flowing veils of rain and darkness, the man at the door saw a human figure.

He drew his head down into the collar of his coat, as an offended turtle, and, opening the door into the vacant lobby, made his way to the apartment formerly occupied by a specialist in brain surgery, who went to France with a certain medical unit in 1915, having moved out all his things and directed certain well known real estate agents to sublease for the balance of his term.

That the man who entered on this night was the sublessee appeared probable. It was evident that he had been in and out often enough. Without touching the electric switches he reached for a cigar from the half-emptied box on the hall stand, and though the whole apartment was as dark as the inside of a shutterless camera, his fingers moved accurately. He felt along the wall, across the tapestry that hung invisible there, and entered the living room, where the rain dripped from the rough tweed and from the rim of his peculiar hat onto the polished floor. He went across the room to a screen made of old Spanish embossed leather and behind its protection he lit his cigar with a short, quick, tiny flare of a match and drew a deep inhalation of the smoke. A violent spell of coughing resulted, but the man did not care about that; there was no one else in the apartment and the doors and window glass were luxuriously heavy and almost sound proof.

Indeed, the man spoke aloud when his cough ceased. He said: "That's the third time!"

Immediately, as if his remarks were connected in some way with the figure he had seen, he went to the front windows, and, parting the heavy curtains a little, he stared out into the rain.

The storm still wailed its threats, its warnings, its dead men's tales, and the rain and darkness outside were mixed like a thick black batter. Suddenly another taxicab, turning the corner a block or two away, with its radiant eyes threw a thin, milky light along the tree tops, whipped and twisted, staggered and thrashed in the wind like a motley lot of drunken soldiers. The figure, which had been slinking in their shelter on the sidewalk, had gone.

The man within, however, was not at ease; drawing off his overcoat and hat, he threw them away from him onto an expensive rug.

"The devil!" said he.

There was a long pause of silence, as if the man was meditating, but then, as if he had called to one who waited a summons, there came the tinkle of falling glass in the rear of the apartment. Afterward all was still again except for a new sound—the sound of the storm, as if it had found its way through some aperture. Its roar had been reduced to whispers, but they were whispers of the sea of dismal wastes, of the unsealed lips of those who have died by violence. The voices rose in shrieks, suggestive of the blasts of wind and the wet, washed night. And into the heavy, warm air of the apartment laden with its mixed odors of stale and fresh cigar smoke there ran rivulets and tiny streams of colder air, smelling of the salt of the sea, wet, cold, salty, like sips of iced clam juice.

The man stooped his tall, graceful figure and became a reptile, alert in the face of danger, apprehensive of some invader who, under cover of the noise of the storm, had made an entrance into the rear of the building. The lessee of the $12,000-a-year flat, with his face twisted into an ugly grin, crawled and squirmed snakelike along the wall, crouched behind a leather chair, fat with luxurious upholstery, and there he waited like a poisonous lizard in ambush.

A lull came in the faraway murmur of the storm, and he could hear faintly the mumble of movements in the apartment above; he could hear the faint rattle of a paper disturbed by the puffs of air entering the broken window in the distant kitchen and coming through the series of rooms and doorways between. He could hear something else, too; it was the tiny squish of water in a pair of shoes. The feet in these shoes were put down cautiously. They approached almost noiselessly and with irritating pauses of caution. Squish! Then silence. Squish! A long wait. . . . Squish!

He, who was behind the chair, realized that these sounds were fading, the water in the shoes had been running out. Soon the feet would proceed silently. They would approach without noise. He listened. No squish. He waited long, long, breathless moment. No sound. The intruder might have stopped. He might be coming on with silent, sliding paces.

The man in hiding waited with his thin lips twisting back and forth across the edges of his even, white teeth. His ears having failed to register the movements of the other, he drew in slow, noiseless breaths through his long nose, hoping to find in the air some telltale odor of the other person.

It came when the intruder passed the chair in the thick syrup of the blackness; it was the smell of wet woolen clothing, of soaked leather, of stale rainwater, seasoned with the prickly smell of some spice, perhaps cloves. A moment or two later the one who had passed collided with the wall at the front end of the living room.

There was an imprecation and later a sigh; the newcomer feeling a way through the mud of the dark had evidently been assured that the apartment was empty. From that moment the movements showed that caution had been laid aside. Crossing the room diagonally, the moving feet collided with a leather couch and then went on carelessly until their owner had found the wall again. The sound of fingers feeling along the grass cloth paper stopped at the wide entrance to the front hall of the apartment, and then there came a whisper as if the voice of the person had said, "Ha!—as if, indeed, a goal had been reached. A chair was moved and then the intruder sat down; the cushion gave forth a sigh as air was expelled from it under the sudden application of weight.

The man who had subleased this apartment waited impatiently. He wondered, no doubt, why the other person had gone to so much pains to break in if he were to be satisfied to sit down in a comfortable chair and relieve a passing weariness. If one came to do something, let him do it! But the other merely sighed and made a sound like that of a wet tongue moving across dry lips.

To be crouching behind a chair, unable to move a muscle without risk of disclosure would become unendurable. The man who was doing it felt the ache of strained position slowly saturate his sinews and then eat into the marrow of his bones. Twenty minutes passed. He could stand it no longer!

Slowly, painfully, he rose from his crouching. He extended his left hand behind him until it touched the wall. The fingers of this hand crept along the wainscoting to the door jamb; they crept cautiously back until they came in contact with a familiar plunger of an electric switch. He pressed it. An explosion of light!

One fraction of a second was enough to photograph with exactness the details shown by this flood, this bath, this assault of sudden glare which exposed the room.

The stranger who had come in like a bird of evil omen from the storm was seated facing the door, and the light caught an expression on his face which was suggestive of the grim mood of one who waits patiently for his prey. His was a lean and angular frame, and lean legs were crooked into rectangle, and lean arms were resting on sharp-angled elbows. All his angularity was emphasized by the fact that his clothing was watersoaked and the dark blue serge of an old suit was clinging closely to his lean, strong limbs and his lean, strong body. In his long-fingered right hand he held an instrument of battery, persuasion and unconsciousness often called a "life preserver." It was made of black leather, with a knob filled with birdshot, and it dangled like the limp neck of a poisonous and death-dealing asp for the moment relaxed in sleep.

"I've got you covered, my fine visitor!"

When its owner turned his face appeared white, haggard, of exaggerated length. Its wrinkles were deep—deep in the high forehead, deep around the eyes, deep at the base of the long nose and around the mouth with its thin red lips parted in a smile, either sad or vicious, which appeared as fixed as if the lower part of the countenance were molded in plaster paris, and therefore gave to the man a strange appearance of inscrutability.

"Throw that blackjack on the floor,' commanded the other man. "I've got you covered, my fine visitor."

The intruder stared into the toothless mouth of a blue-steel revolver barrel and without changing a line of his unreadable face he relaxed his fingers and his implement of attack fell onto the hardwood floor.

If a third pair of eyes could have stared in upon these two men who met each other's gaze, it would have seen in the setting of a large room filled with new rich furniture and new rich hangings, a remarkable contract between two individuals. This contrast was almost amusing because superficially the men were alike. Both were lean and tall, both had long faces and high foreheads, both were without beards, except for the uncut stubble which had blackened the mouth and chin of the one in the chair.

The foremost difference between them was in their comparative activity. The lessee of the apartment was enternally in movement; his face twitched, his mouth squirmed, his eyes shifted as if every thought disturbed their position, and at every half dozen breaths he snuffed his nose as if there were some hard and bony growth obstructing the free intake of air. His free hand moved its long fingers. The thumb rubbed imaginary pellets against the nervous tips of the digits.

The other man, the visitor from the storm, was like a carved wooden thing. His deep-set eyes stared without expression; his body was motionless. Even the chords on his neck, showing above a flannel shirt collar, remained as they had fixed themselves when he turned his head. Both men were gray, but the hair of the visitor was well arranged, as it had been when he removed his soft felt hat; the hair of the host was a tousle through which he had run his nervous fingers.

"I've got you" said the latter, in a rather thin but low voice—the voice of one used to the customs and conversation of gentle persons.

"Yes, you got me," the other replied. "I know that. Now go ahead and send for the police."

"Send for the police?" the armed man said. "Why, yes. I hadn't thought"——

He appeared rather surprised at the suggestion.

"You're lucky I didn't kill you," said he. "You came here to steal, eh? Maybe to slug me with that thing you had in your paw. Why did you sit down?"

"Cold and tired," the other answered.

The host sat down in the leather chair behind which he had hidden; he rested the revolver on his knee and smiled. His smile was not a gentle and fixed and inscrutable smile such as appeared on the face of his visitor as he sat with his wet clothes steaming, but a smile of shrewdnes, resource, craft.

"This is interesting," he said suddenly. "Very interesting. Let me introduce myself to you. I am Valentine—Edes Valentine. I take it you are one of those gentlemen who are proud of the title of yegg. Aren't you a bit old for the game?"

"I'm 51," said the other in a dull and noncommital voice. "Where are you from, Mr. Valentine?"

"From Paris," said the other sharply.

"That so? Well—here we are."

"Good!" said Valentine. "I like that spirit. If one is to be villainous it is an art to be villainous cheerfully. All the better if one is a professional villain. Come, Mr"——

"Blank—Mr. Blank," prompted the visitor.

"Well, Mr. Blank, as you choose to call yourself, sit there in that chair for a moment. If you will pardon me, I'll ask you not to move so that I will not have the pain of shooting a round and uncomfortable hole in your head."

New Method of Reducing Fat

A news item from abroad informs us that the American method of producing a slim, trim figure is meeting with astonishing success. This system, which has made such a wonderful impression over there, must be the Marmola Prescription Tablet method of reducing fat. It is safe to say that we have nothing better for this purpose in this country. Anything that will reduce the excess flesh two, three or four pounds a week, without injury to the stomach, the causing of wrinkles, the help of exercising or dieting, or interference with one's meals is a mighty important and useful addition to civilization's necessities. Just such a catalogue of good results, however, follow the use of these pleasant, harmless and economical little fat reducers. We say economical because Marmola Prescription Tablets (made in accordance with the famous prescription) can be obtained of any druggist or the makers, the Marmola Co., 864 Woodward Av., Detroit, Mich., for one dollar the large case, which is a decidedly economical price considering the number of tablets each case contains. They are harmless.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound tonight and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

The road to progress and to independence leads through Post-Dispatch WANTS, for many who have been wise enough to take advantage of them.

INFRINGEMENT OF MACARONI MACHINE PATENT ALLEGED

Viviano Brothers Made Defendants in Suit Brought by One of Their Employes.

Suit to enjoin the V. Viviano Bros. Macaroni Manufacturing Co. from infringing patent rights granted to Gaetano Gentile, a workman employed by the Viviano company, on an improved machine for the drying of macaroni, and for an accounting for sales of the machine already made by the concern, was filed in the United States District Court yesterday by Gentile.

The petition sets forth that the process was invented by Gentile prior to his application for letters patent in June, 1918, and that his application was granted March 9 last. The Viviano company, he alleges, has ignored his rights to the invention and has been manufacturing the machines for sale over his protest. Gentile is an Italian alien.

SWIFT & CO. IMPORTS VEAL

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 20.—Meat packers in Chicago have excelled the feat of carrying coal to Newcastle.

Announcement was made today that Swift & Co. here, had received a carload of frozen veal from New Zealand. The veal entered the United States by way of San Francisco, and is a try-out, plenty being available if the pioneer carload proves satisfactory as a method to reduce the cost of living.

ITALY MAKES OYSTERS SAFE

WASHINGTON.—An Italian company has perfected a process for removing impurities from oysters, according to a report to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

On being taken from beds along the Venetian coast the oysters are shipped to Rome, the shells carefully washed and thrown into great tanks filled with sterilized sea water. The tanks are constantly replenished and the flowing water has been found to wash all impurities from the oysters which, after a week's "treatment" are shipped to the retailers.

CHURCHILL DECLARES WAR ON SOCIALISM

British War Minister Rallies to Support of Lloyd George in Fight on Labor.

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1920, by the Press Publishing Co. (The New York World.)

LONDON, March 20.—Lloyd George's declaration of war against labor, which he sounded Thursday when he addressed the coalition Liberals on the necessity of sticking together with the Tory forces to prevent the nation from coming under the domination of Socialism, is quickly followed by support from his War Minister, Winston Churchill.

In the Evening News Churchill, who a few weeks ago, declared labor unfit to govern, gave his reasons last evening why he supported his chief, saying: "The Socialist party constitutes the most dark and formidable force with which, now that German militarism has been crushed, British civilization is confronted."

To reduce the whole sensational British political situation into everyday language, Premier Lloyd George expects in the near future to go to the country for a mandate for further power, and it is to be as a camouflaged Tory. He believes and so do many others, that if the present coalition is wrecked, another will have to come in its place, and Lloyd George be at its head. But it will take heroic means to accomplish it, so the Premier risks class strife in the hope to align a majority of his countrymen against the only powerful source of opposition—labor.

Leaders Resent Attack.

His attack on labor as a Socialistic menace and under the influence of extremists comes on the heels of the severest defeat which has been administered to labor's extremists and which was accomplished by constitution labor leaders recently when they overwhelmingly defeated the proposed general strike to force the nationalization of mines. At the same time the Premier cut the legs from any Tory factions which might have pretension to power.

Keen resentment is felt by moderate labor leaders over the attack by the Premier. They declare the Premier was "preaching class war" in outlining his reasons for the new political alignment.

Arthur Henderson, leader of the Labor party in the House of Commons, has issued a statement saying: "Labor accepts the challenge of Mr. Lloyd George. We are arranging to appeal not only to organized workers, but to every sympathizer. The Labor party aims to raise a fund to enable it to fight the coalition and purposes to ask for subscriptions totaling £2,000,000 in anticipation of an early election."

The Manchester Guardian, probably Britain's weightiest exponent of independent liberalism, professes a good deal of sympathy with Premier Lloyd George in his political plans. It says that he is by nature and sympathy a Liberal, but has got into the wrong box. The problem for him is how to get out. The Guardian thinks the Premier's denunciation of labor in his address to coalition Liberals are not to be taken as much more than a rhetorical exercise, and considers the Labor party's tendencies on the whole as sane and moderate.

Doctrines Declared Dangerous.

The Daily News, which has long been bitter towards the Premier, considers "if a new party is produced by fusion, it will owe little to Premier Lloyd George." The newspaper adds the Premier "may have a heavy account to reckon with labor for this speech."

The Times considers the speech really meant: "Help me fight labor, which is Socialism," which, the newspaper says, is "a doctrine poor, false and dangerous."

The Telegraph insists that the coalition must be maintained as no party has a clear majority. It also supports the Premier's attitude toward the Labor party, which, it says, has "declared war upon the Liberals exactly as it has upon the Unionists because both are pledged to the defense of institutions which labor is bent of destroying."

SINN FEIN MAYOR OF CORK ASSASSINATED

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 20.—The Lord Mayor of Cork was shot dead at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. Revolvers were fired by masked men whose identity is unknown, and who escaped in an automobile.

A half dozen men knocked at the door of the home of the Lord Mayor, Thomas MacCurtain. Mrs. MacCurtain opened the door and the men rushed in. Some of them held her, while others ran upstairs to the Mayor's bedroom. They took him to the landing and shot him in the chest. They then fled.

Mrs. MacCurtain telephoned immediately for a doctor and a priest. The Mayor died soon after the arrival of the priest.

Mayor MacCurtain, a prominent Sinn Feiner, was interned after the Easter rebellion.

Not since the attempted assassination of Viscount French, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, has any Irish outrage of the scores perpetrated caused such a sensation throughout the United Kingdom as the murder of the Lord Mayor.

The MacCurtain tragedy comes on the heels of sinister rumors of a Sinn Fein plot for another revolution in Ireland at Eastern time. If such a plot exists, it is pointed out, the murder of one of the Sinn Fein leaders would not tend to throw water on the fires of conspiracy.

MISS BOTTS TAKES ALL THE BLAME FOR M'GINNIS ESCAPADE

Testifies She Bought Tickets for Elopement, Desiring to Get Him as Far Away From Wife as Possible.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 20.—Miss Esther Botts, 19 years old, of 3640 Russell avenue, St. Louis, whose love affair with former Lieut. Elzie V. McGinnis of St. Louis, has brought about his trial here in the Federal Court on charges of violating the Mann act, took the witness stand yesterday afternoon, and, to the surprise of prosecuting officers, who regarded her as their witness, expressed her love for the defendant, and assumed responsibility for his action last July in eloping to this city with her after deserting his wife.

The girl, who was arrested with McGinnis, who served with the 138th (St. Louis) Infantry, in an apartment here last January by agents of the Department of Justice who were seeking them at the request of Mrs. McGinnis, told of her affection for McGinnis without hesitation and unmoved by the presence of the wife, who sat behind the defendant in the courtroom.

Miss Botts' appearance on the stand was the occasion of her first face-to-face meeting with the wife of her admirer. Their eyes frequently met as the girl recited the events which preceded and followed their flight from St. Louis.

Wanted to Take Him From Wife.

"I like him very much and wanted to get him as far away from St. Louis and his wife as I could," she testified, in response to a question as to why she had eloped with McGinniss. "I suggested that we come out to California because I wanted to keep him myself."

"Are you still infatuated with McGinniss?" she was asked.

"I like him very much," she replied.

The witness declared that she not only suggested the Western trip, but had actually purchased the tickets.

When confronted with statements alleged to have been made by her at the time of her arrest, in which she was reported as declaring McGinnis induced her to come to California on the plea that their elopement would cause Mrs. McGinnis to obtain a divorce, Miss Botts said she could not recall them. "I was antagonized and excited at the time," was her explanation.

Says She Bought Tickets.

She testified that they went from St. Louis to Des Moines, Ia., where McGinnis became ill. In a few days, she said, he was able to resume their trip, and she again purchased the tickets which brought them West.

The witness digressed from her recital of the trip to accuse one of the local agents of the Department of Justice with having taken her to his office at 10 o'clock one night shortly after her arrest, where he offered her a drink of whisky. She asserted that when she declined the agent proposed a visit to a "spicy" show, and, despite her desire to attend a moving picture performance, compelled her to go to a vaudeville house.

Questioned About Letters.

She was questioned about love letters sent to her by McGinnis after his release on bond and while she was held as a witness at the detention house on Angel Island. The letters were filled with endearing terms and bore such signatures as "Chong" and "Virgie." Miss Botts was frequently addressed in the missives as "Dollie."

McGinnis, in the letters, which were seized by Federal agents, told of his efforts to obtain her release and expressed his hope that they would one day be reunited.

"Oh, honey," wrote McGinnis, "why is it this way? Why cannot we go back to the old days when we were so happy? All I think of is you, you all the time. Dolly, are you going to wait for me? Will you write to me always, and, no matter what Bill or anyone else says, will you be true to me and wait for me? What else is there in this world for us but each other?

"It won't be long if it comes to the worst, honey. Tell me, tell me truly, will you keep all your promises and be true, just like you said? If I know you love me and are waiting, I am satisfied."

Elsewhere McGinnis wrote that he wanted "to prove that I am your 'Chong,' always, now and forever."

The letters, according to Assistant United States District Attorney Ben Geis, were written after the Government had refused to release Miss Botts on bond because she refused to return to her mother in St. Louis until the time for the trial. E. M. Blanchford, head of the San Francisco branch of the Department of Justice, said that it was feared Miss Botts would join McGinnis if released.

Witnesses Dispte Girl's Story.

The girl was followed on the witness stand by railroad employes, who identified McGinnis as the one who had purchased the tickets. This was done to disprove the girl's contention that she financed the trip.

The trial then was halted and adjournment taken until Monday.

McGinnis, in an interview with the Post-Dispatch correspondent, told of being shot several times through the thighs in a charge upon a German machine gun nest in the Argonne Forest and of being gassed later. He also told of his acquaintance with Miss Botts.

"Following return from overseas I was assigned to military hospitals at Des Moines and St. Louis," he said. "After undergoing four operations I was discharged on account of physical disability on June 25 last. I resumed my former occupation with the M., K. & T. Railroad in St. Louis. I soon found I was too nervous to work. I left St. Louis July 22 with Miss Botts and after that I do not remember much of what happened.

"I recall that I was desperately ill at Des Moines and again at Cheyenne, Wyo., and had to leave the train. I met Miss Botts in August, 1917, just before leaving a training camp. She was employed as a stenographer to take the place of one of the men in the office where I worked."

McGinnis and Miss Botts lived together at 429 Bush street, San Francisco. They had resided there since Aug. 3 last. He was employed by a cement concern in a small town in central California and spent most of his time there. He became ill late in October last and went to a hospital Nov. 4.

The defense will be based on McGinnis' alleged mental ailment.

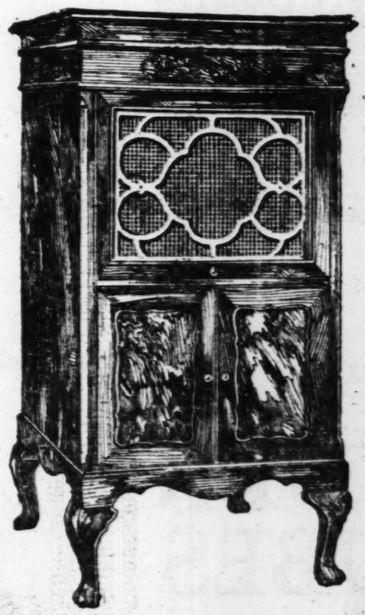
The Music Teacher that gives the Children added Interest

DID you take music lessons when you were little?

Do you remember that long, long trail from the first lesson until you could really play or sing? Do you remember, also, how hard it was for you to really learn to interpret your pieces, and get out of them all that the composer had put in?



The CHENEY

has brought about a new era in the study of music. Children today find new interest in those pages of black notes. They hear the same compositions that they are studying, played masterfully on The Cheney.

Wonderful acoustic inventions enable The Cheney to bring out from records all of the beauty put into them by the artist. Its reproductions are exceptionally faithful.

As a result, children who have the advantage of a Cheney in the home, make remarkable progress in their music. And their parents, meanwhile, have all of the pleasure of hearing music played and sung by artists.

We invite you to make yourself at home in our Music Salon. Our sales personnel will gladly play any record for you.

Conroy's Offer
An Unusual Opportunity

The great difficulty at present is inability to secure a sufficient number of Pianos and Players to supply our customers' demands.

The other day, however, we received a telephone call from the H. C. Bay Company, one of the largest American Piano Manufacturers, for whose instruments we have exclusive rights, telling us that two carloads of their Players had gone astray and had been located near St. Louis.

Rather than go to the expense of re-shipping these instruments, the Bay Company offered us these two cars at a price which enables us to sell these Players, which have the ukelele attachment, at exactly the same price we regularly charge for this Player without this marvelous but expensive addition.

Good Players are ordinarily priced around $700, but here is one that unusual circumstances permits us to sell at $585, including the ukelele attachment.

These instruments are excellently made and beautifully finished, and their superb action insures perfect rendition of the most difficult musical selections.

This is indeed a wonderful value, and as we have a good stock of these Players, you can have one in your home on a few hours' notice.

FOUR BREWERIES BRING SUITS TO TEST DRY LAWS

Petitions, Which Are Identical, Allege National Prohibition Amendment Is Unconstitutional.

Four suits attacking the constitutionality of the eighteenth (prohibition) amendment and the Volstead enforcement act were filed in the United States District Court here yesterday, the plaintiffs being the Independent Breweries Co., the St. Louis Brewing Association, the Griesedieck Bros. Brewing Co. and the Louis Obert Brewing Co.

The petitions, which are identical, ask the Court to restrain Collector Moore, District Attorney Hensley and Enforcement Officer Digges from enforcing the provisions of the prohibition amendment.

Legal Objections Raised.

The eighteenth amendment is attacked as unconstitutional on the ground that its submission to the State Legislature was not authorized by a two-thirds vote of Congress, and that, even if so authorized, the amendment was not within the authority of Congress and the State Legislatures under article 5 of the United States Constitution, as it was not an amendment of the Constitution in the true and legal sense, as the power of amendment was intended to extend only to alterations of, or additions to existing constitutional provisions and to legislative powers regulating the conduct of individuals' lives.

The amendment also is attacked on the ground that it was not ratified by a direct vote of the people.

State Rights Question Raised.

The Missouri ratification of the Eighteenth Amendment is attacked on the ground that it was in conflict with the State Constitution forbidding the Legislature from ratifying any changes in the National Constitution which would impair the right of the people of the State to local self-government, and because the power of the people to permit or forbid the sale of intoxicants was encroached upon by the amendement, and because only the people of the State, and not the Legislature, had the power to relinquish any portion of the right to local self-government.

The Volstead enforcement act is attacked on the ground that it was passed under the authority of the Eighteenth Amendment, which is in itself unconstitutional.

Labor Party Convention Today.

The second annual convention of the St. Clair County branch of the Illinois Labor party will be held in Hitching's Hall, Belleville, this afternoon. Two members of the Legislature are to be chosen and the county offices of Circuit Clerk, Recorder of Deeds, Coroner and State's Attorney are to be filled.

TROTZKY'S SPEECH CAUSED KOLCHAK ARMY TO 'MELT AWAY'

Gave Prisoners Liberty and 2000 Rubles Each—In Two Weeks Had Whole 80,000.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 20.—How an army of 80,000 Kolchak troops "melted away" by desertion to the Bolsheviki, following a speech made to prisoners of war Leon Trotzky, in Omsk, Siberia, two days after that city's evacuation by the All-Russian forces, was told here recently by Major-General I. Thord-Gray, a former officer of the British, Canadian and All-Russian armies just returned from Vladivostok.

Trotzky, he said, addressing the prisoners as "comrades," said they would be welcomed by the red army if they cared to join. Captive officers, he said, who wanted to return to Kolchak would be given safe escort and 2000 rubles each. A number of the prisoners accepted the offer, and, returning to their own lines, told what Trotzky had done. Within two weeks, Gen. Thord-Gray said, Kolchak had practically no army and a short time later was executed.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Investigation of the Federal Board for Vocational Education in training war disabled soldiers and sailors was approved today by the House, which adopted the resolution giving the House Education Committee broad powers for conducting the inquiry.

The investigation was requested by the board, after charges against its administration had been made by a New York newspaper, Chairman Fess of the Education Committee, told the House.

The DUO-ART PIANOLA

Is the Reproducing Piano They Choose

Practically all the greatest pianists of all the world now record their playing for the Duo-Art Pianola exclusively. They say it is the only instrument that faithfully reproduces every characteristic of their art.

PADEREWSKI says of the Duo-Art Pianola—

"I shall be glad, indeed, to have my playing reproduced with such manifest fidelity."

HOFMANN says—

"The Duo-Art rolls correctly reproduce my phrasing, accent, pedaling and what is more, they are endowed with my personality."

BAUER says—

"In fidelity of reproduction, in brilliancy, power, delicacy, quality and variety of tone the vast superiority of the Duo-Art over all similar instruments is now definitely established."

GANZ says—

"The reproductions by the Duo-Art represent my playing at its best."

GRAINGER says—

"The Duo-Art reproductions are vividly like my playing. The instrument reproduces the artist's most personal characteristics."

The Duo-Art is the only reproducing piano these masters endorse — the only one for which they make rolls. To hear these artists as they wish to be heard you must possess a Duo-Art Pianola.

Several Cars of Deportees.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 20.—Announcement that several carloads of alien deportees are on their way from the Pacific Coast to New York was made today at Ellis Island, but it was explained they were ordinary deportation case, with only a few Anarchists and no Russians among them.

According to Ellis Island officials, most of the deportees are aliens who, after being admitted to the country, were found to be either feebleminded, criminals or likely to become public charges, or otherwise to have violated the immigration laws.

ILLINOIS MINERS CHEER HOWAT'S STRIKE PLAN

Representatives of 90,000 Men Stand After Kansas Leader Makes Declaration.

By the Associated Press.

PEORIA, Ill., March 20.—The 90,000 miners, through representatives in session here today, gave unqualified support of State President Alexander Howat of Kansas today, when he announced a program for the launching of a general miners' strike in Kansas, in defiance of State laws there, which are said to now prohibit strikes of any nature.

Howat, speaking of the Industrial Relations Court, said:

"The law calls for imprisonment of two years and a fine of $5000 for any one who participates in or calls a strike, but come what will, whether or not my bones rot in a prison cell, I am going to fight this law with the forces of 12,000 miners in Kansas and regardless of consequences, give Gov. Allen cause to remember that organized labor must and will have the right to cease work at its will.

"Be the consequences what they may, there is no power on earth, injunction or otherwise, that will make me call off this strike. This strike will be called by me in the very near future.

"Kansas suffered a four-year strike before representatives of organized labor won recognition and this fight is to be repeated soon, repeated solely because the rights of free men to cease work have been denied by Gov. Allen." In pledging Howat their support the delegates rose to their feet and cheered him.

The convention adjourned until Monday when the debate on the question of calling a strike in the Belleville District will be resumed.

CAPT. MILLIGAN, ILL, SWORN IN AS MEMBER OF HOUSE

New Missouri Congressman Was Delayed in St. Louis by Sickness —Service Man Secretary.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Capt. J. L. Milligan, the newly elected member of the Third Missouri District, was sworn in as a member of the House today.

Champ Clark of Missouri escorted Milligan down to the Speaker's desk while the House membership stood and applauded Milligan vigorously for five minutes. Milligan was surrounded by House members making his acquaintance and congratulating him on his victory. Representative Milligan arrived in Washington last night quite sick but insisted on attending the session of the House today.

Following his election he had an attack of influenza which detained him at home for many days. Against Doctor's orders he started to Washington the first of the week, but had a relapse in St. Louis and was confined to a hotel room there for several days.

He still appeared quite sick and weak this morning and, shortly after being sworn in, returned to his rooms to rest. He said he would be all right with a few days' rest.

R. E. Lambert of Princeton, Mo., is his private secretary. He is a former service man as well.

POKER GAME WITH MARKED CARDS REPRODUCED IN COURT

Complainant Shows How New York Manufacturer "Read" Opponent's Hand and Won $5700.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 20.—A stud poker game with marked cards was reproduced in court today during the trial of Louis Krohnberg, a shirt manufacturer, who is charged with obtaining money in a game of chance by fraud.

J. M. Silverman, one of half a dozen complainants, laid before the Magistrate two hands from a deck which he said he took from Krohnberg's home. These proved to have shadings in the fleur de lis design on the backs which indicated the nature of the cards.

Illustrating with the marked deck Silverman testified that Krohnberg saw that the fifth card of a stud hand would make him have two pairs against one pair for his opponent, and thereby won $5700.

DEMPSEY PLEADS NOT GUILTY

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 20.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, and his manager, Jack Kearns, pleaded not guilty today before Judge Robert S. Bean, in the United States District Court, when arraigned on charges of conspiracy to evade the selective draft act. Their preliminary hearing was set for April 3.

The two appeared later before Francis Krull, United States Commissioner, and furnished bonds, Dempsey for $2000 and Kearns for $1000. They were indicted by the Federal grand jury Feb. 27. One indictment accused them of conspiracy in preparing false claims of dependency for Dempsey and a second charged Dempsey with evasion of the draft act. Mrs. Maxine Wayne, Dempsey's divorced wife, was questioned by a grand jury yesterday in connection with charges that a plot was on foot to prevent her from testifying in the draft evasion case.

WILHELM NOW CALLS FOR WINE WHILE SAWING WOOD

By the Associated Press.

AMERONGEN, March 20.—The week of strain following the events in Germany has apparently made a great impression upon the mental and physical condition of the former German Emperor. His nervousness and sleeplessness are increasing and in trying to conceal his emotions the ex-Kaiser behaves in a manner which seems utterly strange to the servants who have cared for his wants since he became an exile here.

Where formerly he drank only light wines at mealtime, the former monarch now calls for wine during the intervals of his wood sawing. His nervous habit of straddling chairs has increased. The exile's anxiety is heightened by the illness of his wife, who for a long time has been a sufferer with mild attacks of heart disease. These attacks recurred frequently this week.

Archduchess Renounces Rights.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, March 20.—Former Archduchess Marie Valerie, granddaughter of the late Emperor Francis Joseph, has renounced her membership in the House of Hapsburg and has given up all prerogatives appertaining to her former position. She did this in order that she might become a citizen of the Austrian Republic.

SCHOOL DISTEMPER GONE FAR ENOUGH, SAYS GEO. P. KNOX

Assistant Superintendent of Instruction, to Retire April 1, Calls Condition Forcing Teachers Out 'Ridiculous.'

George Platt Knox, whose resignation as Assistant Superintendent of Instruction will take effect April 1, yesterday gave out a formal statement on the present condition of school teachers with respect to salaries.

Knox himself resigned to become Superintendent of Education of the International Sunday-School Association, at a salary understood to be considerably in excess of the $5000 a year which he has been receiving here. He has been connected with St. Louis schools for 22 years, beginning as a teacher at Central High School.

Knox says that the "the present distemper has gone far enough," and characterizes the condition which forces teachers into other professions to get enough for a living as "ridiculous." The statement follows:

"The teachers in the public schools of this city are suffering today in a way that hinders them from giving their best service to their pupils. The children of our city schools are thereby seriously suffering at the very time when they most need the best training. Every citizen of this city is affected and should realize his loss. It is perfectly within the control of the public to cure these conditions.

Teachers and Children Suffer.

"Children thrive in an atmosphere of cheerfulness just as surely as plants demand sunshine.

"Anything which deprives the child of the best service of his teacher robs the child of just so much good education.

"No teacher can be particularly cheerful when she is anxious, distracted, resentful or disloyal. There are plenty of problems arising from the attitude, behavior and best efforts of her pupils to claim all her attention. Any elements from outside the immediate problems of the school room which tend to distract, annoy or worry the teacher are disruptive of good teaching and should be prevented or removed.

"Teachers today are so underpaid that with many it is a burning question how they are going to secure the very necessities of life, food, clothing and shelter. We expect the teachers to be well nourished, properly and tastefully dressed and we want them to live in such localities and surroundings that they shall occupy their proper place and exercise their proper influence in society. Some way should be found, and at once, to pay a good living wage to every teacher, and this without their being driven to extremes in self-defense. The Superintendent and the Board of Education propose to spend for salaries all the money that is available. They cannot make money nor can they legitimately borrow it.

Permanent Relief Demanded.

"Unless some better way is found the entire school system must be diverted every fall from its legitimate work of teaching in order to campaign for a special election, good for only one year, to secure money for increased salaries. The splendid committee of public-spirited citizens which last October and November directed the campaign to a successful issue on a narrow margin is entitled to all credit, but not a school room in the city escaped the strain. Every year this must be repeated. Should the issue fail any one year the picture is beyond my power to paint. Such a condition is ridiculous from the standpoint of efficiency.

"Nor should the teachers be forced to the questionable expediency of joining any organization, however worthy, which is not representative of all classes in the community which the teachers serve, and this admittedly in order to secure by indirect but powerful means the necessary living wage. If the teachers must purchase a decent income in this way they must inescapably pay for it, if not in money, then in allegiance. And an obligation to any part of the community, while not to the whole, breeds favoritism and discontent. St. Louis can ill afford to sacrifice its greatest asset by the false economy of low paid teachers.

Other Destructive Elements.

"Other elements are at work which are destructive to the morale of the teachers and so to the best interests of the children. Good teaching is 90 per cent devotion; devotion to her pupils, devotion to her colleagues, devotion to the public at large, which she serves. A disloyal teacher cannot do her best work. Any efforts, however well meant, which tend to break down the loyalty of the members of the teaching corps to the system of which they are a part and to the administrators of the system are ruinous. To whatever extent these disloyal tendencies and efforts are born of self-seeking, of petty prejudices, of an itching for influence, they are no better than treachery.

"To the true teacher there is no higher call than the best interests of her pupils. The teachers of this city I know to be of this high caliber. Give them a good income, let them give their whole attention to the service of the children, to which service they have devoted their lives; prevent unworthy distractions through silly rumors and malicious criticism, and this splendid system will come back with a bound. Teachers will awaken from this nightmare and be glad in the pure sunshine of service.

"The present distemper has gone far enough.

"The welfare of the children of St. Louis demands today on the part of every individual, be he teacher, administrator, representative of the people, city official, or public-spirited citizen, that personal prejudices be forgotten, past mistakes buried and that every reasonable effort be made to restore the splendid teaching corps in the St. Louis public schools to its poise and high purpose.

"In view of rumors that are being circulated to the effect that one cause of my leaving the system is a lack of agreement, or friction, or break with my immediate chief, Superintendent Withers, I desire to say most emphatically that these are false and malicious. There has been no friction, there has been no break, I am not guilty of disloyalty. On the contrary, I am proud to show, and in the past to have shown by my personal and official loyalty to Dr. Withers the highest ideals of my profession. Dr. Withers stands today as one of the foremost constructive educational statesmen of our country, and the further you get from St. Louis the better this fact is known. I am leaving the system to engage in a work which I believe is a supreme call to my greatest life effort in a field worthy the best that any man can give. My leaving is not due to friction with the superintendent. If you can tell me how to say it stronger I will do so.

"Insofar as my work in this city is appreciated by my colleagues and by the public at large, of which I have been given most beautiful evidence in the past few days, I desire to express my profound gratitude. In the same breath may I urge that every possible measure be taken to strengthen and uphold the work of the teachers by restoring their poise, demanding their loyalty and affording a new opportunity for that devotion and skill which has made the school system of St. Louis, I believe, the best in the world."

Heals Running Sores and Conquers Piles

Also Stops All Itching of Eczema Almost Immediately.

"I felt it my duty to write you a letter of thanks for your wonderful Peterson's Ointment. I had a running sore on my left leg for one year. I began to use Peterson's Ointment three weeks ago and now it is healed."—A. C. Gilbrath, 703 Reed Street, Erie, Pa.

I'd rather get a letter like that, says Peterson of Buffalo, than have John D. Rockefeller give me a thousand dollars. It does me a lot of good to be able to be of use to my fellow man.

For years I have been selling through druggists a large box of PETERSON'S OINTMENT for 60 cents. The healing power in this ointment is marvelous. Eczema goes in a few days. Old sores heal up like magic; piles that other remedies do not seem to even relieve are speedily conquered.

It stops chafing in five minutes and for scalds and burns it is simply wonderful. Mail orders filled by Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

Judge & Dolph, E. A. Medler, Enderle Drug Co. and Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. will supply you.

Anemic People Need Blood-Iron Phosphate

Anemic people are usually thin, pale, weak, discouraged, nervous wrecks, showing that lack of iron in the blood is all too frequently accompanied by a run-down, nervous system due to lack of phosphorous. Strength, health, vim, vigor and energy depend almost entirely on making up this deficiency in iron and phosphorous.

Unquestionably one of the best things for this purpose is the great French discovery known among our druggists as Blood-Iron Phosphate. Folks who have tried it say that one five-grain tablet with each meal quickly restores depleted nervous energy, enriches the blood, increases strength, vitality and endurance, and those who are thin usually put on pounds of solid stay-there flesh in a short time.

Inasmuch as Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Dolph Drug Co. and Johnson Bros. Drug Co. and all other druggists are authorized to sell Blood-Iron Phosphate under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back, every thin, weak, nervous or anemic man or woman should give it a trial without delay.

Important—Blood-Iron Phosphate is sold only in original packages, containing enough for three weeks' treatment, at $1.50 per package—only 50 cents a week.

Why We Are Selling Stock

A few months ago we began the manufacture of the BlueBird Electric Clothes Washer with a very small capital. Our sales have far out-distanced our ability to manufacture, because of lack of capital with which to provide factory facilities and carry sufficient materials.

The BlueBird Electric Clothes Washer is sold from coast to coast. It is the best washer on the market. It is nationally advertised. It is the most beautiful washer ever constructed. It is absolutely safe to operate. It has come on the market at the very beginning of a wonderful electrical age.

It is to be followed by other labor-saving electrical household appliances—a full BLUEBIRD line—as rapidly as they can be produced. We are working on the basis of 100,000 machines a year—over $10,000,000 worth—and we need to double our production to care for our trade.

This requires more money.

We are selling $1,000,000 worth of stock in order to provide this additional capital. We have been in business nearly three years, and we have paid dividends averaging 12% annually. We believe this rate will be maintained—and increased.

We are building up surpluses and reserves.

We are building a reputation on the BLUEBIRD trade mark that will be worth much to products that will follow the BlueBird Electric Clothes Washer. St. Louis money is building our product and twelve hundred St. Louis men and women are on our payroll. We have nearly five hundred stockholders in St. Louis.

We are offering stock in either large or small amounts on the basis of one share of preferred stock bearing 8% accumulative dividend and participating with the common up to 12%, together with one share of common stock with a dividend-paying basis of $10.00, for $100. In other words, for each $100 invested the stockholder receives dividends on the basis of $110.

The investment in BLUEBIRD combines safety and profit—what every buyer is looking for. Clip the coupon on the financial page of the Post-Dispatch and mail it today for further information.

2 WOMEN AND MAN CONVICTED IN CHICAGO BLACK HAND CASES

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 20.—Two women and one man were found guilty in Federal Court today of conspiracy and using the mails to defraud in connection with the Black Hand cases which have been pending for more than a year. Two other defendants will be retried, the jury having disagreed, and a sixth was found not guilty. Those convicted were Mrs. Philippa Moarteilo, Mrs. Lucia Naponiello and Vito Petrussi.

During the trial, which lasted more than a month, the Government presented testimony to show that the Black Hand had obtained thousands of dollars by threatening Italians.

Arrest of the gang, officials say, broke up the Black Hand ring which is said to have been responsible for more than 50 murders during the past few years.

SAN CARLO TROUPE TO GIVE WEEK OF OPERA

Repertory at Odeon, Beginning April 5, Will Include "La Forza del Destino."

Eight performances presenting nine different operas will be given at the Odeon by the San Carlo Opera Co. during the week beginning Monday, April 5, it is announced by Fortune Gallo, impresario of the company. The following is the schedule promised for the engagement:

Monday night, Verdi's "Rigoletto."

Tuesday night, Puccini's "Madame Butterfly."

Wednesday matinee, Gounod's "Faust."

Wednesday night, Verdi's "La Forza del Destino."

Thursday night, Puccini's "La Boheme."

Friday night, Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" and Leoncavallo's "I Pagliacci."

Saturday afternoon, Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffman."

Saturday night, Verdi's "Il Trovatore."

All of these operas, with one exception, have been performed here by the San Carlo singers on previous visits. The exception is "La Forza del Destino," the revival of which will be accorded feature prominence.

Miss Sharlow Guest Artist.

Several of the artists are popular of old time with St. Louis audiences. At the head of these is Manuel Salazar, distinguished for his emotional acting as well as his heroic tenor. Other veterans are Giuseppe Agostini and Romeo Boscacci, tenors; Stella de Mette, St. Louis mezzo-soprano; and Pietro de Biasi and Natale Cervi, bassos.

Miss Myrna Sharlow, soprano, a former St. Louisan, who has recently come to the fore as a member of the Chicago Opera Co., has been engaged as a guest artist for the St. Louis season. The roster has been strengthened by the addition of several singers new to this city. Dramatic soprano roles—heretofore a weak spot in the San Carlo organization—will be entrusted to Miss Bula Ray Shull, an American prima donna, who was discovered in a New York studio.

There are two new baritones—Vincente Ballester and Mario Valle. The former is a Spaniard, who is said to have been at one time leading baritone of the Opera Comique in Paris, to have sung at leading opera houses in Italy, Spain and Mexico, and to have made his American debut at the Boston Opera House. Valle is an Italian, whose operatic experience is declared to have ranged from Russia to South America, where he is represented as having sung in casts with Caruso, Galli-Curci, Barrientos and other notables. Rosina Zotta, Italian lyric soprano, is also said to have had experience in her own country and in South America.

The coloratura roles will be in the care of Miss Queena Mario, American soprano and pupil of Mme. Sembrich. Miss Mario's beautiful singing was one of the outstanding features of the San Carlo Company's season last year at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater.

SPECTACULAR PLEA IN BEHALF OF DEBS TO BE MADE IN CAPITAL

Socialist Parade, to End With Call on President at White House, Planned for April 13.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 20.—A "spectacular but dignified" effort to secure the release of Eugene V. Debs from the Atlanta penitentiary will be made in Washington, D. C., April 13, the National Socialist headquarters here, announced today.

Debs was convicted under the espionage act, and imprisoned April 13, 1919.

Delegations of Socialists from all parts of the country will arrive on special trains and march up Pennsylvania avenue carrying placards, and headed by a brass band, according to the plan. The procession will go to the White House where it is planned to have a prearranged conference with the President. General amnesty will be asked for "all Socialists and radicals confined or under prison sentence under espionage act convictions."

At the same time resolutions declaring such amnesty will be introduced in the House and Senate, according to the plan.

THE ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA

Furnishes Accurate Knowledge
On Every Subject Under the Sun

The World's Greatest Authority

THE ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA contains what is probably the best and most reliable information written by the greatest experts on practically every subject known to the human mind. No matter what subject you are interested in, no matter what subject your family or your children are interested in, no matter what subject comes up in your daily papers or your books, you will find that the Britannica gives the most comprehensive information on that subject in its 44,000,000 words. Every phase of a subject is covered. Even the smallest, most obscure information is here in the Britannica, as well as the articles on the great general subjects.

When you read an article in the Encyclopaedia Britannica you feel confident that the information you are obtaining is reliable, for the Britannica was written by the wisest minds of the day, each a specialist in the particular subject upon which he has furnished an article for the Britannica. These writers are either professors in the great institutions of learning in our country and other countries, or are scientific and professional men and women who, by their superior intelligence and research, have acquired far advanced knowledge of their subjects, or, again, they are the great workers of the world—merchants, financiers and practical artisans—who have in many cases achieved startling success in their particular lines of work. They write in a clear, concise manner which every member of your family can understand. You will be surprised how interesting and fascinating are the articles in the Britannica, and you will have many hours of profit and pleasure from a set of this great work.

Your Country Needs Your Help in the Solution of the Great Problems Left by the War

We are now in a period of reconstruction in America as well as Europe. We must reconstruct and modify our industrial, social and political life to meet the new conditions as a result of the war.

The gravest questions that ever confronted a nation must now be met, and you will have to help settle these questions as a citizen of a democracy. For example: Shall we retain our high tariff or shall we operate on a free trade basis? Shall we wipe out our enormous national debt in one or two generations or shall we extend it over a comparatively long period? Shall we adopt universal training or maintain a large standing army? Shall we place under permanent Federal control the railroads, telephone, telegraph and express companies or shall we keep them under private ownership? Shall this nation become more autocratic or tend toward Socialism? What will mean the greatest prosperity and happiness to the people?

These questions deeply concern you. A citizen today who is informed and is able to talk intelligently on problems of national importance will be sought out for his advice, and he is certain to play a large part in the solution of these questions.

There is no work that will give you the amount of reliable, accurate information so readily accessible as the great Encyclopaedia Britannica. The Britannica for a century and a half has been the basis of the reading, the very foundation of the knowledge on which the leading men, the statesmen of each generation have based their judgment for the solution of the national problems of their day. You, as a citizen of this great nation, living in the day of the greatest crisis of its history, should do no less than put yourself in a position adequately to answer and pass intelligent judgment on the questions that are so vital to the country and the happiness and welfare of its people.

Give Your Child a Fair Chance in the World

Who are the men and women in each generation who have stood head and shoulders above their fellow men and who have won the most notable success? They are the men and women who, as children, have educated themselves beyond the station to which they were born. Abraham Lincoln was the best educated lawyer in his town, and he continued throughout his life probably the best posted man in his generation, because he read and read and read. You insist that your child has brains, but you should help that child develop its brains, and give him every advantage possible, within your means, so that when he becomes ready to go out to do his work in the world, he is not handicapped by lack of education. Your son or daughter may be handicapped by lack of money, but no educated man or woman considers the lack of money a serious handicap. What he or she does fear, however, and rightly, is the lack of education. Education is the path that leads to achievement, to a larger life and to greater success. Put in your child's hands the Encyclopaedia Britannica, the world's storehouse of knowledge, which has been the guide to the education of millions of men and women. It will inspire your child to learn, and it will furnish him with a great teacher on many thousands of subjects.

MONKEY GLAND COMEDY AT AMERICAN TONIGHT

"Angel Face" Utilizes Most Recent Phase of Ancient Myth of Elixir of Youth.

During last year Dr. Serge Voronoff, head of the physiological laboratories of the College of France, announced that he had grafted a gland from a young and vigorous chimpaneze upon "a man 80 years old, who was virtually in a state of decreptitude." The result, according to the enthusiastic scientist's proclamation to the world, was that the doddering subject of the experiment was seemingly restored to "the physical and mental powers of a young man of 30."

This most recent phase of the ancient "fountain of youth' delusion was annexed by Harry B. Smith as the theme of a musical comedy, for which Victor Herbert did not disdain to supply the tunes. Under the title of "Angel Face" it was produced last December at the Knickerbocker Theater in New York. After three months the show was sentenced to the provinces, and arrives tonight at the American Theater, its first stopping place on the tour.

At the Shubert-Jefferson tonight, Louis Mann begins the second and last week of the local engagement of "Friendly Enemies," the first, most long-lived and most successful financially of all the war plays. The subject is the conversion of a pro-German to 100 per cent Americanism. Last week's audiences seemed to find the play's chief appeal in the comic supplement humor of its lines, rather than in its patriotic melodrama.

This week's headliner at the Orpheum is Fritzi Scheff, former light opera star.

Music by Victor Herbert.

In "Angel Face" various comical confusions are made to arise from the administration of the monkey-gland elixer. Additional plots are interwoven and vaudeville features are introduced. An important counterplot introduces Angel Face, alias Betty, whose real name is not given on the program—the press agent waggishly inviting the public to suggest a stage name for the mysterious actress. Dramatic sleuths in New York identified her as Miss Marguerite Zender of Lima, Ill., a pupil of Herbert Witherspoon. The scaffolding of the musical structure is a ditty entitled "I Might Be Your Once-in-a-While," and there are many other numbers of the usual Herbert melodiousness. The cast is that of the New York production, including John E. Young, William Cameron, Minerva Grey, Tyler Brooke and Jack Donahue.

Supporting Fritzi Scheff on the Orpheum bill will be Imhoff, Conn and Coreene in a farce, "The Pest House;" Muriel Window, "the little peacock of vaudeville;" Ernest Evans and a company of girls in society dance act; Martin Webb, in "Cousin Giuseppe;" the Jazzland Naval Octette; Joe Towle, monologist; and the Van Cellos, in "foot feats."

Ruth Chatterton Next Week.

The American Theater, beginning Monday night of next week, will present Ruth Chatterton in "Moonlight and Honeysuckle," a comedy of the current season by George Scarborough, while the Shubert-Jefferson, next Sunday night, will offer Roi Cooper Megrue's comedy, "Tea for Three," with a cast including Arthur Byron, Laura Hope Crews and Frederick Perry.

Eddie Foy (himself) and the younger Foys lead the week's bill at the Empress Theater. At Loew's Garrick, for the first half of the week, the featured act is "The Singing Teacher," a musical number, presenting Homer Lind and a company. At the Gayety is offered "Hip Hip Hooray," and at the Standard, "The Pacemakers."

90 PER CENT OF 22,000 SERVICE MEN FOR $50 BOND BONUS

Four Plans Voted on in Registration in Nation-Wide Canvas—Meeting at Armory Today.

Only four ex-service men of about 22,000 who registered during the last week at the bonus registration office of the American Legion at Seventh and Olive streets signified that they were opposed to the plan of awarding a bonus to every ex-service man. The office, which opened Monday, closed at 9 o'clock last night. About 8000 registered yesterday.

A canvas as far as possible of all who served in the war has been taken by the American Legion throughout the country, and the vote of the men will be reported to the Executive Committee of the legion, which will confer with the Ways and Means Committee at Washington tomorrow. Four plans of awarding the bonuses are being considered; a land settlement for each man, the loan of money to buy a home, a course of vocational training, or the gift of a $50 Government bond. About 90 per cent of the men voted for the award of the bond.

J. J. Noonan, trustee of Quentin Roosevelt Post, and George H. Rauschkolb were in charge of the St. Louis office.

Quentin Roosevelt Post will have charge of the distribution of 800 Missouri Service Medals issued by the Adjutant-General's office at a mass meeting at the Armory, 220 South Grand avenue, this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Several thousands have applied for the medals, but only 800 have been received thus far for distribution.

Adjutant-General H. C. Clark will make the presentation address. Col. J. H. Parker of the army recruiting office will preside, and Mayor Kiel will also speak.

Registration on the bonus subject will be continued at the meeting.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 20.—The Evening Post, in its weekly financial review, says:

"Whatever may be said regarding the character of this week's Stock Exchange movement, the fact will remain that the market has advanced. There was no talk in Wall Street of lower prices, and the fact of an upward tendency was all the more interesting, because it appeared in the face of an extremely adverse money market.

"Anyone who could surely predict what the money situation will be in May or in September, or in December, would possibly have the key to the future of the stock market. But the trouble is that money rates have already moved this year in a way which makes it impossible to judge that market by experience or precedent. When the rate for time loans, instead of declining rapidly in January and February, goes above December, and touches the highest rate of very many years, and when New York bank reserves, instead of expanding to the largest surplus of 12 months (as they invariably do in January and February) fall to a lower point even than last autumn, it is only an easy matter to guess what will happen to them in months when money stringency is usual.

"Nevertheless, the stock market's recovery is not hard to understand. Recent years have established a curiously regular precedent regarding the financial community's attitude in the first eight or nine weeks of a new year. Partly, no doubt, because the old year has usually ended with an extravagant speculation for the rise, its ending has been immediately followed by a period of lassitude and despondency. It is the headache after the orgie.

The Wall Street View.

"Wall Street's view of the financial and economic situation during the two first months of 1920, did not differ greatly from its view in the similar period of 1919 or 1918, or even 1917 or 1916. During the war the financial mind used to meditate, at such times, on the imminent collapse of the 'munitions industries,' or Germany's submarine plans. A year ago it was the coming 'perpendicular decline' in prices of American products. This year it has been alternately the stopping of our own country's export trade and the 'breakdown of Europe.

"It has happened on all previous occasions of the sort, not only that Wall Street was brought gradually to understand how far it was mistaken about the actual situation, but that distinctly favorable developments of a concrete nature came into view.

"It has at last been discovered by Wall Street, on the present occasion, that our export trade is not being cut in two and that Europe is not about to plunge into economic ruin.

"Probably the season's accumulating pessimism reached its height about the time that sterling exchange touched $3.18. The 65-cent recovery that followed has been partly cause and partly effect of the cheering up of the financial mind. But meantime, as happened in the similar circumstances during previous years, such events as the enactment of the railway law, its acceptance by labor and capital, two or three conservative decisions by the Supreme Court, the failure of an attempt at a general strike in France, and at a military revolt in Germany, have occurred in fairly rapid succession. These have been object lessons with which to emphasize the general truth that the situation was not at all what Wall Street had imagined in its gloomy moments.

"How much success Wall Street will have in reflecting these new and more cheerful impressions, not only through a 'retreat of the bear interests,' but through a continuous rise in prices, probably depends in a large degree than usual on other matters than the political or industrial news. Prudent people will continue to watch the rate for 60-day loans and the weekly 'reserve ratio' of the Federal Banks."

Foreign Exchange.

NEW YORK, March 20.—The reaction which occurred in the foreign exchange market in the late trading yesterday continued this morning. Sterling was in supply at the opening and had a further decline of 1 cent to 3.70¾. French also showed a material decline and Italy, which had been recently sustained a further substantial loss. Today's closing prices of exchange on all the principal foreign markets were as follows: Sterling demand, 3.70¾; cables, 3.70¾; commercial, 60 days, 3.73; bankers, 90 days, 3.74; commercial, 90 days, 3.73. Francs checks, 15.77

WIDE GAINS SCORED IN THE CORN MARKET

Trading Is Very Active During the Week; Oats in Demand and Higher.

Grain products went skyward in value here last week. Announcement by Eastern railroads were to support Chicago shippers with 3000 cars was immediately responsible. New top-record prices, however, led to subsequent weakness. Compared with a week ago, corn quotations yesterday showed a net advance of 3½c to 4¼c, oats were up ⅝c to ⅞c. As the day progressed, however, corn dropped 3c and oats 1¾c.

Bulls in the corn market, checked temporarily by uncertainties of the German Government crisis, made up for lost time as soon as word came that greatly enlarged shipments from here were in prospect. Liverpool cables telling of resumption of trading in corn futures were also construed as favoring an advance.

Bullish sentiment was further stimulated by Congress approving the sale of flour to Europe on credit, by reports of Bubonic plague in Argentina, and by the extreme meagerness of the stock of corn on hand. Finally though, it was said Eastern distributors were canceling purchases and there was a sudden backset in prices, simultaneous with nearly complete stoppage of speculative demand. Yesterday's rally was on reports of dry weather over the winter wheat belt.

Oats ascended with corn, and reached the top price of the season. Yesterday's market was strong.

CLOSING QUOTATIONS STRONG ON CHICAGO CORN MARKET

CHICAGO, March 20.—Apprehension of damage to the wheat crop in the Southwest gave a smart upturn today to the price of corn. Closing quotations were strong, 2¾c to 3¾c higher, with May $1.52¾ to $1.53⅝ and July $1.48¾ to $1.48⅞. Oats gained 1 cent to 1¼c, and provisions 15c to 50c.

Corn opened weak, but soon began to rally. Free selling on the part of commission houses was responsible for the initial declines. An impression was prevalent that the recent advances had been overdone, and that corn could no longer be profitable to feed. Talk of a federal investigation of the upward move in the market of late was also a bearish factor. Setbacks today, however, found ready to take profits, and it only needed a moderate stimulus to send values higher again. The incentive was supplied by reports that dry weather Southwest threatened the wheat crop in that section, and that the forecast was fair and warmer. Week-end cleaning-up of trades contributed to make demand unusually brisk at the last.

Strength of oats was for the most part in response to the action of corn. Provisions rallied with grain. The market was also influenced more or less by speculating stocks.

Composer De Koven's Widow Tells of Talks With Her Dead Sister

Intimate View of Life in "The Beyond" Given in Messages Through Medium—None Sees Christ but His Spirit Is All-Pervasive.

ONE of the most interesting contributions to the literature of spiritualistic experience made during the present revival of interest in the subject is "A Cloud of Witnesses," by Mrs. Anna De Koven, widow of Reginald De Koven, composer of "Robin Hood" and other operas. This book has just been published by E. P. Dutton & Co. of New York.

Through the psychic mediation of a Mrs. Vernon, who is described as the wife of a New York business man and who gives her services without money and without price, she has found herself numbers of times in communication with her dead sister and her father, she believes, and has had direct news of her mother. The story of these mystic interviews she tells with a tender insistence upon their genuineness.

MRS. ANNA DE KOVEN.

"A Cloud of Witnesses" has an introduction by Dr. James H. Hyslop, president of the American Society for Psychical Research, and a first chapter reviewing the history of psychic progress in modern times.

The most interesting feature of the communications recorded in this book is that they give more than the customary obscure information as to how people live and what they do in the other world.

Mrs. de Koven is the author of several books, including a "Life of John Paul Jones." Her father, Charles B. Farwell, was United States Senator from Illinois. She is a graduate of Lake Forest University. Her husband died Jan. 16, last, in Chicago. Her book apparently was written before his death, and he does not appear as one of the spirit communicators.

Most of the messages are supposed to be from a beautiful and talented sister of Mrs. de Koven, who died in the spring of 1918. Mrs. de Koven says that until after her sister's death she never had seriously investigated reported messages from the unseen nor read anything on the subject of psychic phenomena nor visited a clairvoyant.

The first messages, Mrs. de Koven reports, were definitely characteristic of her parents and sister, and information was given of things then unknown to her but verified as the weeks passed. This led Mrs. de Ko-

Destroy the Germs and Catarrh Will Quickly Go

If you want to relieve stuffed-up head in five minutes and get rid of crusts in the nose, discharge of mucus, watery eyes, sneezing and spitting, start to breathe HYOMEI today.

Catarrh with all its disgusting symptoms is caused by germs or microbes. Go today and get a HYOMEI (pronounce it High-o-me) outfit, pour a few drops of HYOMEI into the little hard rubber pocket inhaler, breathe it and begin at once to kill the microbes that cause the trouble.

For aggravated cases of catarrh or a cough or a cold or sore throat, be sure and use the HYOMEI vapor treatment in conjunction with the inhaler. Here it is:

Every night before going to bed pour a teaspoonful of HYOMEI into a bowl three-quarters full of boiling water; cover head and bowl with towel and breathe for five minutes, the pleasant, soothing and healing vapor that arises.

It doesn't take long for a cold to run into catarrh; use HYOMEI at once and get immediate relief. HYOMEI is an antiseptic that soothes and heals the inflamed condition of the membranes, besides killing the germs. For catarrh, acute or chronic, for sore throat, asthma, coughs, colds and croup, HYOMEI is sold by money-back plan.

MRS. DE KOVEN TELLS OF TALKS WITH HER DEAD SISTER

ven to continue her meetings with Mrs. Vernon regularly up to this time. Mrs. de Koven always writing down the messages received. She says that Mrs. Vernon's mediumistic gifts consist in what is called clairvoyance and clairaudience; that is, the medium sees projected images and sometimes what seem to be the actual forms and familiar gestures of surviving personalities and hears what these beings say. She is never entranced, being always conscious of and interested in the demonstrations of her powers.

In one of the early sittings, Mrs. de Koven writes, her sister recalled to her a golf match they had played at Aiken, describing the course and referring to a particular ground rule which had enabled the two to win the match. The sister was usually a light-hearted and fun-making spirit, as she had been in life.

"Reggie with his charm is more congenial to me than Cousin John," she said at one of the sittings, and laughed. "Why should I be with Cousin John? I would rather be around here and do whatever good I can, so they let me. I have not reached the holy stage where I can agree to seeing Cousin John. Mamma is still struggling with me spiritually; she will win out in time."

Through Mrs. Vernon, Mrs. de Koven asked her sister if she knew her (Mrs. de Koven's) thoughts. The answer was: "Absolutely, whenever I choose." The voice also said: "It is difficult to describe how the viewpoint changes over here. We have different ideas of proportions. In the company of benign spirits the object seems to be individual development, the obliteration of selfish and egotistical desires and above all an almost divine toleration of human weaknesses. I am learning, or trying to learn, these things. When the curtain goes down on a play one does not disturb oneself about what goes on behind the scenes. * * * I still have a good many human traits and an abiding detestation of funereally religious people. Over here there is none of it. Not a bit of it—in the particular group with which I am associated. There is merriment and happiness and lightheartedness, with the greatest possible degree of spirituality. All spirits are not like that; I am in contact with a group of very high development."

Practical Questions Asked.

Mrs. de Koven asked practical questions. One of them was, "Do you sleep and what do you do?" and the answer: "We divide time between consultations as to the best methods of communication and rejoicing over satisfactory results; and what we call charitable incursions to other planes to uplift and console despairing and lonely souls. This group which has control of these veridical communications is a very ancient one and therefore only privileged newcomers are allowed to enter it. * * * This group of controls is a wonderful group. It is the imperator group, and it has been supplemented by such a man as Frederick Myers and Edwin Friend."

Mr. Myers has been mentioned by Sir Oliver Lodge as one of his spirit informants. Edwin Friend went down with the Lusitania while carrying some of Mrs. Vernon's messages to England.

Family Traits Told Truly.

The identity believed by Mrs. de Koven to be the spirit of her sister conversed at the tenth sitting so intimately about the traits of her family that Mrs. de Koven's "last lingering subconscious doubt" vanished. The record of this is given in the book. On another occasion Mrs. de Koven asked her sister if the latter's twin brother, who died in childhood, had grown up.

The reply was not exactly responsive. The voice speaking through the medium said: "He presents a radiant aura, he defends me from impertinent spirits, he paraphrases my thoughts for me; it is all so different here and experience counts for a great deal. He is in loving attendance on me now. In a way we are really very happy because it is so peaceful. No social amenities to speak of; no social enemies at all. One's development determines one's surroundings and the only snobs are those who dislike spiritual regulations. They thrust their egotistical auras before them and are easily eluded."

Mrs. de Koven was told that the other world was "a world of symbols, very difficult to describe to the material mind." There were symbols of hills and streams for those whose choice led them to hills and streams. Undeveloped souls were "transported by symbols of wine glasses and material gratifications."

"We do inhabit the ether; we are ethereal beings; we can preside at the conjunction of sun, moon and stars if we choose," said the voice, speaking through Mrs. Vernon. The earth attracts most of those in my realm because we all have loved ones there, but more ancient souls prefer the Hebrides, Pleiades, Hesperides."

"Are you happy?" Mrs. de Koven asked.

"We Float in Ether."

"We float in the ether."

"Can that be a happy condition?"

"It is a superlatively happy conditions to those who have found their souls, not surely for the materialista."

"Is there a spiritual body?"

"We can assume at will the semblance of ourselves."

In June, 1918, the spirit, if such it was, said that Britannia may rule the ocean, but America will rule the land; that the Americans should not get all the credit, as "the others have borne the brunt" and "it should be a handshake all around." Other information was that children who died long ago are in a different realm, but can be seen and visited. Mrs. de Koven's sister was, while speaking, in the same ether, "like being in a room above another."

"We project ourselves from a distance," said the voice. "It is just

Eye Specialist and Medical Author Report on Wonderful Remedy to Strengthen Eyesight

Say It Strengthens Eyesight 50% in One Week's Time in Many Instances

New York.—Dr. Smith, a well-known eye specialist, and Dr. Judkins, a Massachusetts physician and medical author, make the following reports after a thorough test of a popular remedy for the eyes:

Says Dr. Smith: "When my attention was first called to it I was inclined to be skeptical. But it is a rule of mine to give every new treatment a chance to prove its value. Having specialized in eye work for many years, I feel qualified to express an intelligent opinion on remedies for the eyes. Since this one has created such a sensation I welcomed the opportunity to test it. I began to use it in my practice a little over a year ago, and I am frank to say that some of the results I have accomplished with Bon-Opto not only astonish myself, but also other physicians with whom I have talked about it, and I advise every thoughtful physician to give Bon-Opto the same careful trial I have and there is no doubt in my mind that he will come to the conclusion I have, that it opens the door for the cure of many eye troubles which have heretofore been difficult to cope with. I have had individuals who had worn glasses for years tell me they have dispensed with them through the use of Bon-Opto. In my own practice I have seen it strengthen the eyesight more than 50 per cent in one week's time. I have also used it with surprising results in cases of work-strained eyes, pink eye, inflamed lids, catarrhal conjunctivities, smarting, painful aching, itching eyes, eyes weakened from colds, smoke, sun, dust and wind, watery eyes, blurred vision and, in fact, many other conditions too numerous to mention in this report. In new cases, striking cases that has just been brought to my attention is that of a girl 12 years old. Two prominent eye specialists after a thorough examination decided, according to her father, that in order to save the sight of her right eye, the left must be removed. While awaiting an opportunity for the operation and still undecided as to the wisdom of the latter, I was told it would do no harm to use Bon-Opto. In less than three days a marked improvement was noticed. At the end of a week the inflammation had almost disappeared, and at the end of six weeks the eye was pronounced saved. Just think what the saving of that eye means to this little girl! Another case is that of a lady 93 years old. She came to me with dull vision and extreme inflammation of the lids and the conjunctiva was almost raw. After two weeks' use of Bon-Opto the lids were absolutely normal and her eyes are as bright as many a girl of 16."

Dr. Judkins, Massachusetts physician and medical author, formerly chief of clinics in the Union General Hospital, Boston, Mass., and formerly house surgeon at the New England Eye and Ear Infirmary of Portland, Maine, says:

"I have found occulists too prone to operate and opticians too willing to prescribe glasses, while neglecting the simple formulas which form the basis of Bon-Opto which, in my opinion, is a remarkable remedy for the cure and prevention of many eye disorders. Its success in developing and strengthening the eyesight will soon make eyeglasses old fashioned and the use of Bon-Opto as common as that of the toothbrush. I am thoroughly convinced from my experience with Bon-Opto that it will strengthen the eyesight at least 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances."

Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses and many who wear glasses will be glad to know that according to Drs. Smith and Judkins there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored by this remarkable remedy and many who once wore glasses say they have laid them aside. One man says after using it:

"I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me. A lady who used it says: "The atmospheres seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for 15 days everything seems clear. I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eyestrain, caused by overworked, tired eyes which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years, both for distance and close work, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now and have discarded my long-distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited in this easy manner. Go to any drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Dissolve one tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and use from two to four times a day. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you even a little, it is your duty to take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have saved their sight if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE: Another prominent physician, to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Yes, the Bon-Opto prescription is truly a wonderful remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. I have used it very successfully in my own practice on patients whose eyes were strained through overwork or need glasses. It is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." Bon-Opto, referred to above, is not a patent medicine or a secret remedy. It is an ethical preparation, the formula being printed on the package. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It is dispensed under guaranty by all good druggists in this city, including The Enderle, Johnson Bros., Paules, Judge & Dolph and Wolff-Wilson Stores.

ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.

DR. CANNADAY

Eczema Specialist for 15 Years.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone, ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, blame yourself. No matter where you live, have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now, your very life may be at stake.

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and cleansing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 10c and 25c.

SIR OLIVER LODGE TO LECTURE THIS WEEK

English Scientist Will Speak at Odeon on Communication With Dead.

Sir Oliver Lodge, the noted English scientist whose announcement two years ago that he had been in communication with the dead, started a discussion in scientific and religious circles that has continued with unflagging interest, will lecture here Thursday afternoon and Friday evening, at the Odeon, on that subject.

His first announcement was that he had held communication with his son, Raymond, who was killed in the war. Not only has he stood upon that statement, but has since asserted that he has communicated with other departed persons whom he had known during life. The Thursday lecture will begin at 3 o'clock, and the subject will be, "The Continuity of Existence." He will speak Friday night at 8:15 o'clock, on "The Evidence for Survival."

His first set of conclusions were contained in his book, "Raymond, or Life After Death," which has had a wide circulation in Europe and this country. From time to time since its appearance, he has made announcements respecting the messages which he claimed to have received from "those on the other side."

Sir Oliver is a physicist. His discoveries in wireless telegraphy preceded those of Marconi, and he is credited with devising the first practical wireless set. He has made many other discoveries of prime importance in physics. As has been pointed out by his critics, however, he does not rely mainly upon physics, the science with which he is most familiar, for proofs of life after death.

He has been in America several weeks, and has lectured to large audiences in Eastern cities.

GOV. MORROW TO ADDRESS KENTUCKY SOCIETY FRIDAY

With His Wife, He Will Spend Entire Day in St. Louis; Program for Entertainment.

Gov. and Mrs. Edwin T. Morrow of Kentucky are to be guests of the Kentucky Society of St. Louis next Friday, and will spend the entire day here.

Upon their arrival they will be guests of the society at breakfast in the Hotel Jefferson, and at noon they will be guests of honor, together with Gov. and Mrs. Gardner, at the weekly members' conference luncheon of the society in the Planters Hotel. At 7 o'clock that night at the St. Louis Club a dinner will be given at which Gov. Morrow will make the principal address.

Breckinridge Jones has been appointed chairman of the committee for the entertainment of the visitors and has named as his aids Gov. Gardner, William G. Boyd, Ward Goodloe and Cliff R. Croninger.

as if there was a central telephone office, with an operator who calls up a number, and the personalities are allowed to speak along the wires; without this operator we would be impotent. * * * The spiritual proximity may be of the closest character, but even through the wall there cannot be clear communication without the telephone, no matter how close it is. This is the exact condition."

The operators of this "central exchange" were "groups of beings who might almost be called overcharged electrically, overcharged dynamos, sensitive, magnetic."

Another question was: "Do you construct houses?" and the first part of the answer: "Start sets of vibrations, which must be rythmical; then we construct. When we wish to build a house these constructional vibrations which we use correspond to our physical manual efforts on earth." After daily instruction from her twin brother Mrs. de Koven's sister returned to a "sort of hall, a far more material place, a sort of community house," where is "confusion and much coming and going."

Hotel for First Arrivals.

"Is this house like a hotel?" Mrs. de Koven inquired. The reply: "A place for transients; they come in numbers and they go on. There are material abodes provided for the requirements of material souls to whose brains the earth is still clinging."

The speaker described the first few moments after her death, saying:

"Food is given to material spirits; a sort of flaky stuff like snow was given to me. A blow, as if I had been knocked down, prostrated. This revived me and enabled me to collect myself. Prostrated by the shock of going over suddenly."

"Who gave you this food?"

"A man with a gray beard and clad in a white garment. He chose to assume this venerable appearance because it was more comforting. The first thing I saw was this venerable man. Then to my restricted vision there appeared relays of benign spirits whom I first took to be nurses, as they were clad in white. They bent over me and ministered to me in words of ineffable sweetness and wisdom, explaining that death was like birth, entailing a separation from previous conditions, a wrench."

"One can sew over here, but it seems futile," this voice added. On another day Mrs. de Koven asked her sister if any souls saw Christ. "None that I have ever met have seen Him," was the reply, but she said "the Christ spirit pervades the universe from the darkest depths of the earth to celestial spheres."

PILES CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE
By Dr. Henrich's Method
TO STAY CURED
No Cutting. No Pain. No Chloroform. No Hospital. No Danger. No Loss of Time. Consultation and Examination Free—Tell Your Friends.

TO SUFFERERS OF PILES.

I have been a sufferer of Piles for a number of years; I used ointments and so-called "Pile Cures," but got no permanent relief. After years of suffering I gave in, as I was completely run down in health. Dr. Henrich examined me and guaranteed me a positive cure; I took his treatment which is painless and am glad to say he gave me new life; his treatment never kept me from my daily work.

If you are a sufferer of Piles, you are doing a great injury to yourself by letting it run on. See Dr. Henrich as soon as you can, place yourself in his hands and he will make you feel 100 per cent better. Don't be afraid to see him, his treatment is one in which he never uses a knife. I appreciate what he has done for me and cannot praise him too highly.

I would consider it a pleasure to corroborate this reference if you drop me a card to the address below.

F. J. COSTELLO JR., 824 N. Market St., St. Louis, Mo.

What I have done for Mr. Costello and hundreds of others the past 25 years, I can do for you, because "The Henrich Cure is Safe and Sure." Don't wait until your case of Piles or other Rectal Disease develops into Cancer or Consumption; too many such cases came into my hands the past three years which was unnecessary if they would have only called on me a few years sooner. I also advise all sufferers from Piles or Fistula to start taking my wonderful treatment now, before the hot weather comes, so you can enjoy the good old summer time.

You cannot get such a reliable, painless and successful treatment anywhere else than in my office, so don't let anyone experiment on you with electricity, home remedies and patent medicines; if you do, you will lose valuable time, money and health. Call any day except Thursday afternoon for a Free Examination and Advice.

ANOTHER TONE-TEST

With the NEW EDISON at Sheldon Auditorium

SATURDAY EVENING, APRIL 3d

Sybil Sanderson Fagan Claire Lillian Peteler

Sybil Sanderson Fagan, Whistler, in Test With the New Edison

Claire Lillian Peteler, Soprano, in Test With the New Edison

The tone-test is the proof acid-test of a phonograph.

The artist sings. Then suddenly ceases to sing—and the New Edison takes up the same song alone. Is there any difference between the living voice and that voice as Re-Created by the New Edison?

4000 such tone-tests have been given.

50 different artists have made them.

3 million people have heard them.

In every test, human ear has been unable to detect any difference between living voice and Re-Created voice.

What other phonograph manufacturer dare claim this—much less guarantee it?

Insist upon seeing this Laboratory Model of the New Edison. Let us give you Edison's unique Tone-Test. Let us show you clippings from America's leading newspapers which substantiate all we say about the New Edison.

SYMPHONY PRICES ARE ADVANCED ANOTHER PEG

Increases of 10 to 25 Per Cent Announced for Next Season —Week's Concerts.

The high cost of music will be strained to a still shriller pitch next season, according to an announcement by the management of the Symphony Orchestra. Boxes, which have been $200 for the season, will be advanced to $250. Parquet seats will cost $22.50 instead of $20, and balcony seats, formerly ranging from $9 to $15, will be $10, $12 and $16.

Four soloists for next season have already been engaged. They are Fritz Kreisler, most adored of violinists; Emilo de Gogorza, veteran baritone; Sophie Braslau, contralto of the Metropolitan Opera Co., and Benno Moiseiwitsch, a young Russian pianist, who has won remarkable laurels this season in the East.

At this afternoon's popular concert at the Odeon, the orchestra will make its last appearance of the season 1919-20. David Pesetzki, a young man rapidly coming to the fore among local pianists, will be the soloist, playing the first movement of Rubinstein's fourth concerto with the orchestra, and a group of solos. Director Zach has arranged the following program:

Lalo.....Overture to Le Roi d'Ys
Rebikoff.....Autumn Leaves
Rubinstein—Concerto for piano, No. 4, D minor, Op. 70. (First movement only.)
Delibes—Pizzicatti and Valse from the ballet, Sylvia.
MacDowell—Poem Erotique (The Poet's Dream), No. 6, Op. 31.
Piano solos—
Chopin.....Cradle Song
Gounod-Liszt .....Valse de Faust
Wagner.....Oventure to Rienzi

Flonzaley's Tuesday Night.

The Flonzaley Quartet, who now stand without a rival in their own field and of whom it has been said, "They play more like angels than men," will be heard Tuesday evening at the Sheldon auditorium. The members of this distinguished chamber music ensemble remain unchanged: Adolfo Betti, first violin; Alfred Pochon, second violin; Louis Bailly, viola, and Iwan d'Archambeau, 'cellist. The program will include two strikingly contrasted numbers—two movements from a quartet on negro themes, by Daniel Gregory Mason, played from manuscript; and a sonata for two violins and violoncello, by J. M. Leclair, a French composer of the eighteenth century. The program in detail is as follows:

Mozart...Quartet in D major (K 575)
1. Allegretto
2. Andante
3. Menuetto
4. Allegretto

Mason—Quartet on Negro Themes, Op. 19 (MS.) (Two movements only.)
Larghetto tranquillo
Allegro scherzando

Leclair—Sonata a Tre, for two violins and violoncello.
Largamente; Fuga; Adagio; Presto.

Smetana—Quartet in E minor (from My Life).
1. Allegro vivo appassionato
2. Allegro moderato, a la polka
3. Largo sostenuto
4. Vivace

Gusikoff-Steindel Recital.

Echoes of the symphony season will be heard in two concerts arranged by members of the orchestra. On Wednesday night, at the Odeon, a recital will be given by Michel Gusikoff, concertmaster, and H. Max Steindel, first 'cellist, assisted by Mrs. David Kreigshaber, pianist. On next Sunday afternoon, at the Odeon, at popular concert prices, a novel recital will be given by the city's first woodwind ensemble, consisting of the following members of the orchestra: John F. Kiburz, first flute; Adolph Bertram, first oboe; Tony P. Sarli, first clarinet; Domenico Delledonne, bassoon; Pellegrine Lecce, first French horn; Mme. Ida Delledonne, harp, and Frederick Fischer, pianist and director.

The program for the Gusikoff-Steindel concert will be as follows:

Grieg—Sonata for violoncello and piano, Op. 36.
Tschaikowsky—Concerto for violin and piano, D major, Op. 35.
Solos for violoncello—
Gounod.....Hymne a Sainte Cecile
Popper .....Serenade
Jeral .....Gypsy Dance
Solos for violin—
Rachmaninoff .....Romance
Kramer .....Chant Negre
Burleigh .....Molto perpetuo

Arensky—Trio for violin, violoncello and piano, D minor, Op. 32. (Third and fourth movements only.)

A lecture on "The Folk Spirit in Modern Music" was delivered by Victor Lichtenstein before the Amateur Musical Club of Peoria, Ill., on March 12. Illustrations were given at the piano by Miss Margary Cunningham of St. Louis. Among her selections were Charles Wakefield Cadman's little known Sonata in A Major, and a fantastic conceit in tone, "Will o' the Wisp," by Max Gottschalk, St. Louis composer.

The monthly musicale at the City Club was held at noon yesterday, the soloist being Mrs. Clarence Robbins, soprano, with Mrs. Julie Stevens Bacon at the piano.

GROW DISEASELESS PLANTS

Cambridge (England) Scientists Also Develop a Triple-Yield Wheat.

CAMBRIDGE, England.—Cambridge University botanists maintain that it is now possible to breed disease-proof plants. A special body of investigators who have been devoting themselves to the practical testing of the Mendelian heredity law, are engaged in immunising wheat, oats, barley, potatoes and roots, the results of which will be shown in the summer to a distinguished assembly of medical men.

The "plant doctors," as they are called, have already succeeded in breeding a new wheat known as "Yeoman," which has yielded 13 quarters (96 bushels) to the acre—three times an ordinary crop.

PESKY BED BUGS

A MILLION BEDBUGS. Just think, a 35c package of the new spider chemical P. D. Q. (Pesky Devils' Quietus) is enough to make a quart and enough to kill a million bed bugs, no matter how large they may be, where they came from, their sex, color or pet, and at the same time leaves a coating on their nests and prevents hatching.

CUT THIS OUT. This new chemical can be had at any first-class drug store. A 35-cent package makes a quart of P. D. Q. and will go further than a barrel of old-fashioned bug killer. Don't let anybody impose upon your intelligence by offering you something else. Insist on what you ask for, then you'll have what doctors prescribe.

KILLS FLEAS ON DOGS. It's fun to see the fleas drop off your pet dogs.

KILLS CHICKEN LICE. It's fine for your chickens to have lice. A 35c package mixed makes a gallon of chicken lice killer. Sold by Johnson Bros., Jones & Dolph, Wells-Wilson and other leading druggists.

STRIKERS IN RUSSIA WOULD BE SHOT, UNION HEAD SAYS

Moscow Walkout Would Be Regarded as Treason—Membership of Russian Organizations 3,000,000.

QUARTERS RESEMBLE MILLIONAIRE CLUBS

Under Soviets Workers Unite by Factories Instead of Along Trade Lines—Two Vacations a Year Provided.

By LINCOLN EYRE,
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
(Copyright, 1920.)

PARIS, March 20.—No source of supply of clothing or other necessary objects is overlooked by the Soviets, however small. For instance, goods pledged with pawnbrokers under the old regime have been seized and are from time to time distributed among the workers. In Moscow, up to Dec. 15, 1200 persons had benefited to a varying extent by this division of revolutionary spoils.

The trade union movement in Russia, which prior to 1905 was illegal, differs from that in America in that it follows the principle of amalgamation according to industry and not according to trade. That is, all individuals employed in a given factory establishment are combined to one association regardless of the nature of the work they are doing.

With the downfall of autocracy and the consequent disappearance of obstructions it created, the strengthening of unions increased by leaps and bounds, so that from a few thousands of members there developed in less than half a year more than 1000 separate organizations with a membership of about 2,000,000. In the Kerensky era the unions used "direct action"—that of political strikes, for obtaining their demands, but not until the Bolshevik revolution in November, 1917, did they get an eight-hour day, as well as many other still more important privileges.

Alters All Objections.

With the establishment of the proletarian dictatorship in which industrial workers exercised the preponderant measure of domination, the labor movement obviously had to alter all its objectives. While national industries did not become, as many persons outside Russia still seem to think, the property of individuals employed in them but of the commonwealth as a whole, they were managed by workers' committees possessing at the start almost unlimited powers.

As time went on and the workers' lack of technical knowledge made it evident they could not run the intricate machinery of production by themselves an even larger proportion of these powers was transferred to the central Government operating through a commissariat of labor. And now things have reached a pass where, as in the Red army, the principle of one man control is being reinstated with factory and other committees related, however, as a check upon the executive.

Having been transformed by the Bolsheviks into subsidiary organizations of the Soviet Republic and empowered to regulate in concert with the labor commissariat, all wage scales, working hours and other matters relating to employment, the unions of course lost their former principal weapon—the strike. Today any body of workers that would venture to walk out on strike would be considered, to quote President Melnitchansky of the Moscow unions, as traitors to their Socialist Fatherland and as such would doubtless be shot.

The wage tariffs fixed by the central organizations of unions are, as I have indicated, subject to Governmental approval. Final decision in this as in all other affairs of State is vested in the supreme authority of the all-Russian convention of Soviets and between sessions of that body in the all-Russian central executive committee functioning through the Council of the People's Commissary. In practice, however, it is highly improbable that the Soviet administration would deny any of the powerful unions' demands unless they were fanatically exorbitant.

200 Unions in Russia.

Melnitchansky showed me figures purporting to prove—and I have no reason to doubt them—that more than 80 per cent. not only of industrial workers but of all soviet employes, including members of the liberal professions, were unionized, there being nearly 200 separate unions with a membership of about 3,000,000. This is a tremendous total, considering that before the war there were scarcely more than 2,500,000 persons employed in all Russia's industries.

Among the duties assigned the unions is that of registering the unemployed, caring for the ill or otherwise incapacitated workers, inspecting houses and factories from a sanitary viewpoint and specifying in what degree certain manufactures are harmful to health. For instance, on their recommendation the working day in tobacco factories has been reduced to seven hours, and that in chemical, aniline, paper and gas plants to six. They were chiefly instrumental, moreover, in drafting the soviet code of labor laws, one

ON AN AUTOMOBILE TRIP TO POLAND SPRINGS, MAINE.

'Way up in the extreme northeastern part of our country I found one of the most beautiful hotels in America.

Its picturesque, well-kept grounds, its noted pure Poland Spring Water, and particularly the very old but substantial antique furniture in the main entrance or lobby of this wonderful hotel, caused me to stop and examine it carefully.

I turned over one of the large, comfortable leather-covered chairs to look for the maker and there I found on a metal plate the name "Wm. Prufrock, St. Louis, Maker, 1895."

Every day we should plant something for the future—a kind word, a good deed or the making of substantial, honest work, of which the furniture in this far-away Poland Springs Hotel is an example.

of the first judicial enterprises undertaken by the Bolsheviks. Among noteworthy provisions in this code is compulsory vacation of a fortnight every six months, which in the case of certain of the more arduous industries has been increased to two months in the year; forbidding of night, overtime and underground work for women; limiting work hours of young folk from 16 to 18 years to six hours daily, with payment for a full working day; assuring eight weeks' complete repose to mothers before childbirth and a similar period after, and subjecting all trades, including domestic service and individual producers of specialist products made at home, to frequent inspection.

The following extracts of laws governing compulsory labor (which, however, are only now beginning to be enforced) also originated with the unions: "All citizens of the Socialist Federative Republic of the Soviets of Russia, with the exceptions stated below, are subject to compulsory labor.

"The following are exempted: (a) Persons under 16 years of age; (b) all persons older than 50 years; (c) persons who have lost their working ability permanently through mutilation or illness. The following are temporarily exempted: (a) Persons who through illness or mutilation have temporarily lost their working ability, for a period necessary for their recovery; (b) women with child, for a period eight weeks before and eight weeks after confinement. Students in Soviet schools are considered as doing compulsory labor. Labor is applied in the former (a) organized collaboration, (b) individual personal services, (c) execution of separate definite work.

"All citizens able to work have the right to apply their labor in accordance with their specialty and for the remuneration determined for such class of work. District exchange bureaus of labor commissariat are entitled, however, upon agreement with the corresponding trades unions, to put separate wage earners, or a group of them, on work other than their specialty if there should not be opportunity of work of the special kind for which they have applied.

Rest Periods Provided.

"Each wage earner is obliged during the normal working day and under normal conditions, to execute a standard amount of work, determined for the category and group in which he or she is enlisted. During the normal working day wage earners must be given time for eating and for rest. This time is not included in the working hours. It must fall no later than four hours after beginning work and continue not less than one-half and not more than two hours. For women nursing children there must be an additional rest period of not less than one-half hour every three hours. Each wage earner receives during illness a subsidy and medical assistance from local hospital funds, of which he is a member (these funds are provided by taxation of industrial enterprises, public or private), and fine for delay in paying such taxes."

It is provided elsewhere that all citizens subject to compulsory labor and unemployed through no fault of their own shall receive pay equivalent to the wages they are entitled to obtain for the kind of work for which they are listed.

While there was no such provision in the copy of the labor laws given me I was informed that by later decree, male citizens over 60 and female citizens over 50, who have complied with the labor laws, are entitled to receive from the State a pension totaling the full amount of wages paid them for the work they were doing before their legal loss of working ability.

Moscow and Petrograd unions are magnificently housed at national expense. In the former city the central federation occupies a former noble's assembly hall, one of the finest of Moscow's buildings, possessing vast meeting rooms, club rooms, a theater and other attractions. In Petrograd there is, if any, even a greater degree of splendor. Union authority is installed in a really superb structure known as the Labor Palace, which was to have been a girls' college and which the unions have made over and redecorated on a lavish scale. Surrounding it are 12 other almost equally imposing edifices, each of which shelters one of the principal labor organizations. There is a special club house for union delegates visiting Petrograd which has all the comforts of an up-to-date hotel, including plenty of heat, a theater, moving picture hall and a library of 100,000 volumes. The place conveys the impression of a millionaire club rather than the headquarters of a toiling mass.

Labor Enforced Haphazardly.

While as previously stated it is the present intention of the Soviet Government to oblige all elements of the population to perform some sort of useful labor, mental or physical, there were throughout the first two years of the revolution only spasmodic attempts along this line. Removing snow and cutting wood, for instance, were tasks in which everybody was compelled to participate to the limit of his or her ability. But like many other undertakings directed by the Soviet bureaucracy this urgently necessary business has been conducted in a somewhat haphazard fashion for the most part.

Here is how the work of snow removal from the railroad roadbed operated in one instance with which I chance to be personally familiar: A score of women and old men received orders through their House Committees—every habitation has a committee elected by the tenants and serving as intermediary between them and the Government—to report at a certain point at 6:30 a. m. one dark, wintry day. The purpose of the convocation was to take the impromptu gang of laborers out into the country and let them clear snow off the tracks.

Some of the more inexperienced members of the party actually arrived at the specified hour, as result of which they had to wait in the bitter cold for nearly five hours, for the militia commissary assigned to act as their guide and overseer did not appear until 11 a. m. Even then scarcely three-quarters of the number mobilized for the job had turned up. The commissary, however, said it was no use waiting any longer for the truants and led his flock to the railroad, a half hour distant, on foot, whence they traveled on a flat car drawn by a special locomotive (this at a time when locomotives were desperately needed for hauling food and fuel) some 20 miles out into the country.

It was after 1 p. m. before they reached the scene of their labor. Then a fresh difficulty arose. In fact one shovel was forthcoming for every three workers, which immediately gave rise to long wrangles as to who should start shoveling. At 3 p. m. it began to grow dark and the commissary called off work for the rest of the day. Returning to the city, the conscripts received 58 rubles and three-quarters of a pound of bread apiece, which payment was in addition to regular wages they were drawing in factories or offices employing them.

Bread having been provided for all who had been summoned, there was a considerable surplus which went to the Commissary, thereby providing a possible explanation of his readiness to start out that morning with one-fourth of his working forces absent.

Engineer Seeks Pay.

The above incident is probably an extreme case, but unquestionably a great deal of incoherence of like nature exists. I came across an even more characteristic example of it in an official report on a controversy between an engineer and the Department of Highways in the commissariat of way of communication. The engineer, a distinguished member of his profession, had been directed to write for a department a technical study on road building. He spent three weeks in preparing an extensive monograph which he turned in to the department, together with a bill for 6500 rubles. This moderate charge was approved by the technical head of the department, but rejected by the commissary. The engineer sent in a new bill for double the original amount on the ground that the cost of living had advanced 100 per cent in the interval.

At the same time he remarked that, finding his specialist knowledge of so little monetary value, he had abandoned his profession in favor of sawing wood, at which he was earning 1000 rubles a day. The Commissary thereupon smilingly O K'd the bill, observing: "Tell him he is wise to saw wood instead of writing books. Sawing wood is a mighty useful trade. I used to be a wood chopper myself."

It is this glorification of purely manual labor that intelligent observers even among Bolsheviks themselves recognize as one of the weaknesses of the Soviet system. In one of his recent speeches Trotzky stressed the absurdity of placing a man who worked with his hands on a higher level than one who worked with his head.

"Providing both devote the best that is in them to the common welfare, they should be placed on absolutely equal footing," he insisted.

Community Work Willingly.

For the Communists, who are primarily responsible for the demagogic exaltation of physical labor, there is this much to be said. They have proved themselves without exception willing to perform even the most menial chores if the party or Government ordains it. They are obliged, while non-Communists are merely invited, to do unpaid extra work on Sundays and holidays. The Vasskresnik as this Communist obligation is termed, consists generally in removing snow, loading and unloading trains, carrying and sawing wood and in the case of women members of the party, sewing clothes and uniforms.

No exposition of present-day living conditions in Russia is complete without a passing reference to railroad traveling. In this connection the first thing that leaps to one's notice is the retention of classes by the soviets. One still pays more for first-class accommodation than for second and more for second than for third.

The incongruity of this arrangement in a nation whose rulers are aiming at the extinction of social inequalities is obvious to the Bolsheviks, of course. Their explanation, based on obscure technical grounds, of why classes continue to exist on railroads does not explain very comprehensively. Like rents, classes are to be abolished and doubtless soon will be.

Passenger train service is far worse today, a veteran railroad man told me, than it was 50 years ago. The only line that works on anything like schedule time is that linking Petrograd and Moscow, between which cities there is one express either way weekly and one ordinary train daily. The express takes 14 to 18 hours for a trip that used to made in eight, other trains about 30.

The Petrograd-Moscow line is the only one on which cars are heated and once in a while electrically lighted. There are sleepers, too, though of somewhat rough and ready character, but practically nobody save high Soviet officials can get a berth in them. Incidentally, the grand moguls of the Bolshevik heirachy invariably travel by special train. Lenine, Trotzky, Zinovieff, Kamenieff, Louantcharsky, and at least a dozen other dignitaries have specials always at their disposal.

Dining cars have disappeared. One must take one's food along and eat it cold, reinforced by tea cooked with hot water, obtainable at the larger stations en route. The cost of traveling is not excessive, the fare from Moscow to Petrograd being only 320 rubles.

TURKS INVITE "PUSSYFOOT"

CONSTANTINOPLE.—William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson, or some other American anti-saloon organizer, will be asked by the Turkish Green Crescent Society to come here and direct the absolute prohibition campaign opened on March 5, when the presiding officer was the Sheik Ul Islam, representative of the Sultan and actual head of the Moslem church, who said he would throw the full influence of the church to the support of the society which is carrying on the work.

At present saloons are not allowed within 50 yards of a mosque, and in districts already "dry" through enforcement of Moslem edicts no establishments where liquor is to be sold may be opened. Stamboul, the Turkish section of Constantinople, has no saloons.

MAN SHOT WHEN HE GOES INTO BURNING HOUSE TO GET MONEY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D.—E. W. Henning, a farmer of the Cresbard territory, in Northern South Dakota, was shot in the ankle and badly wounded when he rushed into his burning home to rescue money which he had there. The heat from the fire discharged a shotgun lying in the home. The weapon was pointed toward the farmer and the entire charge struck him in the ankle at close range.

The fire broke out late at night and Henning, who was alone, was driven from the building. He later thought of his money and went back into the house. When he passed the shotgun, which was lying on the floor, the heat discharged it.

He rode to the home of a neighbor, where first aid was given and later he was taken to a hospital.

See the Boisons In Your Blood

Mighty Poisons Accumulated Through the Winter Months Mean Disaster and Disease.

Says Rid the System With Sulpherb Tablets Easily.

Springtime always brings with it joy and distress. The distress is in the form of catarrh, neuralgia, rheumatic pains, constipation, inactive kidneys and usually a feverish, sluggish lethargy that is hard to throw off.

Do you remember your grandmother fed you sulphur and molasses every Spring to purify the blood? It was a good, old-fashioned, but nauseous remedy. Now you can take sulphur, cream of tartar and herbs in tablet form. A better remedy, easy and pleasant to take in Sulpherb Tablets. Sold by all druggists. A laxative, blood purifier of unequaled merit for those who are constipated and suffering in any way from such pent-up poisons. Each package is guaranteed to give wonderfullly satisfactory results. Be sure you get Sulpherb Tablets (not sulphur tablets).

BRUNSWICK
Method of Reproduction

The Ultona, an exclusive all-record reproducer, built to suit the instrument, not an attachment, not a makeshift. But an invention which has upset all old ideas. Similar to the Ultona, music lovers are found from one record phonographs, and may now hear all records, whatever make, played at their best.

See if you can find the equal of Brunswick tone

Hear The Brunswick, then make comparisons. That is our advice to every one who calls.

Thus we have gained such a tremendous following. For no music lover, however critical, can find an equal in tone, workmanship and finish.

The Brunswick brings to you new-day betterments, improvements you can't find elsewhere. No other phonograph has the Ultona. No other has the Brunswick Tone Amplifier. They are Brunswick patents.

And no phonograph is built better, for the House of Brunswick has been noted for nearly a century for its fine wood-crafting. Brunswick Phonograph cabinets are made by Brunswick, not bought in here and there.

We invite you to come to any Brunswick dealer and ask him to prove our case.

Ask that he play your favorite selections. Then hear them on any other instrument. Let your ear be the judge. We never fear the verdict.

We've urged always that comparison be the basis of your purchase. And in over a half million homes there are Brunswicks that could never be replaced.

St. Louis has a number of Brunswick Dealers. All will be delighted to give you the opportunity to judge The Brunswick and make comparisons.

700 DOGS ENTERED FOR COLISEUM SHOW

Exhibit March 29 to Include Novel Airedale and Fox Terrier and Champion Pointer.

More than 700 dogs, representing nearly every breed, have been entered for the tenth edition of the Mississippi Valley Kennel Club, to be held at the Coliseum for three days beginning Monday, March 29. The show promises to be the largest and best ever held in St. Louis. The last show here was in 1916.

The most noted dogs entered are "Briargate Black Beauty," an airedale, owned by E. L. L. Jayne, 3333 Washington boulevard, president of the club, and "Sabine Lady Pemline," a smooth fox terrier, owned by Thomas Varick of Tarrytown, N. Y. The first named won first prize at the Westminster show last year, while the latter is reported to have won more prizes at best in show than any two dogs alive.

E. F. Bellows of Springfield, Mo., has entered "Broomhill Jim," a national and international champion pointer. He is entered for exhibition purposes only, as he is 10 years old. He has won championships in England and in all the shows in the country in which he has been entered. Bellows has also entered additional pointers from his kennel. Prize winning fox terriers have been entered by A. E. Mitchell and E. H. Ingerman. Two police dogs that saw service at the front have been entered by Philip Geisel of Omaha. They are sheepherds.

Many St. Louis Dogs Entered.

A large number of St. Louis dogs have been entered. Among those is "Mickey Belmont," an airedale, owned by Samuel Lacks, which won first prize in the class at the Chicago show in 1917. C. W. Thomas is the only St. Louisan to enter an old English sheep dog, though others have been entered by Mrs. Charles Remelin of Detroit, and W. A. Jamerson of New York. Other St. Louisans with dogs entries are Jos. De Martin, pomeranians; S. G. Wilson, pointers and setters; S. E. Fisher, airedales; Philip Grantman, pomeranians; Miss Mary Thompson, collies; Archie Land, sheepherds; Miss M. C. Thorpe, Boston terriers, and Miss Rose Maloney, Boston terriers.

Entries of several professional handlers from the East have already been received, and others are being received daily. Famous handlers whose entries are already in are Fred Leighton of Holmdel, N. J., with collies, and W. A. Jamerson, with old English sheep dogs. Al. Belmont of Wynnewood, Pa., Frank Alderman of Antrim, N. Y., Al Mitchell and Percy Roberts of Deerfield Farm, Ill., and Brantice Bonham of Hicksville, L. I., are other professional handlers whose entries are expected.

More Entries Expected.

Frank W. Barnes, assistant superintendent of the show, said yesterday that more entries will come in.

"Some of the most famous dogs have not yet been heard from because they are on the circuit," he said. George Foley of the Westminster (N. Y.) Kennels will manage the show.

The cost of the show is estimated at about $5000, of which $3000 is in cash prizes. Cups and silver and bronze medals and ribbons will also be awarded.

Judges will be C. E. Perkins, Decatur, Ill., for Boston terriers; Harry C. Janney of St. Louis, for pointers and bull terriers; Philip R. Brand of Chicago, for airedales and terriers, and George Beetham Thomas, Hamilton, Mass., for all other breeds.

EPISCOPAL CAMPAIGN MEETING TO BE AT ODEON TUESDAY

Thursday Will Be Day of Intercession and Prayer for Success of Movement.

Lewis E. Franklin of New York City, who was an executive in Liberty Bonds campaigns, will speak at a mass meeting Tuesday night of Episcopal churches at the Odeon. George K. Gluck, president of the Winona Paper Co. of Chicago, another well known layman, and the Rev. J. M. Mann, rector of St. Mark's Church, Louisville, also will speak. Franklin is now national director of the campaign of the Episcopal Church of America.

There will be a processional at the mass meeting of bishops, clergy, lay-readers, wardens and vestrymen of all parishes with choir boys bearing the crosses. All of the vested choirs of the city will be massed on the platform, and there will be a musical program with Charles Galloway at the organ. Members of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew will be the ushers, and all boxes and seats will be free. No collection will be taken and no pledges collected.

Thursday will be a day of intercessions when all churches will be open from early morning until evening for prayers for the campaign.

All Episcopal rectors will preach this (Sunday) at 11 o'clock on the same text, "So, as Much As in Me Is, I Am Ready," in a united effort to arouse their people to respond to the call of the campaign.

COLLECTION FOR CHURCH FUND

Southern Presbyterians Have Selected Next Month as Date.

Southern Presbyterian churches in St. Louis next Sunday will make their collections toward the $198,199 fund, which is the quota of the Synod of Missouri in the Presbyterian Progressive program.

The foundation of the financial drive has been prepared in several weeks' work. The Southern Church is raising $4,000,000 as its contribution to the Interchurch World movement. A goal of $6,500 new church members and 40,000 new Sunday school pupils has been set.

WHAT KIND OF BLOOD HAVE YOU?

Thin, Pale and Watery—Keeping You Weak, Nervous and Run-Down—or Rich, Red, Healthy Blood With Plenty of Iron in It to Give You Strength, Energy, Power and Endurance.

PHYSICIAN SAYS IRON IS RED BLOOD FOOD

Explains How Nuxated Iron — Master Strength-Builder of the Blood — Helps Give Renewed Vim and Energy to Men and Puts Roses Into the Cheeks of Women.

If you are easily tired, if you look pale, haggard and worn, if you feel generally weak, nervous and run-down, if weak promise, are ailments you have a right to, if any of your vital blood under a powerful microscope and compare it with a drop of pure, healthy blood—such as you find in fresh, natural blood, here show that a tremendously large number of people who are tired all the time, if they are ill for no other reason, than lack of iron. Iron, for example, is absolutely necessary to enable the blood to carry its life-giving oxygen to every muscle, nerve and vital organ of the body, and unless you get enough iron into your blood your tissues will not get enough oxygen and you will surely become weak, nervous, run-down, sickly.

There are thousands upon thousands of people who are rapidly breaking down as a result of their lack of iron, who are suffering from perfect health which often develops into chronic invalidism, who could make the difference between success and failure in life, simply by enriching the blood in their veins with iron. Yet others go through life apparently possessing every good thing, and yet they are always tired, never full of energy or ambition, lack strength to do things, are always "all in," and never feel that entire freedom from pain, that exuberance of health and vitality which comes from plenty of red blood filled with iron-vitality. Iron is a red blood food and physicians explain how they lose their powerful organic iron through worry, overwork, dissipation and fail to build up the red blood corpuscles with iron and thus prevent them from carrying sufficient oxygen to the tissues and cells.

Commenting on the use of Nuxated Iron as a tonic, strength and blood-builder, Dr. Alonzo Taylor, formerly professor in the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, and now associate professor of Medicine Stanford University Medical School, San Francisco, Cal., says: "Modern methods of cooking and the world's mode of living have robbed the human race of much of the iron which is necessary to the blood in order to give it power and endurance. Iron is absolutely necessary to the blood in order to enable it to change food into muscle and tissue. Without iron, no matter how much we eat, how much we sleep, how much we exercise, how much we breathe, we cannot get the most out of life. We are not strong, we are not well, we are not full of vigor, vim and vitality. We must have iron if we would be well. Nuxated Iron is the most popular iron tonic because it is the most powerful and effective of all the iron preparations we have tried. It is prescribed by a large number of physicians in their private practice and is used in many of the leading hospitals in this country. It is one of the few tonics which will not only make the weak strong by enriching the blood, but will also build up the entire system when once it has been run down. Nuxated Iron seems to have a peculiar affinity for the nerves and nerve centers. It is a most wonderful remedy for nervousness. The use of Nuxated Iron for a few weeks will frequently work wonders with the nerves and will make you feel like a new person. I have seen it do this time and time again. If you are not strong and well I advise you to make a trial of Nuxated Iron and see what it will do for you. Ask your druggist for it by name.

Beauty of form endows cloth and raiment like these.

Richly nourished form of blood of romantic vigor, showing lack of healthy, red corpuscles.

FERRAND URGES NEW GROUPING FOR W. U.

Advocates More Buildings and Campus Beautification — Would Cost $3,000,000.

Broad and urgent demand for technical education, the necessity to prove art is one of the greatest assets in the wealth of nations, overcrowded college buildings, insufficient chemical laboratories, cramped quarters for biology and a library which over-congestion will render useless in 10 years or less, are outstanding reasons why thorough revision of the design of Washington University is imperative, Gabriel Ferrand, professor of design in its school of architecture, says in the University Record.

The School of Fine Arts, Prof. Ferrand contends, affords one of the most pathetic pages in the history of the University. Formerly housed in the finest of all the University buildings, it was transferred several years ago to the British World's Fair pavilion, a structure designed for temporary use and now ready for the wrecker. It should be replaced by a group of buildings for paintings and sculpture, architecture and the industrial arts, to establish co-ordination that is lacking in most art schools, he says.

Then there should be an adequate museum of art and archaeology, the trio of structures to stand in rear of the museum, grouped around a central cloister, and provided with a large common library and joint exhibition room for the best work done by students. This group he proposes to encircle by gardens designed for enhancing beauty as well as to provide object lessons for young artists.

This improvement is designed by Prof. Ferrand for the southeastern corner of the campus, while on the northeastern corner he has planned a magnificent memorial hall and auditorium, a memorial to the sons and daughters of Washington University who offered their lives during the recent war. "Architecturally, with the museum of art and archaeology, it would complete a monumental gateway to the University," he points out, and behind all these could be placed two other schools of music and household arts. This, he declares, would constitute the most complete group of art buildings to be found anywhere.

Plans for several of these buildings have been drawn by Prof. Ferrand, including the landscaping incident to the general scheme, the aggregate cost being estimated at from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000. The improvement is contemplated along the Skinker road front.

For the upper campus, which presents a more complicated problem, Prof. Ferrand proposes as entirely new grouping of buildings, bringing about association of those schools or departments which shuld never have been separated. He proposes an engineering group, a natural science group and a group reserved for the humanities.

"In resume," Prof. Ferrand says, "the passer-by walking westward along Lindell boulevard would first perceive the art group with its two frontal parts facing Forest Park, on the one side the memorial hall and on the other the museum of art and archaeology, emerging from gardens of a simple, attractive design. Then, following either the main roads or the lawn paths to the towered University hall, he would find the dignified college group planted on the hill as on a gigantic pedestal, a modern Acropolis of knowledge. Behind the college would appear the groups of engineering to the right and of the natural sciences to the left, closed in the rear by Graham Memorial chapel, the dormintories for both sexes, the gymnasium and the stadium."

INSTRUCTOR OF FOREMEN TO ADDRESS INDUSTRIES MEETING

John Calder of Swift & Co. Will Speak at Joplin, Mo., April 9.

John Calder, manager of industrial relations for Swift & Co., whose method of training foremen in the plants of the Swift company was described in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine last Sunday, will be one of the speakers at the second annual meeting of the Associated Industries of Missouri, which will be held at Joplin, April 9.

His subject will be "The Industrial Situation and the Foreman." He will give further details of his school of instruction for foremen and will show how the foreman may be either a factor for good relations in an industrial plant or a cause of trouble.

Another speaker will be James A. Emery of Washington, D. C., general counsel for the National Industrial Council, who has recently delivered a number of speeches before business organizations on the subject, "The Unionization of Federal Government."

Besides the members of the Associated Industries, business men throughout the State have been invited to attend the Joplin meeting.

GRANDCHILD AND GRANDMOTHER

Mrs. A. R. Driskell, a widow who lives at 3866A Folsom avenue, has the unusual distinction of being both grandmother and grandchild at once, with the five generations of which she is the middle link, all living. Her grandmother, Mrs. Malindo Rose of Mattoon, Ill., is 83 years old. Mrs. Driskell if 39. Her grandchild, Sarah Rose Driskell, who lives with her, is 19 months old. Mrs. Driskell's mother, Mrs. Sarah Dolly of Mattoon, is 59 years old, and her son, who lives with her, is 21.

Mrs. Driskell has had to earn her own living since her husband's death by working in a downtown factory besides keeping up her home.

Bank Installs Burglar Alarm.

The Bank of Maplewood, Manchester and Sutton avenues, has installed a modern burglar alarm system. By means of buttons pressed on the inside of the building siren whistles on the outside are sounded with enough noise, it is said, to arouse the entire community. Officials of the bank have tested the system and found it to be satisfactory.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at first sign of Bladder irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts, if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

Absorption Process Makes Faces Young

Success at last has come to scientists who for years have sought some method of removing the outer veil of facial skin in cases of unsightly complexions, which would be both painless and harmless. The new process is so simple, so inexpensive, the wonder is no one had discovered it long ago. It has been amply demonstrated that common mercolized wax (sold by druggists in ounce packages) entirely removes, by gentle absorption, the withered, lifeless surface skin, leaving the youthful, roselike skin beneath. The wax is applied at night, like cold cream, and washed off in the morning. The absorption also cleanses pimpled pores, increasing the skin's breathing capacity and preserving tone, clear and natural beauty of the new skin.

His Little Boy A Mass of Sores

So writes W. C. Warren of Millboro, Virginia, and he adds:

"We tried two good doctors, one a specialist on skin diseases and they did him no good. We used 7 bottles of D. D. D. and his face, which was simply a mass of sores, is now smooth as paper."

Thousands of grateful users of D. D. D. have written to tell of the wonderful relief it gave them—even one application convincingly stopping all itching and burning. Why not try D. D. D. at once and be convinced? Your money back if the first bottle does not bring relief. 60c, one and $1.20. Try D. D. D. Soap, too.

INJUNCTIONS END PICKETING HERE, UNION MEN SAY

Twenty-Two Federal Court Orders Since March, 1918, Virtually Destroy Practice, Leaders Assert.

EFFORTS TO UNIONIZE PLANTS CURTAILED

Lawyer Says Picketing to Force Closed Shop Violates Law in That It Interferes With Business.

St. Louis labor leaders assert that picketing, long considered by them as one of the strongest weapons of the striker, virtually has been destroyed here by Federal Court injunctions and restraining orders prohibiting unions from participating in labor disputes between employers and striking employes and curtailing their efforts to unionize industrial plants. Twenty-two orders, they say, the effect of which has prevented picketing, have been issued in the Federal Court here since March, 1918.

C. J. Anderson, Merchants-Laclede Building, an attorney, representing several unions in this class of litigation, said yesterday that efforts to unionize the industrial forces in many plants had been thwarted, even in instances where a majority of the workers had expressed willingness to join labor organizations.

"Federal injunctions were practically unheard of before the war," said Anderson. "Employers who favored the open shop policy never sought injunctions against unions which tried to get workers to join organizations unless acts of violence were reported, and then they instituted proceedings in State courts.

Sought Court Aid.

"In the war period employers availed themselves of interstate commerce regulations and the food control laws to get the assistance of the Federal Court in disputes with labor unions, and the practice was continued after the war was over.

"Although peaceful picketing is permitted by the Constitution, that method of winning strikes has been eliminated by certain clauses in Federal injunctions which prohibit the unions from interfering or attempting to interfere with the employes of plaintiffs without their consent. Such prohibitions prevent the pickets from approaching persons who have been employed as strikebreakers.

"The result of temporary injunctions or restraining orders of this kind has been the breaking of every strike involved before the period of the injunction or order had expired. When the time arrived for making the injunction permanent or discontinuing it the places of the strikers had been filled and the plaintiffs were ready to dismiss their suits.

Jurisdiction Assumed.

"The Federal Court has assumed jurisdiction in cases involving bakers and meatcutters under the Lever food control act and in cases of other industrial workers on the ground that manufacturing concerns doing business with other concerns outside of Missouri were entitled to Federal Court protection in labor disputes under the interstate commerce laws.

"Judge Dyer overruled a motion to disqualify him in the injunction proceedings last August against the United Cloth Hat and Cap Makers' Union, although he had expressed his prejudice against the defendants, several of whom were cited for contempt and threatened with imprisonment because it was alleged they had interfered with the business of certain hat companies by trying to unionize the employes.

"Labor leaders, in my opinion, are justified in complaining about employers who resort to Federal Court injunctions as a means of breaking strikes. In many cases disputes between employers and union employes could be amicably adjusted by themselves."

Walter H. Saunders, an attorney in the National Bank of Commerce Building, who filed the first application for a Federal injunction against a union under the Lever food control act, and whose petition in that case has been used as a model by attorneys in subsequent cases of a similar nature, said that picketing for the purpose of forcing an employer to adopt a closed shop contract is a violation of law in that it interferes, and sometimes destroys, the legitimate business of the employer.

"The crowding of a non-union employe by a force of strikers doing picket duty is nothing short of intimidation," he said, "and the methods employed in trying to prevent neutral employers from doing business constitute acts of violence. It is undemocratic."

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent. The test will be a revelation to you. Note how your teeth look then.

Millions of teeth now glisten

Millions of teeth are now daily brushed with Pepsodent. You see them everywhere—white, glistening teeth. On every hand it is evident that a new era has dawned in teeth cleaning.

But the result is more than beauty. Those film-free teeth are safer. To countless people this new method will bring life-long benefits.

See the results

See the results on your own teeth. Let your mirror tell you what they mean to you. The test is easy, pleasant, and is free. Old methods have proved inadequate, as nearly everybody knows. See what this new method does.

Teeth Are Coated
With a Cloudy Film—Watch Them Whiten When You Take It Off

All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

Your teeth are coated with a film. It is that viscous coat which you feel with your tongue. Millions of teeth are dimmed by that film, and millions are destroyed. Modern dental science traces most tooth troubles to it.

It is that film-coat that discolors—not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Many other troubles, local and internal, are nowadays traced to those germs.

Brushing doesn't end it

The film clings to the teeth, enters crevices and stays. If not removed it may harden. It destroys the luster of the teeth, and month after month it may do ceaseless damage.

The tooth brush does not end it. The ordinary tooth paste does not dissolve it. So countless teeth discolor and decay despite the daily brushing. Tooth troubles have become, in late years, almost universal.

Dentists long have known the reason. On your visits to them they remove the film and tartar. But what was needed was a daily film combatant, and dental science has been seeking it for years.

Now you can combat it

After years of searching, a way has been found to fight film. Able authorities have proved its efficiency by clinical and laboratory tests. Leading dentists everywhere, after testing it and watching it, now urge its daily use.

For home use the method is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. This is a new-day tooth paste, made to comply with all modern dental requirements.

A 10-Day Tube is being sent to everyone who asks. This to quickly show the millions what it does.

Applies a digestant

The film is albuminous matter. Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The object is to dissolve the film, then to day by day combat it.

This method long seemed impossible. Pepsin must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid harmful to the teeth. But modern science has discovered a harmless activating method. Countless tests have proved this. And now active pepsin can be every day applied.

Two other elements give Pepsodent a unique efficiency. But film removal is its most important action.

No money accepted

No money is accepted for a ten-day test—not even for the postage. Everyone who asks it is supplied. Thus over two million people yearly are being shown what Pepsodent can do.

Simply mail the coupon. Then note how clean the teeth feel after using Pepsodent. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how the teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears.

Compare your teeth now with your teeth in ten days. Then decide for yourself between the new method and the old. This is most important to you. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

PROFESSOR ACCUSED OF CAVE MAN TACTICS

Wife Charges New York U. Teacher Treated Her Cruelly for Period of Six Years.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 20.—Alleging such cave-man tactics as kicking, beating with the fists and a ruler and other more refined cruelties, Mrs. Lucy Gowin appealed to Justice Gavegan of the Supreme Court yesterday for $200 a month alimony from her husband, Prof. Eugene Burton Gowin of the chair of business management, New York University School of Commerce. The Court allowed her $20 a week and $150 counsel fees pending trial of her suit for separation.

In addition to teaching business management at New York University, Prof. Gowin is vice president and general manager of the American Institution of Finance, 90 West Broadway, and author of "The Executive and His Control of Men," published by the Macmillan Company a year ago. An earlier work is "The Selection and Training of the Business Executive."

Mrs. Gowin's affidavit contained a series of unusual allegations of abuse covering a period of six years. The couple were married at Milwaukee on Sept. 8, 1911. The first specific charge of cruelty is dated March, 1914.

"Kicked Her Out of Bed."

One night, Mrs. Gowin swears, her husband kicked her out of bed and knocked her down. Frightened, she ran into the bathroom. Her husband fastened the door by tying a rope to the knob, she says, holding her prisoner.

In August of the same year she says he beat her with his fists, blackening her eye. She ran into the hallway of the apartment house in which they were residing. He pursued her and continued to strike her, in the presence of other tenants, she declares.

In February, 1916, Mrs. Gowin says, Prof. Gowin attacked her again. On this occasion he knocked her down with his fist, exclaiming that "if she could not learn anything any other way he would beat it into her dull skull."

A singular occurrence in August, 1916, she recited in the affidavit. The Gowins had gone to Lake George, where they were camping. One day, says Mrs. Gowin, Prof. Gowin ordered her to go into the tent and take her glasses off. He then pulled up a tent stake 15x2 inches in size and beat her for half an hour until she was black and blue. When her condition was such that she could hardly move, he ordered her, she alleges, to take a blanket and wash it in the lake and then compelled her to stand, holding it in front of the camp fire for two hours to dry it.

The following June the Gowins were living at 9 West Forty-seventh street. In that month, Mrs. Gowin says, her husband knocked her down and kicked her with his boots and beat her with his fists for 10 minutes.

The attacks, according to Mrs. Gowin's allegations, have been more frequent in recent months. In October, before the separation, she declares, he dragged her across the floor on her knees, causing wounds which became infected.

"Compelled to Confess Errors."

In the following month in the office at 90 West Broadway, Mrs. Gowin was examining a mimeograph machine. Prof. Gowin, she says, became angry and struck her in the presence of a stenographer, Elsie Muller. In December last Mrs. Gowin says the professor threw her out of bed twice. After the second time she was compelled to sleep on the floor.

Shortly before last Christmas, while they were in the West Broadway office, Mrs. Gowin says, her husband struck her on the stomach, causing her great pain. Then he knocked her into a corner, kicked her with his boots and beat her on the arms, chest and hips with a ruler with a celluloid edge. He struck her so hard, she says, as to cause the blood to flow. Refusing her permission to wash off the blood, he forced her to sit for several hours, writing a confession of her errors in the conduct of the business.

Before this Mrs. Gowin had found living quarters apart from her husband, she says, but continued to work in the office. She charges he struck her on Feb. 7 and adds: "I had to leave on Feb. 26 because I no longer felt safe with him."

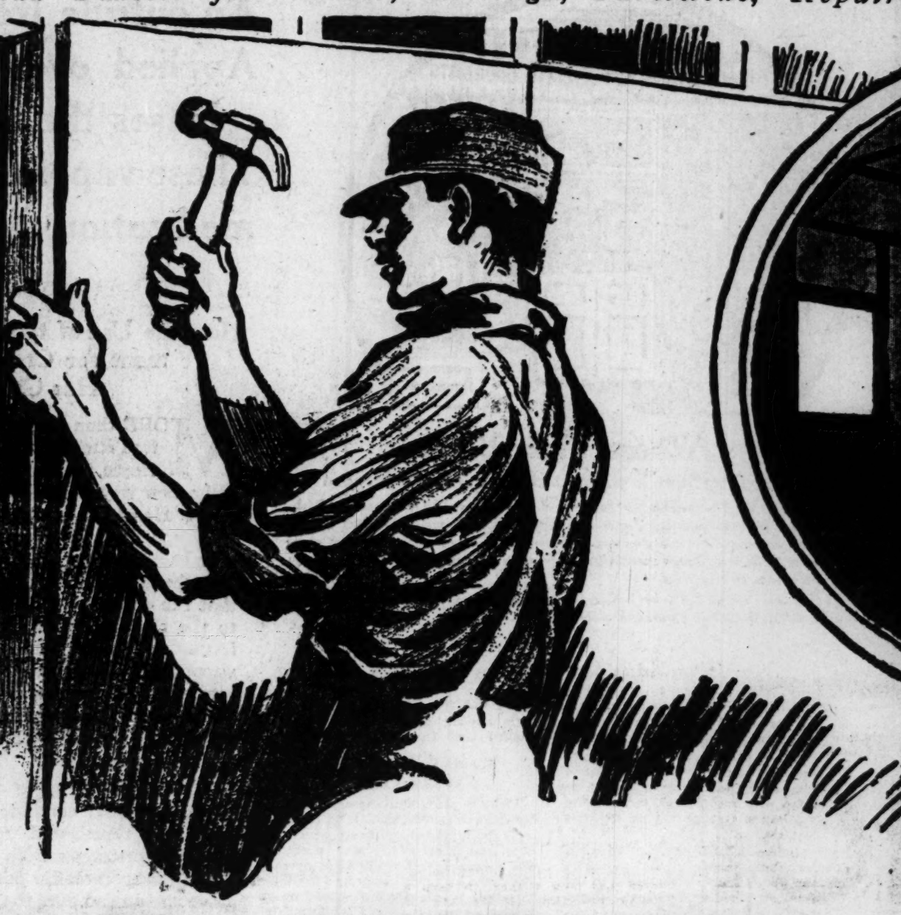
Cornell-Wood-Board

Triple Sized: Takes the place of Lath and Plaster for Walls, Ceilings, Partitions, Repairs, Alterations and New Work

FOR HOMES



FOR GARAGES

FOR OFFICES

The Answer to the Housing Problem

In the face of today's high rents and the cry for quarters, all spare space in every home, office, store and factory should be finished up with Cornell-Wood-Board, the strong, rigid panels that take the place of lath and plaster.

An old attic charmingly finished in Cornell-Wood-Board paneling at a few dollars cost can be rented for $20 or $25 a month, and more; or be converted into a cozy nursery, sewing room or den. Many costly homes are finished throughout with Cornell-Wood-Board. It is easily and quickly applied right to the joists and studding, or over the old plaster.

Cornell paneling is in highest favor with the architects, carpenters, contractors, decorators and home owners, not only because of its fashionable Oatmeal Finish but because Cornell is unequalled for painting and calcimining.

"Cornell 32" Will Add a Room

Cornell-Wood-Board panels come in 32 inch width, in addition to the customary 48-inch, because the width of the paneling makes a vast difference in the effect of the room.

"Cornell 32" is especially adapted to hallways, ceilings and walls of smaller rooms. It also gives the effect of height to walls with low ceilings. For large rooms and broad partitions, "Cornell 48" is recommended.

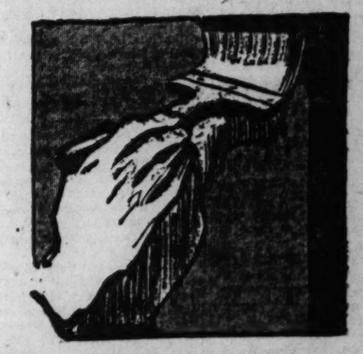
No Other Triple-Sized

Cornell is sized internally to resist moisture, expansion and contraction—an exclusive Cornell feature. It is also primed at the mill — both sides — with high-grade sizing. Just apply paint or calcimine—that's all. No priming coat needed —save that expense by insisting on "Cornell."

The Guaranteed Board

Follow our simple directions for applying, and we guarantee Cornell not to crack, warp, buckle or chip. So don't accept any other board and think you have "just as good."

Phone or call at any Cornell lumber dealer's, or mail the coupon direct to us for samples, panel plans and prices. Begin today—turn waste space into money.



Cornell's artistic Oatmeal Finish—takes paint perfectly without a sizing coat—is in highest vogue with architects, contractors, decorators and home owners.

This home-made syrup does the work in a hurry. Easily prepared, and saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for its healing effect on the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

SAVINGS CERTIFICATES ON INSTALLMENT PLAN

Treasury to Sell $100 and $1000 Script Through Banks on Partial Payments.

R. R. Smith, director of the Savings Division, Eighth Federal Reserve District, has received instructions from Secretary of the Treasury Houston authorizing the Savings Division of this district to make arrangements with banks to sell the Treasury Savings $100 and $1000 certificates on the partial payment plan.

The certificates may be purchased through the banks, which will handle the transaction and deliver the certificates. Payment has been arranged to suit the convenience of the purchaser, and may be made weekly, semi-monthly or monthly, as desired. The minimum payments arranged are $2, $4 and $8.

Contract With Bank.

The investor will enter into a contract with the bank, and under this agreement the bank will deposit one dollar as a savings account for the customer for every $100 certificate, this corresponding to the interest on the time payments. When the payments are completed the certificate is turned over to the depositor and the dollar deposited to his credit.

Under agreement if the purchaser fails to make his payments the bank may either refund the amount paid, or pay in savings stamps or thrift stamps. It is also to be agreed that the depositor is entitled at any time prior to the completion of payments to a like refund on all payments made. There is to be no obligation on the part of the Government until the Savings Certificate is delivered.

Smith said: "We have found that there are vast numbers of people who want to put their money in the Treasury Savings Certificates, but cannot buy them in single payment, so the partial payment plan is to be adopted here. It is in successful operation in Chicago, Detroit, St. Paul, Milwaukee, Minneapolis and other cities.

Mature in Five Years.

"People welcome the certificates as security which cannot depreciate in value, which nets the holder 4.27 per cent if held until maturity in five years. They are registered in the name of the purchaser, have valuable tax exemption features, and in case of emergency can be cashed on 10 days' notice. We expect to increase the sales tremendously through the partial payment plan."

Following are the prices of $100 certificates if final payments are made in months designated: July, $83.60; August, $83.80; September, $84.00; October, $84.20; November, $84.40, and December, $84.60. Payments for the 1920 certificates may be extended into 1921 by special consent of the Treasury Department.

Here Is Dixie's Remedy for Colds and "Flu"

Where Vicks Began

The Drug Store in which O. Henry Spent His Boyhood

This is the drug store in Greensboro, N. C., purchased by Mr. Lunsford Richardson in 1888 from Dr. Porter. Dr. Porter was the uncle of "Will" Porter, who, under the nom-de-plume of O. Henry, became America's greatest short story writer. O. Henry practically grew up in this store and learned here the profession of pharmacy.

It was during his years behind the prescription counter of this drug store that Mr. Richardson worked out the formula for Vicks.

An outside treatment that comes in salve form. Applied over throat and chest; the body heat releases the ingredients in the form of vapors. These vapors inhaled with each breath carry the medication direct to the lungs and air passages.

How the Use of this External Treatment for Cold Troubles Has Grown

MORE than a score of years ago, Lunsford Richardson, a druggist in a little North Carolina town, was trying to find a new way to treat spasmodic croup and colds. He had been trying to find it for years—he needed such a treatment in his own home—he knew that epicac and internal medicines disturbed the delicate digestions of children—that the only way to get medication directly to the air passages and lungs was in vapor form. So he was searching for an effective vapor treatment which would be economical, convenient, and which could be used without the necessity of closing up the sick room and thus excluding the fresh air, so important in the treatment of colds.

At last, this druggist found a process by which he could combine in salve form the standard, time-tested remedies—Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Thymol and Turpentine—with other volatile oils so that when this salve was spread over the throat and chest the ingredients would be vaporized by the body heat. These vapors, inhaled with each breath all night long, carried the medication directly to the parts affected and at the same time the salve was acsorbed thru and stimulated the skin, aiding the vapors inhaled to relieve the congestion. This product was named Vick's VapoRub.

Now over 17 Million Jars are used yearly

Vicks was found to be good for a great many troubles besides spasmodic croup, and as time went on, its sale increased county by county and state by state, until now over 17 million jars are used each year—almost one jar for every family in the United States. And this in spite of the fact that Vicks is still a new form of treatment to many people in the North and far West.

The best testimony to the value of Vicks is the increasing number of families who, each year, are converted to the use of this real "Little Bodyguard in the Home."

Here is the record of the number of jars used annually for the last few years:

1910	347,748 Jars
1911	823,152 Jars
1912	1,027,068 Jars
1913	1,357,890 Jars
1914	1,462,330 Jars
1915	2,418,213 Jars
1916	4,302,784 Jars
1917	6,799,511 Jars
1918	17,377,408 Jars

Directions for the Use of Vicks

VICK'S VapoRub comes in salve form. When applied to the body its action is two-fold.

1st.—INTERNAL. The heat of the body releases the ingredients in the form of vapors. These vapors are inhaled with each breath, carrying the medication through the air passages to the lungs.

2nd.—EXTERNAL. In addition, Vicks is absorbed thru and stimulates the skin, attracting the blood to the surface and aiding the vapors inhaled to relieve the congestion.

For Deep Chest Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Coughs, Hoarseness

For severe cases, hot, wet towels should be applied over the throat and chest to open the pores of the skin. Then Vicks should be rubbed well in, spread on thickly and covered with two thicknesses of hot, flannel cloths. The clothing should be left loose around the neck and the bed clothes arranged in the form of a funnel, so that the vapors arising may be freely inhaled.

For Head Colds, Asthma, Catarrh, Hay Fever, Whooping Cough

For these troubles, Vicks can be used as for chest colds or can be melted in a spoon and the vapors inhaled, or a little applied up the nostrils and snuffed back into the air passages.

For Spasmodic Croup and Children's Colds

Vicks is particularly recommended for children's colds, since it is externally applied and can, therefore, be used often and freely with perfect safety. For spasmodic croup, rub Vicks over the throat and chest until the difficult breathing is relieved; then spread on thickly and cover with a hot flannel cloth. An application at bedtime usually prevents a night attack of croup.

For Use as a Liniment, Poultice or Plaster

On account of its penetrative and rubefacient effect on the skin, Vicks has been found excellent for many minor ailments, such as Bites, Boils, Burns, Bruises, Cuts, Frost bite, Itchings, Muscular Soreness, Poison oak, Sunburn, Headache.

Vicks Is Not Meant to Replace the Physician

At the first symptoms of a serious illness, such as pneumonia, a physician should always be called. Many other troubles, such as chronic catarrh or continued headache, call for the diagnosis of a good doctor. Vicks is simply an emergency remedy, which can be kept in the home ready for instant use and which can be used freely, with perfect safety, on the youngest member of the family.

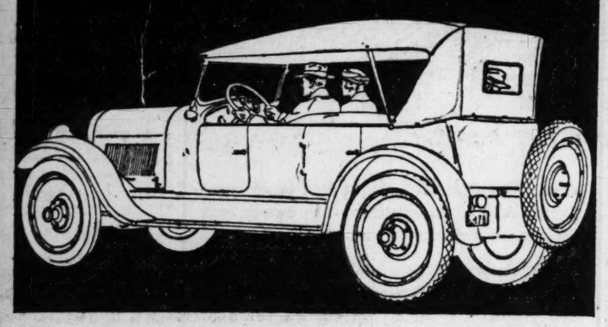
PAIGE



THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA

THE driving compartment in the Larchmont four passenger model is a revelation to most people—a blessing to the man behind the wheel. It was designed for luxurious ease and that means there is arm room, elbow room and leg room in abundance.

Most cars, you know, are obliged to compromise on seating space—but not the "Larchmont". It was designed to make four people supremely comfortable, and a combination of long wheel base and closer coach work has accomplished just this result.

GOVERNOR ISSUES SHIP-BY-TRUCK PROCLAMATION

Week of May 17 to Be Devoted to Furthering Truck Interests — Movement Is Nation-Wide.

In co-operation with a national movement, Gov. Gardner last week issued a proclamation, declaring the week of May 17 to 22 as Ship-by-Truck week in Missouri.

The Governors of 17 other States up to the present time have issued similar proclamations for that week. It is expected within the next few weeks that all states will officially designate that week to be devoted to the Ship-by-Truck movement.

The Firestone organization, which is fathering the idea, and the National Truck Sales Motors Association, which has officially adopted the Ship-by-Truck slogan, hope that a Federal proclamation will be issued along the same lines.

The definite program for that week in St. Louis has not been outlined as yet. It is hoped, that parades and truck tours will be held in the various cities and towns of the state. Michigan has already arranged for five separate truck tours of working toward the capital at Lansing.

The Governor's proclamation was as follows:

Whereas, The ever-increasing needs of quick transportation for short distances are growing constantly greater; and,

Whereas, Thousands of tons of farm produce are allowed to go to waste because of lack of quick means of transportation to the nearest markets; and,

Whereas, The high cost of living will be materially reduced by furnishing this convenient market; and,

Whereas, Merchandise of all kinds can be cheaply and expeditiously shipped to and fro by trucks,

Now, therefore, I, Frederick D. Gardner, Governor of Missouri, do hereby proclaim the week beginning Monday, May 17, 1920, as Ship-by-Truck Week in Missouri, and I hereby call upon all farmers, merchants and others interested in transportation matters, to meet on designated days in their respective communities to consider the serious problems which are apparent in our commonwealth as to the transportation of produce and supplies.

Given under my hand and official seal at the capitol, in Jefferson City, this 17th day of March, A. D. 1920.

LOWDEN TO ADDRESS ILLINOIS AUTO MEN

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 20.—The greatest gathering of successful automobile men ever held in Illinois will be attended by Illinois business executive, Gov. Lowden having accepted an invitation to be present. This announcement was made today by Harry G. Moock, general manager of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, who is here from St. Louis to perfect final plans for the convention of the automobile tradesmen here Monday and Tuesday.

The program for the meeting reveals that nationally known figures will be the speakers. Among them are H. B. Harper, Philadelphia, president of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, the largest distributor of Overland cars in the United States; Harry G. Moock, general manager of the N. A. D. A.; L. A. Piel, president of the Chicago Automobile Trade Association; George Fritz, Chicago, national field secretary of the Automotive Equipment Association; E. S. Jordan, automobile manufacturer, and A. R. Kroh of Chicago, who conducted the national truck tour last year for the manufacturers.

Traffic Work Progresses

Three new switches and as many new loading platforms have increased the shipping facilities of the Traffic Motor Truck Corporation factory 100 per cent, Vice President T. C. Brandle announced today.

Several other improvements completed last week will greatly facilitate work at the North St. Louis factory. All the dirt alleys and streets in the vicinity of the plant have been macadamized and placed in the best of condition.

The roads about the plant were almost impassable during the spring rains last week. It is believed a record was accomplished on this job, as the work was completed in 48 hours.

The frame shop, one of the new factory units under construction, is nearly completed. The new paint shop is being finished this week and work is already under way in the new building.

CLOSES SUCCESSFUL YEAR

A. G. Ross, president of the Franklin Motor Car Co., the local Franklin distributor, will spend the first anniversary of his St. Louis opening at the factory, endeavoring to secure increased deliveries.

The Franklin-Ross Co. opened its doors on March 23, 1919, and in the past year has more than doubled the number of cars sold in any one previous year. In this connection the factory has advised Mr. Ross that St. Louis has risen from fiftieth to fifteenth place in point of sales.

AN ONEIDA ELECTRIC TRUCK IS DELIVERED

The first Oneida electric truck, a two-ton model, to be received in St. Louis was delivered last week as the first of a fleet purchased from the Aldrich-Stephens Motor Co. by the Union Electric.

The Oneida electric truck, while new to the trade, is not an entirely new product, but was invented some years ago. It embodies many new principles. The new unit drive, which made its initial bow at the Commercial Car Show, was perhaps one of the most unique exhibits shown.

The truck develops a 16 to 1 gear ratio with but two gears, the one being but two teeth smaller than the other, which permits from four to six times as many teeth being constantly in mesh as are enmeshed in other electric transmissions.

The sale of the new electric was consummated at the Automobile Show.

5½ BILLION GALLONS OF OIL USED ANNUALLY

The consumption of motor oil throughout the United States during 1920 will be in excess of 5,500,000 gallons, according to an estimate prepared last week by Samuel J. Hunt, sales manager of J. D. Streett & Co., Forty-fifth street and Park avenue.

Hunt arrives at this figure based upon an estimate of one quart of oil for each 100 miles of travel for every automobile in use at the present ...

Discussing the recent advance in prices, he said that there is no expected decline until next September or October. This is on account of it being possible to use oils of a higher test in summer than in winter months.

LATEST LEXINGTON IS A RAKISH SPORT CAR

The dashing new member of the Lexington Motor Co.'s new series S line is "The Thorobred," its sport model.

This model has a touch of the unconventional but still retains that dignity which appeals to the discriminating motorist. The model is lower and has those rakish lines that bespeak the true sport model.

"The Thorobred" is mounted on the new Thoroughbred chassis. The new sport model is narrower than the regular touring car yet it has ample room in the rear seat. The car will seat four passengers with the maximum of comfort.

The equipment on "The Thorobred" sport model is as complete as modern engineering and construction skill can make it. Like all of the other Lexington models it is equipped with motor-meter, engine-driven tire pump and inspection light, and two-way semiautomatic head lamps that solve the head lamp glare menace.

TO NOMINATE OFFICERS.

The annual meeting and election of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers and Dealers' Association will be held April 12, at which president and vice president, treasurer and six directors are to be chosen. President P. H. Brockman has appointed as a Nominating Committee to select two tickets: A. G. Ross of the Franklin-Ross Automobile Co., Conrad Welling of the Welling Motor Co. and H. G. Brouster of Leach-Brouster & Co.

MOON
MODERN MOTOR CARS

IN jams of congested traffic and around sharp curves on the open road the Moon establishes driving confidence. The new models, like all Moons of the past, are noted for their short turning radius.

You can make your turn while the drivers of other impressive cars are looking for space. Only the slight touch of your thumb and index finger is necessary to shift the gears. You can steer with the pressure of two fingers.

Poised in the long leg-room of the driver's seat, arms and feet are rested by the positions of the wheel and pedals. The engine's heat is dissipated by the ventilation of the special Moon louvres. The instrument board is as accessible as a gentleman's hat.

Then Moon lines, so graceful because they are straight, add beauty to comfort and dexterous performance.

Thousands of High-Grade Stewarts in Use

There are now thousands of high-grade Stewarts in use throughout the world, in almost every line of business. Seven-year-old Stewarts are still giving excellent satisfaction to their owners.

They also cost less to run. Stewart simplified design eliminates hundreds of needless parts, giving you a simpler and stronger truck.

And these high-grade Stewarts cost $200 to $300 less than the average price of other trucks.

Their tire mileage is really exceptional — gasoline and oil consumption is low. Repair shops are almost strangers to high-grade Stewarts.

There are several hundred firms that have fleets of Stewarts they first started with one or two.

Let us tell you more about these remarkable trucks.

GARDNER CAR IS ONE YEAR OLD

Last Wednesday was the first anniversary of the Gardner Motor Co. It was March 17 of last year that the company took possession of 4300 Forest Park boulevard for experimental work that brought into existence the Gardner Light Four.

Russell E. Gardner and his two sons, Russell E., Jr., and Fred W., had gone over the question of manufacturing a car in all its preliminary details with engineers who had been with them in the production of the Chevrolet, and reached a clear idea of what was desired. Months of calculation and tests followed, including tryouts of models in the roughest stretches of country over which it is possible to send a car.

The output of the big plant of the Gardner company the second week of its occupancy was increased four cars over the 20 daily average the first week, and F. W. Gardner, vice president for production, gave it as his belief that the upward trend would continue steadily, reaching 50 cars a day next month and 100 daily in May, with the maximum capacity of 150 a day obtained in June.

BRUNSWICK TIRE TO ENLARGE ITS PLANTS

An announcement of significant importance has just come from the general office of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. at Chicago relative to the enlargement of their tire factories and the installation of an enormous amount of new equipment.

"Estimates just approved show that the new Brunswick tire factory at Muskegon, Mich., will cost a million and a half dollars," said H. F. Davenport, secretary. "In addition to this expenditure for buildings," continued Mr. Davenport, "we have contracted for new equipment and improved processes that will add at least $250,000 more to our Muskegon investment. Also we will increase our housing accommodations for employes and thus be assured of additional and high type, skilled workers."

The new Brunswick factories are being built by the Osborn Engineering Co. of Cleveland, O., who have become celebrated for their knowledge and ability in designing and constructing the most efficient tire factories.

Because of the popularity and demand Brunswick tires enjoy, these makers have been forced to provide these factory expansions and still another program of construction is planned for 1921.

NEW MANIFOLD ON LATEST PAIGE MOTOR

A recognized factor in the operation of gasoline-driven engines is the fact that fuel must be as completely vaporized as possible.

"After three years of intensive work the Paige engineers developed a new power plant with many features that mark a measurable advance," says Harry M. Jewett, president of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co., "and not the least important of these is the design and arrangement of the intake and exhaust manifolds that greatly increased the degree of vaporization of gasoline.

"In the new Paige engine the intake and the exhaust manifolds are cast integral, with the exhaust placed below so that the intake rests on it.

"With every section of the intake thus heated the incoming fuel from the carburetor comes in contact with hot metal up and down the entire chamber, because, being in heavy particles, it falls from force of gravity. The result is that these particles of fuel are broken up and a much dryer gas and a much higher degree of vaporization are attained than would otherwise be possible."

ISSUE OF ST. LOUIS NUMBER OF OLDS PACEMAKER

St. Louis motorists last week received the St. Louis number of the Oldsmobile Pacemaker, a magazine issued by the Olds Motor Works for their dealers and owners.

E. M. Brockman, president of the De Luxe Automobile Co., acted as the editor of this number, with the result that almost the entire issue is devoted to featuring St. Louis and the surrounding territory.

The cover is made up of an illustration of the familiar statue of Saint Louis, while Gen. Grant's cabin, Union Market and the levee make other settings for illustrations of the Oldsmobile.

"The city surrounded by the United States," is the title of the principle article, and is illustrated with numerous views of the city. A Safety First article illustrated by a familiar scene at Wabash crossing at Delmar Station is also included.

TO GUARANTEE TRUCK SERVICE

Federal Adopt New Sales Policy in Selling Motor Truck Transportation.

In the March issue of Federal Aid, the house organ of the Federal Motor Truck Co., D. A. Livingston, sales manager of the St. Louis Federal organization, has a very enlightening article headed: "I guarantee you 300 days' transportation every year with Federal trucks." In this article Livingston outlines the new sales policy recently adopted by the Federal Truck Co. of St. Louis in guaranteeing to their buyer the use of a Federal Truck for 300 days every year, which means practically every working day for the 12 months.

"The apparent inconsistency of arguments presented today by representatives of competition truck lines is evidenced to the prospective motor truck buyer by the fact that too much stress is placed upon the subject 'Motor Trucks,' and too little information given on the subject—'Transportation and Service,'" says Livingston.

"Every prospective truck buyer when he says: 'I need a motor truck in reality means to say, 'I need a truck that will take care of my transportation problems, rain or shine, every day in the year.' To this man we offer our proposition of guaranteeing him 300 days of transportation, which is really the solution of his problem.

Truck Is Essential.

"The progressive business man of today does not need to be sold on motor transportation. As a matter of fact, to the majority of prospective buyers, the motor truck is absolutely essential to their business. Engineers have perfected the mechanical features until today they are reliable and dependable. Yet they are only inanimate pieces of machinery, subject to wear and tear, breakage and the abuse of inefficient operators. These are factors that cannot be overcome by any excellence in manufacture or designing.

Eliminate Chance.

"Through our new sales policy we eliminate entirely these elements of chance which have often proved so aggravating to truck operators. Many owners often say that it is on the day that they need the truck most, that it is in the shop. To this end many owners from past experience have provided an emergency system of transportation, but with the plan of guaranteeing 300 days of transportation the necessity of such precautionary measures is done away with.

"In the short time since inaugurating the plan of selling transportation service rather than selling motor trucks we have found an instant response and appreciation among the truck-buying public. At the meeting of the Federal dealers all over the country at the time of the Chicago show I had occasion to outline our plan, and at the present time the Federal factory has under consideration the adoption of a similar sales plan throughout all the principal distributing points."

INCREASED CAPITAL FOR WILLYS-OVERLAND

The directors of the Willys-Overland Co., it is understood, are considering increasing the capitalization of the company to provide increased facilities which will result in large savings to the Willys-Overland Co., and at the same time permit of a greatly increased capacity to meet the remarkable demand for its product.

Prior to this country's entry into the war, with a concentrated production on one or two models, Willys-Overland showed great earning power, paying 23 per cent during the 12 months just before war was declared.

However, foreseeing a period of war service, Willys-Overland reduced dividends to a 4 per cent basis and offered its services unreservedly to the Government. Since then the company has met and overcome many serious though temporary obstacles.

The two new models, dealers report, are very successful, and more than 50,000 of the new Overland fours have been shipped since the model was announced Nov. 1. Present output is in excess of 600 per day and is expected this spring to reach 800 per day. But as the demand is steadily increasing in advance of the supply the company deems it advisable to prepare now for the establishment of facilities which will not only result in large economies for present activities, but will also insure the economical production of a much greater output.

John N. Willys has been steadily strengthening his organization during the past few years and has recently appointed as general manager of his various interests Mr. Walter P. Chrysler; former president of the Buick and vice president in charge of production of General Motors Corporation.

TWO PEERLESS VICTORIES.

The results of two stock car contests on the Pacific Coast, in which Peerless Eight came out victorious, were received last week by Ben Rennard, manager of the Hutcheson Motor Car Co.

A stock Peerless touring car carrying four passengers set a new record between Los Angeles and San Francisco. The distance of 423 miles was covered in nine hours and 20 minutes, including 40 minutes lost at the ferry. The previous record had been made by a stripped racing chassis.

The second victory was in the Camp Curry-Yosemite Valley economy run, in which the Peerless averaged 17 miles to the gallon over 374 miles of mountainous trails and consumed but 1⅛ pints of oil. The car weighed 4900 pounds and carried five passengers, together with a quantity of luggage.

BATTERY MEN TO WORK ON RENTAL BATTERIES

The stamping of rental batteries has become such a common practice with a certain class of automobile owners that the St. Louis Storage Battery Trade Association at its meeting last week decided to put a secret mark on every rental battery that is loaned out to owners. The purpose of this mark is the identification of the battery in case it is brought to another charging station. Members of the association will know these marks and when a purloined battery is presented for recharging, the truck which owns it will be photographed and permitted to recover it, either peacefully or by process of law if necessary.

It is estimated that 500 batteries a year are thus stolen by car owners, who drive in wornout batteries for charging, getting in exchange for them good rental batteries, which they never return. Under the new plan, the rental battery cannot be kept out longer than a month by any dishonest owner, for the reason that practically every battery dealer in St. Louis is a member of the St. Louis Storage Battery Trade Association and will know the peculiar mark on a rental battery of every other member.

ST. LOUIS TO DENVER TRIP FOR HARROUN

Word was received last week from P. S. Hough, the Denver distributer for Harroun cars, who had just completed an overland trip from St. Louis to Denver in one of the new Harroun models.

In wiring H. C. Merry of the Wilson Motor Car Co., local Harroun distributer, he said: "Arrived in Denver this morning. Distance 1150 miles; and running time, 50 hours. The roads in Missouri were bad, in Kansas good, and in Colorado better. You would be surprised at the performance of the new model. Riding qualities are much improved, particularly the front end. It is now a pleasure to ride in under any road conditions. Coasts freely, and motor has considerably more speed and power. Car has finished the trip in first-class condition."

Mr. Merry has been advised by the factory that production is going forward in good shape, and deliveries of the new models can be expected in the very near future.

Tire Prices Have Advanced

But 1,000,000 Motorists Will Save ½

A new advance in the price of automobile tires became effective March 8. Prices jumped from 15 to 25%.

With the problem of high living costs pressing on all sides, this situation demands a greater tire economy than ever before. Every dollar spent must bring maximum tire service.

Over a million motorists have already solved this problem with Gates Half-Sole Tires. They are now getting from 10,000 to 15,000 miles from the same tires which used to give them 5,000.

And they are getting this added mileage at only ½ the cost of ordinary tires. At present day prices, no tire buyer can afford to pass up this saving.

Over 1,600 experienced dealers throughout the United States will gladly show you how you can double your tire mileage at only ½ the cost of ordinary tires and get puncture proof service besides.

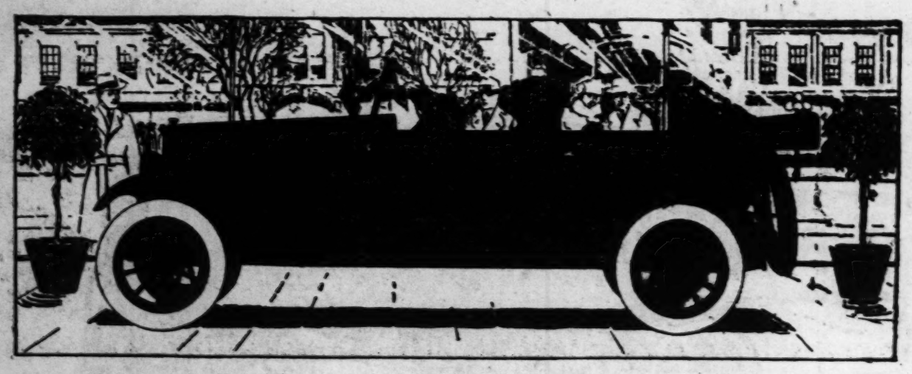
CHANDLER SIX

Famous For Its Marvelous Motor



Chandler Leads Because of Its Real Worth

IT is easy to boast and make claims and to so magnify mere incidents that they may appear as mighty events. It is easy to paint in the colors of exaggeration.

Chandler advertising has never carried boasts or unfounded assertions to the public. It has never extolled some single performance as final evidence of superiority.

The Chandler Six is so distinctly the leader among medium-priced high-grade cars because of its own worthiness, which for sales purposes does not need the support of exaggeration.

Chandler worthiness comes primarily, of course, from its great chassis, light, strong and enduring, featured by the famous Chandler motor developed throughout seven years of constant manufacture with no change of type of design, but with refinements and developments which have kept it long strides ahead of any other six.

This isn't a claim. It's a fact, and over sixty thousand Chandler owners would tell you so if you could ask them

Six handsome bodies, splendidly built and finished, are mounted on the one standard Chandler chassis.

Other cars of some similarity are listed at hundreds of dollars more

TEMPLAR SEDAN RECEIVED

The first Templar sedan to reach St. Louis was received last week by the Mid-States Motors Co.

The new model is a brewster green. The interior is trimmed in mahogany, with a mahogany panel ceiling. The upholstering is of tapestry and the fittings are of sterling silver.

The model is a five-passenger type, with individual front seats and two doors. It had been hoped that the new car would reach St. Louis in time for the Automobile Show, but congestion at the factory prevented its being delivered at that time.

THE MAXWELL TRUCK

HE'S FAST ON HIS "FEET"

He responds with spirit to any request. He is up and away in a jiffy, gets over ground faster than bigger fellows, who struggle under the heavy burdens of their own dead weight.

He turns a corner quickly, picks his way in and out of traffic, fairly runs away from most any other carrier when a street's thick with teams and motors.

He therefore makes more trips, more miles in a day, covers more territory, delivers or collects more parcels or freight.

That's why some call him "Speedy" Maxwell. He's there when it comes down to getting a thing done in a hurry.

He might just as well be called "Thrifty" Maxwell, for he's a penny counter, if you like.

He never uses food except when he's working for you and he's almost sure to make you a present of his first cost in one trip around the calendar.

AUTO TRADE WILL MAKE FIGHT FOR THE BOND ISSUE

P. H. Brockman, Division Chairman, Promises Earnest and Telling Support From Entire Motor Car Trade for Its Passage.

The automobile interests of St. Louis are to be actively interested in pushing the passage of the proposed $24,000,000 bond issue for the city of St. Louis. Already steps have been taken with the five automobile trade associations of the city to enlist the active personal work of members, and by the time real propaganda work should be done it is expected that the automobile trade of St. Louis will supply 1500 to 2000 automobiles for the use of speakers going from meeting to meeting, and for parades.

P. H. Brockman, president of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers' and Dealers' Association, has been made chairman of the automobile trade committee and Robert E. Lee is vice chairman. Mr. Brockman has already taken up the matter of the bond issue with the directors of the Motor Accessory Trade Association, the St. Louis Storage Battery Association, the St. Louis Tire Dealers' Association and the St. Louis Commercial Car Bureau and has been promised earnest and effective co-operation.

"I know of no interest that is as much concerned in the passage of the $24,000,000 bond issue as the automobile trade," said Mr. Brockman to the Post-Dispatch. "There are at least two items in the bond issue which vitally concern the automobile trade. The first of these is, of course, the amount that will be provided for the improvement of streets. We know that the sale of automobiles is greatly hampered, and made harder, and even lessened by St. Louis' bad streets. Any man who drives an automobile in St. Louis knows that the streets are in an abominable condition. At this moment I cannot think of a really good street in the city, except possibly those in the far south end or the far north end of the city, where the traffic is very light.

"We understand why the streets are not put into condition. We have been in the closest touch with the Street Department through Director of Streets and Sewers Charles M. Talbert, and we know that there is no money at his command for street work and that none is available. There are dozens of our principal highways that need resurfacing. They are so full of holes at this time that extreme care in driving is necessary to prevent the breakage of springs. If, for no other reason than this, every automobile man and every automobile owner in St. Louis should be vitally interested in the passage of the bond issue.

"Another item in the bond issue which is of vital interest to the automobile men of St. Louis is that providing for an auditorium or convention hall. At this time, St. Louis is without a building of any description which is really suitable for convention use, and particularly for those conventions which have with them displays of manufacturers. We are also without a building which is entirely suitable for the holding of an automobile show, a tractor show, a vehicle and implement show or a stock show. Right now the automobile trade of St. Louis is trying to figure some way by which it can erect a temporary building before February, 1920, for its fourteenth annual automobile show, and we are almost at our wits' end to know what to do.

"Aside from these two selfish interests, the automobile trade should be interested in the passage of the bond issue for broad civic reasons. There is not an item in the bond issue that does not appeal to any citizen of St. Louis, because it means the development of this city and its future growth. Without a bond issue I believe that our growth will be stunted to a degree that will set St. Louis back of competing cities by many years."

ST. LOUIS NEW PERFECT MECHANICAL GEAR SHIFT

The Blackburn Steering Wheel and Gear Shift Co. of St. Louis has been organized, with a capitalization of $750,000, to manufacture a mechanical gear shift, and a steering wheel on which all of the car's controls are located. Jasper Blackburn, who is president of the Ever-Stick Anchor Co., is president of the new company. T. H. Houx is vice president and B. B. Alexander is secretary. The new device, which is already in operation on a Buick demonstrating car, does away entirely with shift levers. The sped gears are shifted by a small finger lever on the same sector on which the gas and spark controls are located. The speed lever is set for first speed, the engine started, and the clutch pushed, and the car moves forward in first speed. The speed lever is then changed to second sped, or high, speed, and the pushing out of the clutch makes the change automatically.

The steering wheel which the company will also make has on it by an ingenious method, control of the lights, the horn and the ignition. Pressure of the fingers in a groove in the wheel operates them. The two devices are to be sold to manufacturers of automobiles. They have already been submitted to several of the large manufacturers and have met with approval. The plant for the manufacture of the devices is to be located in St. Louis.

U. S. Tires Advances Hubbard.

The United States Tire Co. announced last week the appointment of Harry Hubbard as southwestern sales manager, with headquarters at Kansas City. From 1912 to 1917 Hubbard was branch manager at St. Louis, leaving here for Minneapolis, and the next year being appointed district manager at Kansas City. For the past year he has acted as Western manager for distributors' sales.

Now Good for Many More Miles

With the Miller Ad-On-A-Tires Your Old Tires Are Made Almost as Good as New

When you put Miller Ad-On-A-Tires on your worn tires you are virtually rebuilding them. It makes them oversize as well as more puncture-proof.

For Miller Ad-On-A-Tires are more than simply a tread. They are really a tire itself without the beads. They are built of tough, buoyant rubber with several layers of fabric, a breaker strip, and side wall which completely covers the tire and clinches under the rim. Each has the famous Miller Geared-to-the-Road or rib tread.

They are put on by a special method. This makes the Miller Ad-On-A-Tire an integral part of the tire. It fits snugly and cannot creep.

Bring in your worn tires. Let us show you how the Miller Ad-On-A-Tire enables you to get 75 per cent more mileage. For a very small fraction of the original cost of your tires they can be made almost as good as new.

It makes no difference what size they are. Or what make. The Miller Ad-On-A-Tire fits them all. So bring your tires to us and let us show you how to get miles and miles of additional service.

GEN. HINES TO ADDRESS WATERWAYS MEETING

Will Be Principal Speaker at Convention at Hotel Statler April 19.

Brigadier-General Frank T. Hines, Director for the War Department of its Division of Inland Waterways, which includes the Government River Service between St. Louis and New Orleans, will be the chief speaker at the annual convention of the Mississippi Valley Waterways Association in Hotel Statler April 19.

This was announced yesterday by James E. Smith, president of the association, in sending out the call for the convention. Smith has not yet completed the list of speakers, awaiting acceptances from several Governors who have been invited to attend. Governors of states in the valley are authorized to appoint 10 delegates to the convention. Mayors of cities five delegates, and each commercial organization speaking for any city of the valley five delegates.

The work of the convention will be to further the campaign for the immediate completion of navigation projects on the Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio rivers already approved by Congress. One measure in this respect will be drafting resolutions for submission to the Republican and Democratic national conventions as a suggestion for platform incorporation.

The supporters of waterways projects will take the convention as opportunity to express elation at the following phrase in the railroad bill recently passed by Congress: "Promotion, encouragement and development of water transportation service and facilities in connection with the commerce of the United States and to foster and preserve in full vigor both rail and water transportation." They feel that that expression by Congress establishes for all time waterways as an integral, co-ordinate branch of national transportation, to be fostered from time to time by congressional act.

The convention will precede by one day the two-day convention in St. Louis of the Mississippi Valley Association.

REDS IN ESSEN; LABOR WINS CONCESSIONS; STRIKE OFF

Socialization of Industry Given as One Point Conceded by German Government in Effort to Get the Country Back to Peace After Military Coup.

ASSEMBLY TO MEET IN BERLIN THURSDAY

Virtual State of Civil War Reported in Some Sections of the Nation; Bolshevism in the Ruhr District; Hundreds Killed.

By the Associated Press.

STUTTGART, March 20.—It is now agreed that the National Assembly will meet in Berlin Thursday instead of Tuesday.

The Ebert cabinet will remain intact for the present, according to high official sources. There has been discussion of Dr. Mueller's retirement. Count von Bernstorff is a candidate for deputy in the next elections, and has frequently been mentioned for the post of Foreign Affairs, but he is opposed because of the possible American attitude due to his pre-war activities in the United States.

Private dispatches report a virtual state of civil war in Saxony and Thuringia. Government authorities are censoring newspaper reports to prevent the spread of alarm. Uprisings in Bavaria, Wuerttemburg, Baden and the North are learned of here. Loyal Government troops are now reported proceeding to Central Germany. The number of loyal Reichswehr troops available is not revealed.

PARIS, March 20.—Ten thousand armed workmen are concentrated at Halle-on-Saale (20 miles northwest of Leipsic), and the Reichsweir staff is negotiating with them, says a Havas dispatch from Stuttgart. Bolshevist elements among the workmen, however, are making a settlement difficult.

Essen Taken by Red Army; About 300 Killed.

By the Associated Press.

STUTTGART, March 19.—The Ruhr district is aflame with Bolshevism, according to official reports. Essen has been taken by Red army and Gen. von Watter's local troops are awaiting reinforcements. Thuringia is said now to be under control of Government troops. About 300 are reported killed.

(The Ruhr district includes the coal mines along the Rhine near Essen.)

BRUSSELS, March 20.—The capture of Essen was effected on Friday by a Spartacan army equipped with cannon and armored automobiles, according to advices from Aix-le-Chapelle today. The Spartacans proclaimed a soviet republic there.

During last night, the advices add, the manufacturing city of Dusseldorf, on the Rhine north of Cologne, was captured by Spartacan forces, the Government troops evacuating it without a fight.

CONCESSIONS TO LABOR MADE TO RESTORE PEACE

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 20.—The general strike in Germany has been called off, according to Berlin advices received here this afternoon. The Government, it is stated, has accepted the workers' demands, including far-reaching concessions to the Independent Socialists, which will be made public shortly.

Deliberations between the Government at Berlin and the strike committee continued last night, says a Berlin dispatch to the London Times. The following convention was signed in the early morning.

First—The Government's representatives will intervene with the political parties to reform the same. Prussian cabinet ministers will be nominated by agreement between the parties and the trade unionists.

Second—The labor organizations will have a decisive influence in these nominations, respecting, however, the rights of Parliament.

Third—Punishment of the leaders of the recent coup, including all officials and civil servants who supported the Kapp regime.

Fourth—Democratization of all administration and the dismissal of

BE 'DRY' TO FIND LIBERTY, JOHNSON ADVISES FRANCE

American Inaugurates Campaign at Paris Before a Small and Silent Audience.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 20.—William E. Johnson has inaugurated a prohibition campaign in France. He addressed a Paris audience for the first time on prohibition this evening, under auspices of the "Blue Cross Society."

This society advocates absolute prohibition, as compared with the anti-alcoholic league of France and a newly organized group of 60 Deputies of the French Chamber, who repudiate the "heavier" alcoholic drinks, but advocate wines and beer. "Prohibition in America," said Johnson, "is the most beneficial measure adopted. The jails are emptied, the banks are full of money and the people are happy. I have no advice to give to France, but if the country wants to achieve real liberty, let it adopt absolute prohibition."

He spoke to a rather small audience, composed mostly of women, and his words were received silently.

Johnson has just returned from six weeks in Northern Africa, 400 miles south of Constantine, Algeria, where he was ordered by his physicians after his nervous breakdown in London.

DIAMONDS VALUED AT $1200 SOUGHT IN ASHPIT, PART FOUND

Gems Hidden in Chandelier Had Been Shaken Out and Tossed Away With Refuse.

An ash pit in the rear of the home of Morris Goralnik, 1410 Belt avenue, was the scene of much activity yesterday when the family hired laborers to sort out the ashes and refuse in an effort to find diamonds valued at $1200, supposd to have been tossed into the pit.

In the debris a lavalliere set with diamonds valued at $800 was recovered but two rings set with diamonds and valued at $200 each were not found. Further search is being made for them.

The search of the pit was started after Mrs. Jennie Goralnik had discovered that the diamonds she had hidden in a chandelier in the bathroom light were missing. Policemen learned paper hangers had been at work in the room and learned that old paper torn from the walls had been carried to the ashpit and burned. The chandelier had been tipped over in repapering the room and the gems had fallen among the old paper and had been carried to the ash pit with it.

SALOON MEN FAIL TO APPEAR FOR ANTI-PROHIBITION MEETING

Belleville Liquor Dealers Association Unable to Muster Quorum and Plans for Demonstration Go Awry.

Prohibition has become such a dry topic that a quorum of Belleville saloon keepers cannot be got together to discuss it, or else it is a subject which they just can't bear to talk about.

When word reached Belleville that national prohibition had come, President John Schlosser of the Liquor Dealers' Association called for a meeting yesterday to protest against it. It was planned to have a popular demonstration on the public square, at which the eighteenth amendment would be soundly trounced.

As stated, there wasn't a quorum. Those saloon men who were present spoke strongly against prohibition, and said they didn't believe it would work. Having, however, failed to get a quoroum of their own members, it was decided that no attempt would be made to arrange for a mass meeting.

SUICIDE VERDICT IN SHOOTING OF MRS. ELSA WRIGHT

Inquest Held in West End Home of William J. Lemp's Daughter, Coroner Hearing Testimony.

HUSBAND TELLS OF FINDING REVOLVER

Wife Was Conscious When He Reached Her, and Looked at Him but Could Not Speak.

A Coroner's verdict of suicide was returned yesterday afternoon at an inquest over Mrs. Elsa Lemp Wright of 13 Hortense place, who shot and killed herself there at 8:30 a. m., 12 days after she had been remarried to Thomas H. Wright, vice president of the More-Jones Brass & Metal Co. She was a daughter of the late William J. Lemp, brewer, and was 37 years old.

The inquest was held at the Wright home. A jury was impaneled, but it did not hear the testimony. After the jurors viewed the body they wrote their signatures on a blank verdict and were dismissed. Deputy Coroner Dever filled in the blank with the verdict after hearing the testimony. The only witnesses were Wright, two policemen and four women household servants. Dever said the signing of a blank verdict by the jury was not unusual in cases where there was no suspicion of homicide.

Wright, who was nervous and sobbed frequently, testified that his wife was ill Friday night and slept very little. She was restless and had nausea, he said, and got up several times in the night.

When she arose yesterday morning, he said, he asked her how she felt and she replied she was very tired and believed she would remain in bed.

Heard Sharp Sound.

"I told her I thought that was a wise thing to do," said Wright, "and I then went into the bathroom and turned on the water in the tub. I remembered that I had not taken a change of underwear and I went into our room and got it from a closet. I returned to the bathroom and had just closed the door when I heard a sharp sound. I thought my wife was trying to attract my attention.

"I opened the door and said: 'Did you call me? Did you throw something?' My wife did not answer. She was lying on her back. Her eyes were open and she seemed to be looking at me. As I advanced I saw a revolver lying beside her on the bed. Perhaps I picked it up and threw it on a couch where it was afterwards found. She tried to speak to me, but could not."

In reply to questions by the Deputy Coroner, Wright said his wife had never threatened to take her life. "She always seemed happy, except when she had sick spells," he said. "She had nausea last night, and ate scarcely any dinner. I did not know she had a revolver. I never saw it before. She left no note."

Revolver on Couch.

Sergt. Michael Burke and Patrolman August Klein testified they were sent to the Wright home by the Newstead Avenue Station Desk

POLICEMEN TO TEACH PUBLIC SAFETY FIRST

Week's Instruction to Begin Tomorrow, to Be Devoted to Reckless Crossing of Streets.

Policemen will be utilized to instruct the public in the rules of "safety first," beginning tomorrow, it was stated by Barney Verheyen, secretary of the police Efficiency Bureau and an official in the Safety First Council here, yesterday.

The first lesson to be taught will be warning to pedestrians crosisng the street at any other point than a regular crossing. Beginning tomorrow, the police will be instructed to devote their attention for a week to this lesson.

A pedestrian caught crossing in the middle of the block will be stopped and politely told that such action is dangerous and the danger will be pointed out in an effort to prevent a repetition of the incident.

Each week a new subject will be used to emphasize the safety first slogan. For instance, Verheyen said, one week would be devoted to warning children about roller skating in the street, hanging on to automobiles with bicycles, etc.

The next week will be devoted to warning against starting fires in weeds in vacant lots and about the general danger from fires.

Verheyen held a conference with the Board of Education last week, in which it was agreed that the safety first principle was to be imbued in the school children under a plan he suggested. Under this plan the older children in the schools will be named as monitors to safeguard the younger ones at street crossings near the schools before and after school hours.

These monitors will work with the policeman stationed at the school to see that the children use the regular crossing. They will be warned again running across in the middle of the block and running into the street on any occasion. At street car crossings near schools the monitors will also be used to see the younge charges safely across.

NEW STYLES FOR MEN ELIMINATE THE TIGHT SUIT

Color Orgies Also Absent From Spring and Summer Offerings of Fashion Arbiters.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 20.—New designs for men's spring and summer attire, to be displayed at the annual fashion show of the New York Custom Cutters' Club, Monday night, virtually eliminate the tight-fitting suit. Instead, a natural fitting coat, not so narrow and just a fraction longer, has been evolved by fashion arbiters.

The experts agree that the American man prefers three buttons instead of two, on his coat, and he will have them.

Male attire, however, will retain the narrow sleeves, and a 10-inch opening in the coat back. Slash pockets have gone, but those in the waistcoat and coat will have a slight curve. Trousers will have little change.

Only slight changes have been made in evening dress and in the cutaway.

The "very modish" will get a "snappy sport sack suit," with wide belt and two pleats.

There will be no orgy of color schemes. The light spring overcoat will be "shapely in front with a full box back and no vent." It will have the popular circular patch pockets. Light colors will predominate.

TRAVELERS TO ENGLAND WARNED

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Americans planning to visit England are advised to make arrangements for hotel accommodations in London and also to ascertain hotel rates in advance, in a consular report received today by the State Department.

English newspapers have spread rumors "that 100,000 rich Americans are anxious to invade London," the message said.

HAWES READY FOR SENATE RACE ON BEER-WINE ISSUE

Says He Is Seriously Considering Getting Into Fight If Other Candidates "Pussyfoot" on Altering Enforcement Act.

DEMANDS THAT ALL SAY WHERE THEY STAND

Believes Even a Democrat Could Carry St. Louis on This Issue by 25,000 and State by 150,000.

Maj. Harry B. Hawes yesterday issued a statement calling on Missouri Democratic candidates for the United States Senate to declare whether they would or would not support an amendment to the Volstead law, permitting the manufacture of cider, beer and light wine of alcoholic content.

Hawes further declared that, unless some candidate makes a positive announcement on this subject, he will himself "seriously consider becoming a Democratic candidate for Senator."

Mere declarations in favor of law enforcement do not suffice, Hawes says, as no candidate not favoring law enforcement would merit the support of decent citizens. He insists that candidates for Senator shall state their position on the proposal to amend the Volstead law. He also demands that candidates for Governor shall say whether or not they will sign a bill which, "while outlawing the saloon, whisky and strong alcoholic drinks, will permit the manufacture and use of cider, beer and light wines."

Throughout his argument Hawes appears to assume that prohibition of the manufacture and sale of whisky is to continue, and that the return of the saloon is not to be permitted. Saloons, in many cases, still exist as soft drink places.

Early Clergy Praised.

In the introduction of his long statement, Hawes praises the men of pioneer days, who upheld freedom; the clergy of the same period, who "did not think it necessary to call on the Government at Washington to do the church's work;" and the women of those days.

"The women did their part in those days," he says, "as they soon will do in the political arena with the men. I am not one of those who believes that the woman voter will be moved solely by emotion or sentimental appeal. She has the same stuff in her; she has the same common sense, the same courage that her pioneer ancestors had.

"As he fired through the loophole upon the red devils who were seeking their lives, she was ramming home the powder and the ball in 'Old Bess' of 'Long Tim,'" and many times she used these weapons herself.

"When thousands of savages surrounded the blockhouse at Harrodsburg during the night, and their presence was discovered, who does not remember with a spirit of pride how, deceiving the wily enemy, they went out in the morning to the spring, filled their buckets with water and returned without spilling a drop, while a thousand wicked eyes looked on? And she will do the same thing in November. She will stand for her home and the freedom of her home, and she will fight bigotry and intolerance, as her grandmothers did before her."

Cites State Constitution.

Hawes cites the declaration in the constitution of Missouri:

"That Missouri is a free and independent State, subject only to the constitution of the United States; and as the preservation of the States and the maintenance of their governments are necessary to an indestructible union, and were intended to co-exist with it, the Legislature is not authorized to adopt, nor will the people of this State ever assent to any amendment or change of the constitution of the United States which may in any wise impair the right of local self-government belonging to the people of this State."

Hawes then proceeds to discuss the beginnings of the Anti-Saloon League, comparing its founders with the "King" (or Dauphin), and the "Duke," cheap impostors who were passengers on Huckleberry Finn's raft in Mark Twain's story.

"The Duke of Bridgewater and the Dauphin in Missouri," Hawes writes, "met with various other Dukes of Bridgewater and Dauphins from other states, and formed a corporation in the state of Ohio, and called it the Anti-Saloon League. It was a good name, because many people did not like the saloon. They did not like it for its interference in politics and they did not like it because frequently it became a breeding place for vice and crime. The Dukes of Bridgewater and the Dauphins could easily have suppressed the saloon in one of two ways: First, by creating a prohibitive license fee, for the power to tax contains within it the pow-

SENATOR NEWBERRY CONVICTED; GETS TWO YEARS, FINED $10,000

DEPOSITOR WALKS IN ON A HOLDUP AND LOSES $500

Grocer Appears as Robbers Back Out of Steamship Agency and Branch Postoffice With $350.

A trio of armed highwaymen who held up the steamship agency and branch postoffice at 1015 North Seventh street, conducted by Pasquale Copplino, were backing out of the place with $350 at 6 o'clock last night when Vito Viviano, a grocer at 1014 North Seventh street, walked in to deposit $500. He carried the money in his hand and failed to see Copplino motioning frantically for him to retire.

The robbers observed the agent's wig-wagging and one turned on Viviano with his revolver.

"Where are you going with that money?" demanded the robber as he caught sight of the bills in the grocer's hand.

"I'm going to put it away for safekeeping," replied Viviano.

"Safekeeping hell!" grunted the robber, pressing his pistol to Viviano's abdomen. "We've just cleaned out the place. Hand it over. If you had come a few minutes later we would have missed you."

Others in Place Held Up.

Five men had driven up to the building in a small black automobile and three alighted, running inside, drawing pistols when the leader ordered "hands up." Frank Copplino, brother of Pasquale, was in charge at the time and was behind a cage. He laughed but was told to "hurry up." When he raised his hands he was ordered outside of the cage and was lined up against a partition at the rear of the room with the clerk of the agency, Alexander de Rubeis, 2527 Glasgow; Mike Veltri, 1033 Howard street; Frank Furci, 1514 North Seventh street; and Sam Inzerillo, North Ninth street.

While one of the men went into the cage another kept a pistol aimed at the men and the third went through their pockets, getting $27 from Copplino, $3 from Furci, $2 from Veltri and $10 from Inzerillo. The third may by this time had taken $350 in money, checks and stamps from the postoffice safe and demanded that Copplino open the agency safe.

Robbers Escape in Auto.

Copplino explained he was not the manager and did not know the combination. He was made to swear he was telling the truth. At this time Viviano entered.

The robbers escaped in their automobile. The license number was reported to the police.

Walter M. Kessler, 20 years old, living at the Antlers Hotel, Eighteenth and Olive, and employed by the Independent Auto Livery Association, 902 Washington avenue, who was arrested an hour after the robbery at his stand in front of Hotel Statler, admitted to Acting Chief of Detectives Murphy that he had driven the car occupied by the robbers.

Tells of Driving Auto.

Kessler gave the name of an Italian who, he said, was the leader in the robbery. He had known the man several weeks, he said, and had driven him about prior to last night.

At 10 o'clock last night detectives arrested in a back room of a saloon at 801 Carr street Guy Prizzici, 30 years old, who said he had no home, and Jerome Sala, 25 years old, who gave his address as 801 Carr street. Prizzici had an envelope bearing the name and business address of Coppolino. A loaded revolver was found in a box near which Prizzici was standing when arrested. Kessler said the prisoners resembled two of the men who had entered the steamship agency. Each had $10 in his pockets. They said they knew nothing about the robbery.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE DECLARES WAR ON SENATOR HITCHCOCK

Opposition for "Light Wines" Stand Aimed to Wrest Democratic Leadership From Him.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—The Anti-Saloon League of America declared war on Senator Hitchcock today because he said he favored an amendment to the prohibition code permitting "light wines and beers." The league aims to defeat him for the leadership of the Senate.

Sixteen Others, Including Brother, Found Guilty of Conspiracy to Violate Michigan Election Laws in 1918, While Jury Acquits 68 of Those on Trial.

HE APPEALS AND WILL RETAIN SEAT

Verdict as to Chief Defendant Required but One Ballot; Findings Were Largely the Result of Evidence Introduced by Defense.

By the Associated Press.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 20.—Truman H. Newberry, junior Senator from Michigan, was convicted today by a jury of having conspired criminally in 1918 to violate the election laws. He was sentenced to two years imprisonment and fined $10,000. Released on bond pending an appeal, after a motion for a new hearing had been overruled, Newberry at once issued a statement declaring his intention to retain his seat in the Senate unless that body should decide otherwise, or the Supreme Court uphold his conviction.

16 Others Convicted, Sentenced.

Others sharing in the Senator's fate were his brother, John S. Newberry, and 15 campaign managers, including Frederick Cody, New York, and Paul H. King, Detroit. Both received the limit sentence.

Charles A. Flood, Detroit, was also sentenced to two years, but he was fined only half as much as Newberry. The brother was fined $10,000 and was one of four not sentenced to Leavenworth.

The lightest sentence went to George S. Ladd of Sturbridge, Mass., who was fined $1000.

The men found guilty other than those named, and their sentences, follow:

William J. Mickal, Oshkosh, two years.

Allan A. Templeton, president Detroit Board of Commerce, one year and six months.

Roger M. Andrews, Menominee, publisher, one year and six months.

Milton Oakman, Detroit politician, one year and six months.

Richard H. Fletcher, State Labor Commissioner, one year and three months.

James F. McGregor, Detroit, one year and three months.

Fred Henry, Flint, one year and three months.

Hannibal Hopkins, publicity agent, one year and one day.

E. V. Chilson of National Republican Headquarters, one year and one day.

Harry O. Turner, Detroit, fined $2000.

B. Frank Emery, office manager, fined $2000.

Sixty-Eight Defendants Freed.

The jury was ready with its verdict at 11:42 a. m., and less than half an hour later had been discharged, after freeing 68 of the 85 defendants. 16 associates were brought into court. After luncheon the Senator and his 16 associates were brought into court again.

Ordered to stand before the bar, the men ranged themselves in a crescent, the Senator at the left.

Judge Sessions asked if any of the convicted men wished to say anything before sentence was pronounced. They stood mute. Then the court read the formula of sentence.

"Truman H. Newberry, in your case, it is the judgment of the court that you be confined in the penitentiary at Leavenworth for the full time and period of two years, and fined $10,000," he said.

No one stirred when the audience realized that the Judge had addressed against the principal defendant the heaviest possible sentence. There was a deep breath or two when the same sentence was meted out to King and Cody. One or two defendants stirred a bit when Ward was given a slightly less severe penalty, but each succeeding sentence to prison or heavy fine was received in silence.

Immediately after the sentences had been passed, Frank C. Dailey of Indianapolis, Assistant Attorney General and chief prosecutor, wiped the slate clean by moving dismissal of ten of the 135 respondents to the indictment who had pleaded "no contest." He also moved the discharge of Elmer E. White of Traverse City,

PEACE MOVE IN THE HOUSE; SENATE PUTS OFF ACTION

Some Senators Still Hope for Ratification of Treaty and Sound Others on Recall for Further Effort, but Collapse of This Movement Is Predicted.

DOCUMENT BACK WITH PRESIDENT

No Comment From the White House on Failure of the Treaty and President Is Expected to Let People Act.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—After a troubled eight month's sojourn in the Senate the treaty with Germany was back in the keeping of the President tonight, with a note appended saying ratification had been refused. What the President's next move would be remained conjectural. White House officials declined to comment. The general feeling of officials elsewhere, however, was that Mr. Wilson probably would let the treaty lie on his desk while the bitter controversy it has raised is fought out in the elections.

The treaty was taken back to the White House early today by officials and messengers from the Senate, in pursuance of an order adopted last night after a fourth vote on ratification had failed. It was delivered to Secretary Tumulty.

Scarcely had the bulky document, the bone of Senate contention, through many weeks, passed physically out of the Capitol building, when some of the Senators who worked for ratification began a movement to recall it and try again for a compromise. Mild reservation Republicans and compromise Democrats discussed the possibilities of such an effort without a decision, however, and the prediction of leaders was that no proposal for another reconsideration would take serious form.

Declaration of Peace Plans.

The unsettled state of Senate opinion nevertheless showed plans of Republican leaders for passage of a declaration of peace, and it was decided after many conferences that the resolution for that purpose probably would not be urged before late next week. Previously the purpose had been to bring it up Monday and press for early action.

In making this decision the majority managers are understood to have been influenced partly by undetermined factors in the House which also would have to act on a peace resolution and whose leaders balked at a similar proposal last December.

Today the Senate was not in session, but the question of a peace declaration was raised in the House by Representative Tinkham, Republican, Massachusetts, who introduced a declaratory resolution and had it referred to the Foreign Relations Committee. In its general provisions it follows the resolution of Senator Knox, Republican, which is backed by Republican Senate leaders. Both provide for repeal of the declaration of war, for certain settlements with Germany, and for a declaration of international policy.

Until Congress or the President takes some affirmative action to end the war status legally, the technical position of the country remains, officials said, as on the day the armistice was signed. War legislation continues in force and under the War Department interpretation of the situation the President retains his war powers as commander-in-chief to keep American troops wherever in Germany he thinks necessary to enforce the armistice.

President's Position.

The President has expressed emphatic disapproval of securing a technical peace status except by ratification of the treaty. Senators generally do not believe he has altered and the Republican Senate leaders confidently expect that, if they pass a peace resolution, he will veto it. They hope, however, to secure enough Democratic support to repass it by the necessary two-thirds majority.

Three Courses for President.

Three courses are open to Mr. Wilson. He can return the treaty to the Senate, in which case the Republican leaders declare it will be pigeonholed; he can do nothing while he awaits for the verdict of the people, or he can treat the treaty as a dead letter, so far as international diplomacy is concerned, and proceed to negotiate a separate peace with Germany, a step which he alone could initiate.

Whichever he chooses, a long delay seems inevitable before he can bring the country to a full peace status, and the State Department holds that, until such a status is attained, present diplomatic and trade relations with Germany must be continued.

There is an American commissioner in Berlin representing the United States unofficially, but he is not regarded as having diplomatic status. All negotiations of a diplomatic character are conducted through the Spanish Ambassador there. In the Consular field, too, the United States still is represented in Germany by Spanish agents.

Move for Another Effort.

The move of some Senators to recall the treaty and try again for ratification was in nebulous stage tonight, and the general prediction was that it would collapse before Monday. Leaders on both sides said they saw no likelihood of any recall action.

Some mild reservation Republicans are understood to have withheld their decision on a peace declaration until there was a possibility of a reconsideration of the ratification vote. There also was some uncertainty among Republican irreconcilables, some of whom do not approve of that section of the Knox resolution which reaffirms a previous declaration of Congress in favor of the principle of an internation court and disarmament. The present, these Senators agree, is not the time for any declaration of international policy.

Text of Resolution.

Tinkham's resolution follows:

"Resolved, By the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, that the joint resolution of Congress, passed April 6, 1917, declaring 'a state of war exists between the Imperial German Government and the Government and people of the United States, and making provisions to prosecute the same,' be, and the same is hereby, repealed. Provided, however, that unless the German Government notifies the Government of the United States that it acquiesces in and confirms irrevocably to the United States all undertakings and covenants contained in the treaty of Versailles conferring upon or assuring to the United States or its nationals any rights, powers or benefits whatsoever and concedes to the United States all rights, privileges, indemnities, reparations and advantages to which the United States would have been entitled if it were a ratifying party to said treaty, the President of the United States shall have the power, by proclamation, to prohibit commercial intercourse between the United States and Germany and the making of loans or credits, and the furnishing of financial assistance or supplies to the German Government or the inhabitants of Germany, directly or indirectly, by the Government of the United States or the inhabitants of the United States.

Punishment for Violations.

"Any violations of the prohibition contained in such proclamation by the President shall be punishable as provided in section 16 of the trading with the enemy act approved Oct. 6, 1917.

"It is further resolved that it shall be the declared policy of the United States that the freedom and peace of Europe being again threatened by any Power or combination of Powers, the United States will regard such a situation with grave concern and will consider what, if any, action it will take in the premises."

In a statement explaining his resolution, Tinkham said "common sense and the logic of events dictate this course much more powerfully now than when the treaty failed last November.

"The present anomalous condition of the United States being neither at peace nor at war with Germany is neither marked by dignity nor common sense," declared Tinkham.

"A declaration in relation to the interests of the United States in the freedom and peace of Europe is a declaration of policy to which few Americans can object no matter how vigorously and profoundly opposed to any political alliance between America and Europe."

Failure of the Senate to ratify the treaty, it was learned today, will not halt the negotiations between the United States and the allies on the Turkish settlement. It was explained that the Entente Governments had asked for the American Government's opinion and that the United States would be justified in expressing its views because if it should eventually enter the league of nations it would be interested in what was done with regard to Turkey before it became a member of the league.

As to the situation now existing between Germany and the United States, it was said that America could negotiate a modus vivendi with Germany and with the allies covering its right under the treaty. It also was said that the United States could continue to police the zones assigned to it pending the holding of the plebescites in certain German districts because the expense of this is borne by Germany.

Since the armistice terms continue in effect as between the United States and Germany until there is a declaration of peace, it was said that there would be no change in the status of the American troops on the Rhine. These now are acting under orders only from the War Department, as the other nations maintaining armed forces on the Rhine have become parties to the peace treaty.

Rejected Treaty Formally Returned to President Is Receipted for by Tumulty

WASHINGTON, March 20.

A LITTLE group of White House attaches, newspaper men and callers waiting a word with Secretary Tumulty saw this morning the ending of the drama that began last July when the President, then in rosy health, buoyantly walked up the aisle of the Senate chamber and laid on the clerk's desk the treaty of peace with Germany.

At 10:10 this morning, obeying the mandate of the Senate, George A. Sanderson, clerk of that body, arrived at the executive offices of the White House. He was accompanied by W. L. Van Horn, distributing clerk in his office, and George Payne, a negro messenger.

Ordinarily it would have fallen to the lot of Van Horn to carry a message to the White House, but this was an occasion of greater moment, and Sanderson himself bore the treaty, a bulky volume wrapped in white paper tied with red tape.

Camera Men at Scene.

A battery of photographers met the party at the door of the office. Sanderson with the treaty under his arm, obligingly posed, and then made his way slowly to the door while the moving picture cameras clicked.

Secretary Tumulty had not arrived when the party entered his office. They stood waiting but now it was George Payne that held the treaty. The others made themselves comfortable, but George remained standing, his right side sagging under the weight of the document.

Tumulty kept the Senate mission waiting while he saw newspaper men, then he was called into conference with the President on the coal situation. When he emerged an hour and a half had elapsed.

Sanderson was getting restive. George, at his suggestion, had laid the treaty in a chair. Tumulty stopped in the hall outside the office. He was visibly reluctant to face the ordeal of formal acceptance of the rejected treaty.

"But," urged a White House clerk, "they say they've got to have a receipt."

Tumulty Signs Receipt.

Tumulty grinned and decided to bear it. He entered the office and sat down at his desk. Standing alongside, Sanderson briefly said he was returning the treaty at the direction of the Senate and presented a receipt for Tumulty to sign.

"Must I put down the exact hour?" asked Tumulty affably. He wrote "11:45." Van Horn had ranged himself on the other side of the desk with the treaty.

"He has the treaty, Mr. Tumulty," said Sanderson.

"Just put it down there," said Tumulty, as Van Horn deposited it on the desk.

"Now," he asked, moving the package a little to one side and turning to the group of waiting callers, "who was the first here to see me?"

TREATY'S DEFEAT A "COLOSSAL CRIME," BRYAN DECLARES

Senate's Action, If It Stands, Invites Confusion at Home and Chaos Abroad, He Says.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 20.—William J. Bryan, who was on his way to Boston from New York today, declared:

"The defeat of the treaty is a colossal crime against our own country and the world. If we allow a minority of the Senate to dictate the policy of the Senate on this momentous question, we betray democracy and turn our faces backward toward arbitrary power, and arbitrary power as exercised by a few is scarcely less hateful than arbitrary power exercised by one."

Bryan also said: "The action of the Senate is the more disgraceful because the rejection was brought about by a union between a group of Democrats and the irreconcilable foes of the treaty, whom the Democrats have been denouncing for eight months. If the action of the Senate is permitted to stand, we invite confusion at home and chaos abroad.

"But the action of the Senate should not be allowed to stand as the verdict of the nation. The majority in Congress should assert itself at once.

"1. By declaring the war at an end.

"2. By declaring in favor of the nation's participation in the league of nations on such terms as the majority shall agree upon.

"3. By proposing an amendment to the Constitution permitting a majority of the Senate and House to ratify a treaty by joint resolution, and in the same way define the nation's foreign policy, thus making it as easy to end a war as to begin it.

"In the meantime, the people should wire and write to Senators and President, urging ratification. A change of four votes will be sufficient."

Adverse Vote on Peace Treaty Was Anticipated in London.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 20.—The rejection of the peace treaty by the United States Senate brought out little comment in the London newspapers today, as a vote adverse to the pact had been more or less generally anticipated.

"Just as we had expected," was the expression in official quarters at the news. Of the afternoon newspapers only the Westminster Gazette made editorial comment. It charged the situation to the treaty-making system of the United States.

"A proper democratic control of foreign policy is very necessary," says the newspaper, "but it is clearly equally necessary to be most careful in inventing the machinery to enable it to operate."

President on Record Against Declaring Peace by Resolution.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Senator Fall last summer submitted a series of questions to the President regarding the peace question, in which he asked if Congress and the President could not declare peace by a "process verbal" such as a resolution. President Wilson was emphatic at that time in his disapproval of such a course.

"I feel constrained to say," he wrote the New Mexico Senator, "not only that in my judgment I have not the power by proclamation to declare that peace exists, but that I could in no circumstances consent to take such a course prior to the ratification of a formal treaty of peace.

"I feel it due to perfect frankness to say that it would, in my opinion, put a strain upon national honor which we never could efface if after sending our men to the battlefield to fight the common cause we should abandon our associates in the war in the settlement of the terms of peace and dissociate ourselves from all responsibility with regard to those terms."

WOOD AND POINDEXTER IN DEBATE IN DAKOTA

Former Gives Views on Americanism, Latter Assails Labor Strikes.

By the Associated Press.

PIERRE, S. D., March 20.—Major-General Wood, in his debate tonight with Senator Poindexter of Washington, outlined his views on "Americanism" saying:

"The platform of Americanism is America first, first through justice and fair dealing; Government under the Constitution, with each department functioning within its limits; no autocracy of wealth; no autocracy of labor, but a real democracy for both; no class domination or legislation; an untrammeled and fearless judiciary; courts free from any taint of political influence or control.

"An intense spirit of national solidarity is needed, avoiding loose-fibered internationalism as we would death, for it means national death." Wood included:

A sound public school system, an adequate wage for our teaching force.

Unqualified indorsement of woman's suffrage.

A budget system.

Industrial justice.

National and individual thrift habits.

A small but highly efficient regular army.

Development and protection of American agriculture as vital to the prosperity and stability of the nation.

Approval of the league of nations with the Senate reservations.

The establishment of conditions which will permit thrifty men and women to earn a comfortable living.

A Government of all the people, for all the people and by all the people; one flag; one loyalty and that undivided loyalty to the American people; no hyphenated Americans; one language in our schools below the high school and that the language of the Declaration of Independence.

All these in combination make for true Americanism.

Senator Poindexter said: "The two most vital questions before the country are national independence and industrial independence. One is menaced by internationalism, and the other by the closed shop.

"Internationalism proposes that the control of all international affairs shall be vested in a league of nations. It would substitute the principle of internationalism for the principle of nationality.

"The closed shop means closed opportunity. It means personal and industrial servitude both for labor and capital, and for the public. The right to work and the right to own property are among the inalienable rights of men, and are so designated in all great charters of liberty.

"Strikes intended to enforce economic demands by stopping industry and cutting off from the people their supplies of the necessities mean rule by force instead of by law. Men have a right to quit work, but they have not the right to conspire to starve the people. The Government must act to punish such attacks. Economic independence can only exist when a man is free to work or to quit work, whether he belongs to a union or not."

SUES FOR $10,000 FOLLOWING FATAL MISTAKE BY BROTHER

The death of Harry Organ, a driver for the American Express Co., from drinking cyanide of potassium Oct. 15 last, is the basis of a suit for $10,000 damages filed yesterday by his brother, John W. Organ, as administrator of his estate, against the C. R. Hettel Jewelry Co., 907 Washington avenue, where Organ obtained the poison.

It is alleged that when Harry Organ went to the store to deliver an express package he asked for a drink of water, and was directed to the rear of the store. He took the poison by mistake and expired shortly after drinking it, it is alleged. Negligence on the part of the defendant company is alleged in the suit. The poison was kept in the store for cleaning jewelry.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 20.—The price of sugar from refiners to wholesalers was advanced $1 a hundred pounds today by the Western Sugar Refinery and the Honolulu Plantation Co. The previous figure was $14 a hundred, and the new price is the highest on record, it was stated.

FIVE MORE INDIANA COAL MEN ARRESTED

One of Them Declares Conspiracy Prosecutions May Tie Up Mines Again.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 20.—Possibility of another tie-up of the nation's coal industry, beginning April 1, is declared to exist as a result of the Government's prosecution of operators and miners for alleged violation of the Lever fuel control act, in a statement issued tonight by E. D. Lodgson, of Indianapolis. Lodgson, one of the five coal operators arrested today by Federal officials and one of 125 men, operators or miners, indicted by a Federal Grand Jury here for alleged conspiracy to enhance the price of coal.

Lodgson's statement declares that, according to information received by the operators, the Government is proceeding on the hypothesis that joint wage conferences are, and have been, illegal, and that this theory forms the basis for a part, at least, of the charges against the coal men.

May Delay Wage Meetings.

If this is true, he said, it is probable conferences to establish a new wage scale effective, April 1, will be postponed until after that date and possibly indefinitely, and that miners will refuse to work after April 1, when the contract expires, unless a new scale is agreed on.

The statement asserts that the Government's action is inconsistent with a statement given out by President Wilson yesterday when he urged operators and miners to get together under the majority report of the commission which investigated the coal situation. The President, in this statement, in effect, gave sanction to the idea of collective bargaining in the coal industry, Lodgson said.

Federal officials tonight asserted they had authorized no statement as to the theory on which the Government is proceeding in its prosecution of the miners and operators, and declared they would not divulge the charges against those indicted until all of them shall have been arrested.

Four Others Arrested.

Besides Lodgson, those arrested today were George A. Vandyke, B. E. Neal and W. H. Tobin of Indianapolis, and William Zeller of Brazil, Ind. Lodgson and Zeller surrendered to the officers, while capiases were served on the others. Carl J. Fletcher of Indianapolis surrendered to the United States Marshal yesterday. Each of the operators furnished bond for $10,000 and was released pending arraignment May 4.

It was stated at the Marshal's office today that capiases for the arrest of all the 51 Indiana men under indictment were in the hands of the officers, and that they would be served as soon as possible. Capiases for men in Illinois, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania involved in the charges will be mailed to those states for service by district officers.

NEGRO FOUND DEAD, HEAD CRUSHED, ON STREET AT 9 P. M.

One-Pound Shell in Sock and Knife Stained Red Lay on Walk Nearby.

A negro, with the top of his head crushed, was found dead on the sidewalk on the north side of Olive street, just east of Compton avenue, at 9 o'clock last night.

In an alley behind 3115 Olive street detectives found an open pocket knife, the blade of which was stained red; a black, soft hat, which apparently belonged to the dead man, and a sock containing a one-pound shell such as is used by artillery. Policemen believe the sock and shell were used as a "billy" in dealing the blow which resulted in the death of the negro.

The negro appeared to be about 40 years old. He wore a brown coat, blue trousers and a white shirt. He had a Masonic charm, $3.18 in cash, a street car token and three keys. The body was taken to the morgue.

ROBBERS GET $680 FROM SOFT DRINK SALOON AND SIX MEN

One of Customers of St. Louis Avenue Concern Loses $250 and Another $140.

Four highwaymen obtained $680 from six customers and the cash register in the soft drink saloon of Edward Telthorst, 4833 St. Louis avenue, at 12:45 o'clock yesterday morning, and then escaped in an automobile driven by a fifth man.

The robbers entered through a side door when Telthorst was counting his receipts. The customers were at the bar. After ordering every one in the place to stand against a wall with their hands up, three of the robbers kept them covered with revolvers while the fourth searched them.

WILLARD APPEARS FOR ARREST

Gives Bond for $500 on Negro's Charge of Disturbance.

By the Associated Press.

LAWRENCE, Kan., March 20.—Jess Willard, former heavyweight pugilistic champion, walked into the Sheriff's office here today and asked that the warrant against him for disturbing the peace, issued yesterday and unserved, be served. Willard then entered a plea of not guilty in justice court and gave $500 bond. The case will be heard March 26.

Willard is charged by Fred Logan, negro policeman, of Lawrence, with disturbing the peace. Logan alleges that Willard called him names and challenged him to fight. The incident occurred last Friday when Willard, who was driving a motor car, attempted to pass Logan, who was driving a wagon, on a narrow road near here.

all who proved disloyal to the constitution.

Fifth—Immediate extension of existing social laws and the framing of new laws.

6 and 7. Immediate socialization of all industries; therefore, nationalization of the coal and potash syndicates.

8. Confiscation of agricultural products and confiscation of land improperly and unintensively cultivated.

9. Dissolution of Reichswehr formations not loyal to the Constitution and their replacement by formations from the workmen, artisans and State teachers.

10. The resignation of Gustav Noske and Dr. Karl Hein.

The strike was proclaimed off at midday, and the correspondent adds it is not likely work will be resumed before Monday. The state of siege is maintained, but public meetings were permitted this afternoon.

Concessions Induced by Fear of Economic Chaos.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, March 20.— Fear of economic and political chaos primarily was responsible for the consent by Vice Chancellor Schifer and the Prussian Ministers, who represent the Cabinet, to conditions which mean a radical swing to the left in the Government policies. While independents are pledged to abide by the truce effected by Carl Legien, chairman of the Federation's Commission, it is expected that the radicals will continue their political strike in an attempt to force greater concessions.

Official declarations at 1 p. m. today were vague and permitted of the conclusion that the Government is skeptical as to the Federation's ability to keep the radical independents and Communists in check. It is also inferred that the Cabinet, which is still in Stuttgart, has not yet given its unconditional approval of these terms. Labor leaders will be unable to reach the workers before Monday, as newspapers and other channels of communication are lacking.

Something of its normal aspect returned to Berlin late today and the only reports of a disturbing nature came from cities and towns outside the capital, principally those in the Rhine industrial centers, where local Soviet governments and Communist regimes are declared to have been set up. To what extent the reds are in control is not definitely known, but that there are serious disorders of all kinds among laboring elements in these places is generally accepted.

Fear of an attack by the Communists, who yesterday were reported to be marching on Berlin, has caused great tension among the police and military, who have taken precautions. A double row of barbed wire entanglements at all cross streets runs from the northwestern part of the city at Moabit in a semi-circle round the inner city as far as Schoenenberg. This is reenforced with machine guns and manned by strong bodies of troops.

A decree by President Ebert proclaiming an intensified state of siege in Berlin may have been largely responsible in bringing about this decrease in disorders, but it is generally believed that the settling of the strike in Berlin, which throughout the short-lived regime of Dr. Kapp resulted in much disorganization was the chief element in the restoration of at least partially normal conditions. The workmen will be given extensive concessions. Early in the day the strike was rigorously enforced, Socialist and Spartacan pickets patrolling the city.

Chancellor Bauer, Foreign Minister Mueller and Herr Giesberts, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, are in Berlin, having arrived from Stuttgart today. They participated in the negotiations which culminated in the settlement of the labor difficulties.

FIGHTING VIOLENT IN RHINELAND MINING DISTRICT

By the Associated Press.

BERNE, March 20.—Combats are continuing in the Rhineland mining district. Strikers and communists, with hand grenades and steel helmets are patrolling the country. The Reichswehr is sending armored trains against them. Violent fighting is reported at Essen and Gelsenkirchen.

Workers are forming a red army at Aschersleben and Quedlinburg, respectively 33 and 31 miles southwest of Magdeburg. Sharp encounters occurred between troops and Spartacans and many persons were killed or wounded.

Fighting recommenced at Leipsic yesterday after the failure of negotiations. It is reported hundreds have been killed or wounded.

Workmen Storm Prison and Release Prisoners.

By the Associated Press.

BERNE, Switzerland, March 20.—Latest reports from Germany are that Dusseldorf is still holding out against the Reds but that a general strike is still in force. The commander of the Reichswehr troops has asked the Bavarians and Wurttembergers for aid. Workmen stormed the prison at Luettringhausen, near Dusseldorf, and released all prisoners. At Buer, Westphalia, Communists are reported to have disarmed the police, establishing a Soviet Government.

Hundreds Killed When Troops Bomb Public Buildings.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 20.—Ebert Government troops have bombed public buildings at Leipzig in an attempt to dislodge German workers' forces and several hundred persons have been killed as a result, says a Berlin dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co.

The message says 100 were killed and 200 wounded in the street fighting in Berlin on Thursday.

PARIS, March 20.—The situation has so improved in Berlin, according to news reaching the German delegation in Paris, that the Ebert Government is returning to the capital, an agreement with the Independent Socialists having been reached.

Communists Reported in Control at Several Points.

By the Associated Press.

COBLENZ, March 20.—Unconfirmed reports received here are that 1000 persons have been killed at Kiel. It is said the situation there is grave.

The Communists are reported to be gaining headway in Saxony and Westphalia. A Soviet republic has been proclaimed at Chemnitz and Plauen. At Leipsic the workmen and the Bourgeoise parties are said to have come to an agreement.

In the Ruhr Basin the majority Socialists have given an order to end the strike, but it is doubted if the order is obeyed by the Communists who continue masters of the situation at Bochum, Dortmund and Gelsenkirchen. On the other hand, the Communists have been badly beaten at Solingen and Elberfeld, where they put 5000 men in line.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 20.—Two thousand persons have been killed to date in the fighting incident to the German revolutionary movement and disturbances of the past week, it is estimated in Berlin, according to the Exchange Telegraph correspondent in that city.

CARTOONS INFLAME PUBLIC AGAINST JEWS IN BERLIN

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, March 20.—A sudden and widespread revival of the anti-Semetic movement made itself felt today when at internals leaflets were distributed protesting against the presence of Jews in public offices and attempting to inflame the public mind by cartoons picturing the German people as starving in a cage while well-fed and prosperous Jewish merchants look on and are made to say: "Don't feed the animals." Prominent Jewish residents are outspoken in expressing their serious apprehension over recurrence of the movement at this time.

The Baltic troops, which made such a sanguinary departure from the city, are accused of taking a leading part in the agitation and numerous inciting handbills are attributed to them. Among the anti-Semetic street speakers were Baltic officers and enlisted men.

Since the first German revolution in November, 1918, it has been estimated that about 50,000 Jews from Russia, Poland, Galicia and East Prussia have come to Berlin. The Jewish population of the capital now is estimated at 210,000 persons. The great influx of Jews stirred up feeling because of the widespread circulation of reports that many of the Jews were speculating in foodstuffs and other necessities, and also operating as money lenders.

Attitude of the Allies Toward Situation in Germany.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 20.—Conditions in Germany are expected to get much worse before they improve, in the opinion of British Foreign Office officials, based on latest dispatches from Germany. They express confidence, however, that a Central Government will ultimately prevail.

For the present the allies have not changed their attitude that so far as it has gone the chaos is entirely an internal affair of Germany, but, it is stated authoritatively, that it would likely cease to be an internal affair should the Monarchists or Reds gain the upper hand. The belief is expressed by officials that neither would be disposed to carry out the Versailles agreement, which would necessitate the exertion of power by the allies to force compliance.

Hotel Adlon Threatened by Berlin Proletariat.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

BERLIN, Friday, March 19.—Ugly rumors have prevailed that the Hotel Adlon was due to be stoned by the enraged masses. The Adlon has long been hateful to the proletariat and their demagogue leaders as "a nest of profiteers" who have lived in luxury, eating and drinking lavishly while the masses starved. Yesterday's unsuccessful attempt of the mob to storm the Adlon has increased the mob feeling against that palatial hotel to a frenzied fever pitch.

Yesterday's attempt to storm the Adlon was precipitated by an amazing fluke. A first-floor front room in the Adlon was occupied by the wives of two Swedish Captains who are members of the visiting Swedish Mission. With them, it is said, was a German, Baron von Ekin-Erkstein. All stood at open windows watching the retreating Baltic troops parade past. The German Baron waved a white handkerchief to the Baltic troops and the two Swedish women unthinkingly enthusiastically followed suit.

The sullen, angry crowd outside, taunting the passing troops, saw the handkerchiefs waved from the Adlon windows, and the mob spirit was inflamed and directed toward the Adlon. When the first shots sounded the rumor spread through the crowd that they had been fired from the Adlon. This precipitated a grand football rush that burst the iron gates outside the hotel and was checked only at the cumbrous revolving doors.

Immediately on hearing the report the Adlon was being stormed by mobs American Commissioner Ellis Loring Dresel telephoned from the American Embassy to the few American women at the Adlon, most of them wives of correspondents, advising them that rooms had been prepared at the embassy for American women should it be unsafe for them to remain in the Adlon.

SURE WAY TO GET RID OF DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. The destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

SENATE RECOUNT OF NEWBERRY VOTE TO BEGIN TUESDAY

Ford Claims He Was Defrauded in Election in 1918 —Newberry's Seat Not Lost by His Conviction.

EXPULSION UNLIKELY PENDING APPEAL

Might Resign to Save Party Embarrassment—Had He Not Been Seated, Treaty Might Have Passed.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Senator Truman H. Newberry of Michigan does not automatically lose his seat by virtue of his conviction on election fraud charges. The Senate, like the House, is the sole judge of the qualifications of its own members, and may take such action as it desires, or no action, on any question of a member's fitness to hold his seat.

It is certain that no action will be taken in the Newberry case till after the recount of the ballots in the contest filed by Henry Ford, the Democratic nominee, who was defeated at the 1918 election, on the face of the returns by about 7500 votes. About 200,000 ballots from districts where Ford alleged he was the victim of fraud have been taken into the custody of the Senate Sergeant-at-Arms. The recount, which was postponed to await the outcome of the criminal proceedings against Newberry, will begin Tuesday. It will be conducted by a subcommittee composed of Senators Watson, Chairman Spencer and Edge, Republicans, and Pomerene and Wolcott, Democrats. Attorneys for both Ford and Newberry will watch the count.

Should Ford be declared the winner of this contest, Newberry, if still holding his seat, would go out and the Democrat would be seated for the term expiring in March, 1925. The much likelier contingency is that Newberry, now that he has been sentenced to jail, will resign, in order to save his Republican colleagues and his party from embarrassment. He will undoubtedly be advised to take this course. If he does not resign, he is expected to act on a quiet hint from his colleagues to take no part in the business of the Senate.

Governor Would Appoint.

In the event of Newberry's resignation, the Governor of Michigan, a Republican, would make an appointment to fill the vacancy until an election could be held.

The precedent established by the Burton case is against the Senate moving to expel a convicted member until his guilt has been established in the highest court of appeal. This case was reviewed with interest today in view of the issues raised by the Newberry conviction.

J. Ralph Burton, republican, while a Senator from Kansas, was charged with accepting a fee of $2500 from the Rialto Grain and Securities Co. of St. Louis for appearing before the Post Office Department in an effort to have a fraud order against the company removed. He was tried in the Federal Court at St. Louis before the late Judge Elmar B. Adams, was fined $25,000 and sentenced to serve six months in the Iron County Jail. The case was carried to the United States Supreme Court, which remanded it for a new trial before Judge Amiden of South Dakota. Burton was again found guilty and the same punishment imposed. The case was appealed as before and the Supreme Court upheld the judgment. Burton was thereupon sent to jail.

Throughout the pendency of this long litigation Burton retained his seat in the Senate. Not until the day after the Supreme Court rendered final judgment was a resolution adopted by the Senate to investigate. That was on May 22, 1906, and on June 4 Burton sent in his resignation.

If the precedent of this case is followed, Newberry, who has told his friends that if convicted he will appeal to the highest court, may hold his seat for many months to come.

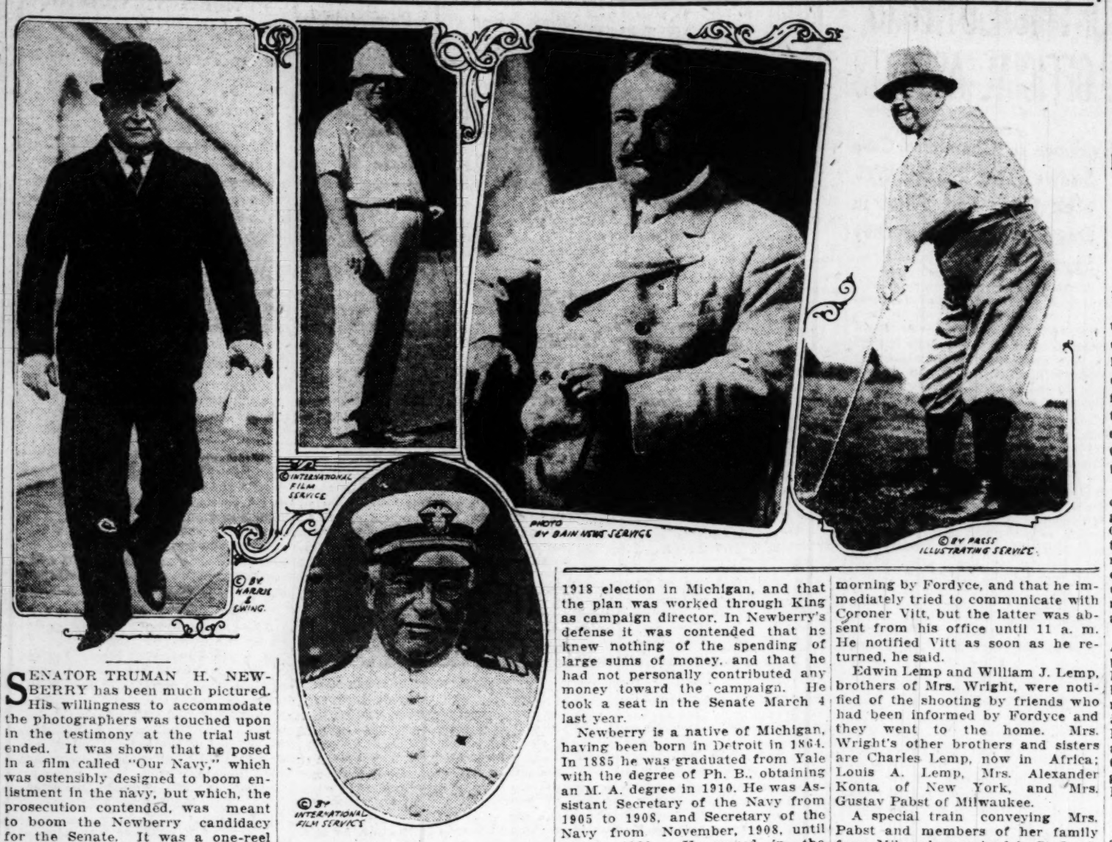
Treaty Fight Affected.

The conviction of Senator Newberry opens up an interesting field of speculation as to the fate of the peace treaty if he had not been seated. The membership of the Senate is 48 Republicans and 47 Democrats. If Henry Ford had been elected there would have been a tie with the Vice President casting the deciding vote. The Democrats would have organized the Senate and retained control of its committees. Senator Hitchcock, friend of the treaty, would be chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, instead of Senator Lodge. The committee would not have "stacked," as it now is, against the treaty.

Instead of loading the treaty with reservations unacceptable to the President the committee would have reported the treaty as it stood or with only mild, interpretative reservations. In all likelihood, the treaty would long since have been ratified.

Thus did the use of money in Michigan, assuming that it was responsible for Newberry's scant margin of 7500 votes, change the fate of the world.

Various Photographic Poses of Michigan's Convicted Senator



SENATOR TRUMAN H. NEWBERRY has been much pictured. His willingness to accommodate the photographers was touched upon in the testimony at the trial just ended. It was shown that he posed in a film called "Our Navy," which was ostensibly designed to boom enlistment in the navy, but which, the prosecution contended, was meant to boom the Newberry candidacy for the Senate. It was a one-reel piece, and in it Commander Newberry was seen to emerge from a battleship, stride across the deck, and from the rail to sweep the horizon with his eye. When it was discovered that the ship thus photographed was a wooden one built in a New York square to encourage recruiting, the film was spoken of as the "Dryland Battleship." Twenty copies of this film were sent into Michigan and shown in about 250 theaters.

who was given a severance because of illness, and of James Dailey, a Muskegon contractor, who went to South America on business before the Government officials could serve him with a warrant.

Ninety Days to Perfect Appeal.

Ninety days were granted defense attorneys in which to perfect an appeal, then court adjourned.

Several jurors said that the defense testimony itself was largely responsible for the adverse verdict, particularly King's statement that he had warned Newberry in New York that the campaign would cost at least $50,000.

It was also learned that in view of this testimony and the letters between King and Newberry, introduced by the defense to show patriotic motive and innocent intent in the campaign, the jurors had no difficulty in agreeing that a conspiracy had existed.

With this as a basis they started to ballot on whether all the 85 defendants were guilty, and stood nine to three all Friday on this proposition. Early today this vote was changed to 10 to two, but when a deadlock loomed the majority agreed not to attempt to convict the minor defendants. One vote only was taken on Newberry. It was 10 to nothing for guilt.

Senator Newberry's Statement

In his statement in which he announced he would retain his Senate seat, Newberry said:

"I am proud of the fact that the record in this case contains nothing of which I need be ashamed.

"No proof of fraud, bribery or other despicable crime was produced and I was convicted under a law that is not thoroughly understood and whose interpretation by the Court is open to further adjudication. Under the charge I was made a conspirator if I had knowledge that my campaign was going to cost others than myself more than $3750. That, to my mind, is the nub of the whole thing.

"Being conscious of no criminal conduct, unless after conference with my senatorial associates, they deem it inadvisable, I will continue to represent in the United States Senate, the people who elected me. I have no personal wish to crowd myself into the Senate, but I will continue to hold my membership until the Senate itself or the highest court in the land decides otherwise. Whether I shall continue to exercise my functions as a Senator, pending these determinations, depends upon the advice of other Senators as I have stated."

Verdict on Defense Testimony.

"Without Paul King's testimony that he told Senator Newberry the campaign would cost $50,000, the Government had a weak case, and without the King-Newberry letters no case at all," said one of the jurors.

"We could find no other way, however, after the defense itself had supplemented the scanty Government proof that Newberry had taken an active part in the campaign and shown by his own writings that he directed almost ever important move."

The jurors would not discuss the number of ballots taken, but said that early in the proceedings they agreed that a conspiracy had existed. From this point they went down the list of defendants, and once past the group connected with the management of the campaign, made rapid progress.

"We are all with you, Senator," said several freed defendants as they crowded around him. The chief figure in the trial grasped their hands. His wife, brother and son were with him, Mrs. Newberry showing the effects of the verdict only in the determined composure with which she met the tearful condolences of wives of other defendants.

"The fight has only begun," said Chief Counsel Murfin of the defense and his thought was echoed by Martin W. Littleton of New York. The Eastern attorney added that the finding had been "a great shock" to him.

The verdict was described as almost exact justice by Frank C. Dailey and W. H. Eichhorn, attorneys who have been in charge of the Government case. In addition Dailey announced that the second indictment returned by the special grand jury last November would not be pressed. This true bill charged a conspiracy to commit perjury in connection with the statements filed by Senator Newberry with the Secretary of the Senate before and after the primary election.

Elected in Close Race.

Truman H. Newberry was elected Senator from Michigan by a majority of 7,567 votes over Henry Ford, according to the official figures. Those announced were: Newberry, 220,054; Ford, 212,487, one of the closest races ever recorded in a Michigan senatorial election. First formal charges of irregularities in the 1918 campaign came January 6, 1919, when Henry Ford filed with the Senate an appeal for a recount. He alleged improper use of mails by the Newberry compaign committee, intimidation of voters, improper rejection of ballots and charged that at least 10,000 ballots were unlawfully counted for Newberry. He charged many election boards included intense partisans of Newberry.

Charges of "fraud and corruption" also were made by Lieutenant Governor L. D. Dickinson, and it was on these charges, according to the Department of Justice, that the grand jury inquiry was ordered.

The grand jury returned the indictments November 29, naming Senator Newberry and 134 others, including virtually every man connected with the campaign. The list, however, was narrowed down to 85, after the trial got under way, more than eight weeks ago. Some defendants were dismissed on motion of Prosecutor Dailey and some by the court acting voluntarily.

Testimony was concluded one week ago, and arguments by counsel occupied the greater part of the last week.

Under the Michigan law a candidate for office is limited in campaign expenses to one quarter of the official salary for one year. By practice and general assent the law was construed to permit double that outlay—that is, one quarter for the primary campaign and one quarter for the election. A candidate for Senator was thus legally entitled to spend $3750 toward his election. Evidence before the grand jury in Grand Rapids indicated that more than $225,000 was spent in Newberry's contest with Ford, and that financial tactics last summer which aimed at securing Newberry in his place in the Senate more than doubled that total.

There was no attempt to combat the charge that outlays exceeded the statutory limit, for practically every community in Michigan had a Newberry organization, well fortified with money. The defense in the trial admitted the expenditure of $175,000. Government attorneys minimized the outlays at $225,000. One witness estimated that the campaign had cost $800,000; another testified that he had seen on a table in the office of Newberry's manager, King, a pile of money that "looked like $1,000,000."

The government undertook to prove that Newberry and Frederick Cody planned together to corrupt the 1918 election in Michigan, and that the plan was worked through King as campaign director. In Newberry's defense it was contended that he knew nothing of the spending of large sums of money, and that he had not personally contributed any money toward the campaign. He took a seat in the Senate March 4 last year.

Newberry is a native of Michigan, having been born in Detroit in 1864. In 1885 he was graduated from Yale with the degree of Ph. B., obtaining an M. A. degree in 1910. He was Assistant Secretary of the Navy from 1905 to 1908, and Secretary of the Navy from November, 1908, until March, 1909. He served in the Michigan militia from 1894 to 1898, was in the Spanish war as a Lieutenant in the navy, and was a Lieutenant Commander of the U. S. Naval Reserve from June, 1917, to January, 1919. In 1888 he was married to Harriet Josephine Barnes.

Ford Declines to Comment on Conviction of Newberry.

DETROIT, Mich., March 20.—Henry Ford, Democratic opponent of Truman H. Newberry in the 1918 senatorial campaign, declined to discuss the conviction of Senator Newberry and his associates tonight. Asked for a statement, Ford said he had nothing to say at this time either as to the Newberry case or the forthcoming recount of ballots cast in the senatorial election.

SUICIDE VERDICT IN SHOOTING OF MRS. ELSA WRIGHT

Sergeant and arrived there about about 11:20 a. m. They found Mrs. Wright dead, and saw a revolver lying on a couch about seven feet from her bed. It had one loaded and one empty cartridge. The wound was on the left side of the chest at the heart.

Martha Westin, Kate Rueckert and Minnie Stover, maids, testified they heard Wright "scream," and went to the room and found him standing by his wife's bed. Mrs. Wright, they said, was conscious, but unable to speak, though she tried to do so.

Elizabeth Bender, the cook, said one of the maids ran into the kitchen and told her Mrs. Wright had been shot. In reply to a question by the Deputy Coroner, she said she did not hear anyone say someone else might have shot Mrs. Wright. All of the servants testified Mrs. Wright was happy except when she had spells of illness.

Samuel W. Fordyce, an attorney and friend of the family, speaking for Wright, at 11:15 a. m., gave the Post-Dispatch the first statement of the circumstances of the shooting.

Fordyce said Wright had told him Mrs. Wright had been "extremely happy" since their return to St. Louis last Wednesday from New York, where they were remarried March 9, after having been divorced 13 months. The only drawback to her happiness, he said, was that she had been in poor health several years.

Felt Much Better.

Wright, according to Fordyce, said his wife had recurrent attacks of acute indigestion and nausea which caused periods of mental depression. He said Wright told him his wife had one of these attacks last night and that this morning he asked her how she felt and she replied: "Much better," after which he kissed her and went into the bathroom.

When Mrs. Wright shot herself the parlor of her home was filled with flowers sent there by friends as tokens of congratulations on her remarriage.

The police or the Coroner were not notified of Mrs. Wright's death by anybody connected with the family. Telephone messages were sent from the house for Dr. M. B. Clopton and for Fordyce. The first knowledge of the shooting was received by the police indirectly at 10:55 a. m., more than two hours after it occurred, when information came to Chief O'Brien from a personal friend who said "something was wrong" at 13 Hortense place and he thought it was a suicide.

About the same time the Coroner received notice of Mrs. Wright's death through Circuit Attorney McDaniel, Circuit Judge Garesche and Circuit Clerk Goldstein, who called at his office at the request of the family. Through them it was arranged to hold the inquest at the Wright residence.

Circuit Attorney McDaniel said last night that he was informed of the affair at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning by Fordyce, and that he immediately tried to communicate with Coroner Vitt, but the latter was absent from his office until 11 a. m. He notified Vitt as soon as he returned, he said.

Edwin Lemp and William J. Lemp, brothers of Mrs. Wright, were notified of the shooting by friends who had been informed by Fordyce and they went to the home. Mrs. Wright's other brothers and sisters are Charles Lemp, now in Africa; Louis A. Lemp, Mrs. Alexander Konta of New York, and Mrs. Gustav Pabst of Milwaukee.

A special train conveying Mrs. Pabst and members of her family from Milwaukee arrived in St. Louis last midnight.

Wright's Sister Notified.

Wright's sisters, Mrs. Charles Parsons Pettus of 33 Westmoreland place, and Mrs. George W. Simmons of Hanley road, St. Louis County, also were notified and went to the Wright home.

Those who attended the symphony concert Friday afternoon saw Mrs. Wright in a box with a party of friends, apparently in good health and in jovial mood.

Mrs. Wright's father, William J. Lemp, shot and killed himself at his home, 3322 South Thirteenth street, Feb. 13, 1904. It was said he had been depressed because of illness and by grief over the death of his favorite son, Frederick Lemp, three years before this. Lemp was 65 years old when he ended his life.

Under the terms of her mother's will, Mrs. Wright received $100,000 at the time of her first marriage to Wright in 1910 at Milwaukee. In addition to the wedding gift she received a child's share, or one-seventh of the Lemp estate when she was 30 years old.

She filed a suit for divorce Feb. 1, 1919, and the case was expedited so that within an hour after the filing of the petition a divorce was granted to her by Judge Falkenhainer in the Circuit Court.

Indifference Alleged.

The ground upon which the decree was granted was that of general indignities. Mrs. Wright alleged in her petition that her husband had "destroyed her peace and happiness by his conduct," and "had long ceased to love her;" that "he treated her with coldness and indifference in the presence of her family and friends and in their home." He absented himself from home "in order to be away from her," she charged, and had abandoned her. All of these things, she stated, had "caused her great mental anguish," and had caused an impairment of her health.

The allegation of abandonment, however, was not the ground of the decree, as desertion must cover a period of a year to be cause for divorce, whereas Mr. and Mrs. Wright had been separated only since Dec. 20, 1918.

The question of alimony was not mentioned at the trial, but it was understood there was a settlement out of court. In her testimony she did not go into details as to specific occurrences in their married life.

After the separation it was said that Mrs. Wright since then had been living at the Wright home, then at 49 Portland place and Wright had been living alternately with his sisters, Mrs. Pettus and Mrs. Simmons.

Later he took an apartment at the Westmoreland Apartments, 5320 Pershing avenue, which he still has under lease.

At the divorce trial Dr. Frank R. Fry testified that Mrs. Wright had been suffering the three preceding years from a mental and physical breakdown, which, he said, he attributed to her domestic troubles.

Mrs. Wright's funeral will be held from the residence at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Burial will be in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Woman Injured by Edwin Lemp Auto on Way to Wright Home.

Edwin A. Lemp, brother of Mrs. Elsa Lemp Wright, while driving hurriedly to the Wright residence, accompanied by Associate City Counselor William Killoren, about 11 a. m. yesterday, ran down and seriously injured Mrs. Lucille Hern, 25 years old, 3749 Page avenue, at Locust street and Jefferson avenue. She was taken to the city hospital, suffering from an injury to the back and cuts on the head and limbs.

Killoren said later that Mrs. Hern was crossing Locust street from north to south, when the traffic officer signaled for east and west traffic to go ahead. Mrs. Hern became confused, and ran back toward the north curbing, thus coming in front of the machine, he said. After investigating the circumstances, the police reported that the accident was unavoidable.

PLAN TO OBSERVE DECORATION AND LABOR DAYS AS ONE

Proposal Among Matters Considered at Conference of Community Center Workers Called by Lane.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Tentative plans for nationalization of all community center work were outlined today at the conference on community organizations, called by former Secretary Lane. Representatives of the Governors of 30 states, community organizations, clubs, Government bureaus, business, labor, and the church were present.

Projects favored were observance of "Neighbors' day," on June 14, organization of a national Executive Committee to co-ordinate community center work, observance of Decoration day and Labor day simultaneously, use of school houses as social centers in urban and rural communities alike, co-operative buying and selling of staple commodities.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, pledged the aid of his organization. He declared that organized labor had been a pioneer in civic betterment projects. Other speakers were John H. Patterson of Dayton, O., the Rev. Worth M. Tippy of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ; Gov. John J. Cornwell of West Virginia, and Commissioner Louis Brownlow of this city.

Counter to Plumb Plan.

Tonight Carl Vrooman, former Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, offered a counter proposal to the Plumb plan, declaring that the "greatest need of America is industrial peace." He advocated that business men continue to conduct their institutions as in the past, except that labor and the purchasing public be allowed a minority representation on all committees and boards of management, and that after a fair return be paid on capital invested and depreciation charged off, the balance be distributed equally between the capital, management, labor and the public. He asserted such a plan would end both profiteering and economic domination without representation, and would do away with the "half-dazed, semi-paralyzed condition of business."

The conference elected Franklin K. Lane honorary chairman; Henry P. Jackson of the Bureau of Education, chairman, and Wilbur C. Phillips of the National Social Unit organization, secretary of the Executive Committee.

Development of a more thoughtful and interested citizenship and the translation of crystallized public sentiment into action are the two needs of grave import confronting the nation at this time, Lane declared in a paper.

Lane said his interest in community organization arose from his conviction that it would help to solve both of these problems.

SPRINGFIELD (ILL.) OPTIMISTS PAY RETURN VISIT TO ST. LOUIS

They Are Entertained by Local Club With Luncheon, Automobile Ride and Dinner.

Fifty members of the Springfield (Ill.) Optimists' Club and their wives yesterday repaid a visit which members of the St. Louis Optimists' Club made to Springfield in September. They arrived on a special electric train and were entertained at luncheon at the Hotel Statler, after which they were taken on an automobile tour of the city.

A dinner was given at the hotel last night, at which Harry G. Hill, international secretary of the associated clubs, was the principal speaker. Anna Carey Bock, noted St. Louis pianist, gave several numbers.

The visitors were accompanied by officials of the Chicago Optimists' Club.

MEMORIAL PARK CEMETERY TO OPEN WITH BURIAL OF VETERAN

Charles Jepps, of A Company, 138th Infantry Gassed in Argonne, Died Dec. 10.

Memorial Park Cemetery, on the Lucas and Hunt Road, St. Louis County, will be formally opened today with the burial of a returned war veteran who died Dec. 10 of tuberculosis. He was gassed in the Argonne.

The cemetery has 400 acres of ground and an estimated capacity of 600,000 graves, said to be the largest in the United States except the national burial ground at Arlington.

The association plans to erect bronze tablets on trees in commemoration of St. Louis county men who died in service. A tablet will be erected for each veteran, bearing the name, service record and a brief biography. The American Legion has acquired a lot in which a service monument will be placed.

The funeral today is that of Charles Jepps, 25 years old, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jepps of 4328 Ravenwood avenue, Pine Lawn. He died at the State Hospital at Mount Vernon Dec. 10. Jepps was a member of A Company, 138th Infantry.

The American Legion will provide a firing squad and a military escort to take charge of services at the grave. The Rev. B. Von Schenk will officiate at Bethesda Church, Pine Lawn, at 3 p. m.

Hawes to Run for Senate If Others 'Pussyfoot' on Beer

er to destroy. Or they could have, by suitable legislation, limited the number of saloons to a specified number of the population, which would have reduced them to a minimum.

Short Fight Avoided.

"The Dukes and the Dauphins did not attempt to do this because it would have been a short fight, easily won, and the Ohio corporation would have fulfilled its mission and gone out of business. It must always be remembered that when the Ohio corporation goes out of business, the Dukes and the Dauphins go out of business—and that is the last thing they want to happen.

"The state of Missouri passed a local option law which permitted each county to say whether it wanted or did not want a saloon; and then went farther and permitted subdivisions of counties to decide whether they did or did not want a saloon.

"But on the question of Statewide prohibition the people have voted three times within 10 years, and in each election—by majorities approximating 100,000 votes—they decided that they did not want Statewide prohibition.

"So the Dukes and the Dauphins went to Washington, and they introduced a bill called the Volstead bill, which carefully and cautiously limited the alcoholic content of beverages to be manufactured and sold in the United States to one-half of one per cent; and although able men insisted that the question of what was and what was not intoxicating was a question for the jury and the courts, the Dukes and the Dauphins insisted upon the one-half of one per cent. And what was their object?

"Their object was to keep alive forever the question of prohibition. It was so carefully arranged that each succeeding Congress must either vote for the one-half of one per cent or vote for a higher per cent; because if they have the power to set an arbitrary percentage of any kind, it follows logically that they may either raise or lower this per cent.

Pennies Will Flow.

"So forever, so far as we know, the contributions of the richest man in the world, John D. Rockefeller, and the pennies of the little children in the Sunday schools, will flow into the treasury of the Ohio corporation, and the Dukes and the Dauphins will live in plenty, to be retired on pensions."

Hawes then outlines the application of the Volstead law, if strictly interpreted. He says that country folk, making cider and taking it to a relative, can be arrested if the cider has more than one-half of one per cent alcoholic content, and that their home can be searched by "the armed agents of Uncle Sam, under the direction of the Duke and the Dauphin." Persons who make their own wine from their own grapes, by a simple process, "immediately become criminals," he declares, "as much criminals as the murderer or the horse thief or the forger. I defy any Duke of Bridgewater or Dauphin in this State to deny this statement.

"In the cities," he continues, "there are no apple trees or grapevines. But men can buy hops and yeast and water and make their own beer. Every man or woman who mixes the proper ingredients together, boils it on her kitchen stove, puts it in a bottle and sets it aside for age to finish, is a criminal, subject to have their households searched and their bodies imprisoned.

"Such are a few of the provisions of the law of the Duke and the Dauphin called the Volstead law. It utterly destroys local self-government.

Perpetual Agitation Faced.

"National prohibition has been written into the Constitution of the United States, unless a decision from the Supreme Court takes it out. If the Supreme Court decides against it, the whole question is then wide open; but if it affirms the Volstead act, then the question of prohibition has been taken from the local community and deposited in the hands of Congress, there to remain a vital and ever-present political issue for all succeeding congressional elections—purposely placed in this position by the Dukes and the Dauphins, so that they may have a perpetual paid position for agitation.

"Whisky is dead—at least, it has been safely buried in the cellars and the safes of our rich people! The poor man must content himself with water or become an outlaw and a criminal and make his hard cider, light wines and beer in fear of the penitentiary. The saloon has gone, and there never was a time when it could not have been put out of existence by the power to tax which each local community possesses.

"We have been much edified recently by various gentlemen who say in their platforms that they will enforce the law. Of course they will enforce the law. They all take an oath that they will enforce the law. If they do not enforce the law they become criminals and outlaws themselves. What decent man will present himself for the suffrage of the people who will not declare that he will enforce the law? If he does not make such declaration, his candidacy would be based on piracy, brigandage and outlawry. Enforce the law? Of course he will enforce the law! No decent man or woman will vote for a man who will not enforce the law. That is not the question which our candidates must answer, and answer not in vague and general terms, but in plain English language so every child can understand.

Questions for Candidates.

"The first question is, do you believe in local self-government? The second question is, do you believe that vices and morals should be regulated by the State and the Church or by the great National Government? And, third, will you favor an amendment to the Volstead law which will permit the manufacture of cider, beer and light wines of low alcoholic content?

"Will you, Mr. Candidate for the United States Senate and Congress, state openly whether you will or will not vote for an amendment to the Volstead act permitting these things to be done? Will you or will you not, Mr. Candidate for Governor, agree to sign a bill which, while outlawing the saloon, whisky and strong alcoholic drinks, will permit the manufacture and use of cider, beer and light wines?

"I have a personal liking for William J. Bryan, Charles M. Hay and John M. Atkinson, and they have my respect because they are avowedly 'dry' men. I would rather vote for an absolute, conscientious 'dry' man than for a cowardly 'trimmer' who makes a deal on the side with the Duke and the Dauphin, then comes to St. Louis and proclaims himself personally 'wet.'

"I will vote for Bryan, Hay or Atkinson with a much clearer conscience than I could for the political gelding who is neither for the Volstead law nor in favor of its amendment; who lies awake at night because he is afraid the drys will find him wet and the wets will find him dry. The people demand a clear-cut issue.

"Let me state the issue again: With the abolition of the saloon and the prohibition of the sale of whisky will our candidates for Governor, Senate and Congress take an open stand for an amendment to the Volstead law permitting a very light alcoholic content?

Stills Will Be Built.

"My personal conviction is thus: That unless our people are permitted the use of ciders, beer and light wines, which must be carried in containers of large bulk and therefore hard to sell, they will build thousands of stills where moonshine will be made and surreptitiously sold—leading, therefore, not to temperance, but to intemperance.

"Missouri has spoken three times on the question of statewide prohibition by a majority of approximately 100,000 against prohibition on each occasion; and it is my firm conviction that with the saloon eliminated, whisky gone, at least another 50,000 will be added to this 100,000, and no man can be elected Governor of this state or to the United States Senate who will not favor the amendment suggested.

"I venture the prediction that in the contest for United States Senator between two men, one of whom refuses to state that he will favor the amendment to the Volstead law, and another who declares that he favors such amendment, party lines will be forgotten, and the representative of the Duke and the Dauphin, even if a Republican, in a Republican stronghold, will be defeated in this city by a majority of not less than 25,000.

"I am not a candidate for office, but I shall seriously consider becoming a Democratic candidate for the United States Senate unless some man appears who possesses the courage of his convictions.

"The people, in my humble judgment, in the next election, will not support mollycoddles and 'trimmers.' They will only support men who publicity express their conviction on vital subjects."

Dairy Officials Will Meet Here.

Decision to hold the 1920 convention of the Association of American Dairy, Food and Drug Officials of St. Louis, September 28, 29 and 30, inclusive, was reached at a conference of food officials held at the Hotel Morrison, Chicago, last week. Local arrangements for the convention will be in charge of E. L. Barnhouse, Food and Dairy Commissioner for Missouri, with headquarters at Jefferson City.

LONG'S SUPPORTERS TRYING FOR CLEAR TRACK TO SENATE

Prevention of Governor From Entering the Race Said to Be the Purpose of Concentrated Effort.

HAWES REGARDED AS LIKELY CANDIDATE

Gardner's Attitude Puzzle to Politicians, Who Expect to Hear Something at Joplin Convention.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 20.—Champ Clark's definite announcement early in the week that he would not be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator has served to let down the bars for more serious discussion of other probable candidates, and has brought a concentration of effort on the part of the Breckinridge Long organization to prevent Gov. Gardner from entering the race, Long so far being the only announced candidate.

Immediately following Clark's announcement W. R. Hollister, executive secretary of the Democratic National Committee, a Missourian, and a leader in the Long organization, appeared in Missouri and has been in conference with Democrats in St. Louis and in the capital for several days. While Hollister has newspaper interests in Jefferson City which afford him ample explanation for the purpose of his visit to the State, politicians about the capitol see political significance in it.

Also, since the Clark announcement there has been revived a report that Harry B. Hawes, who has been credited with being back of recent extensive propaganda against the league of nations and the fight to prevent women from selecting their own delegates to the Joplin convention, is looking longingly on the senatorship, and it would not be surprising here if Hawes should seek the nomination on a "beer and light wines" platform.

Governor's Attitude a Pozzle.

Gov. Gardner's attitude is still a puzzle to politicians. It is difficult to find anybody, except the men who are supposed to be closest to the Governor, who do not believe that he will enter the race. These intimate friends, including Noah W. Simpson, a member of the Public Service Commission, Omar D. Gray, State Oil Inspector, and R. Perry Spencer, counsel for the Public Service Commission, say that while they are not authorized to speak for the Governor and have no first-hand information, they do not believe he will be a candidate. Others who keep it as close touch with political conditions as they can are predicting the Governor will announce for Senator soon after the Joplin convention, April 22, at which he will be temporary chairman.

An ingenious campaign is being conducted by the Long organization in an effort to sidetrack the Governor, the gist of it being the circulation of propaganda to create an impression that Long is the Wilson administration candidate and that Gardner, if he becomes a candidate, must speedily be lined up with the anti-administration forces in the State, including the Reed organization in Kansas City and the anti-league of nations element in St. Louis.

It is being pointed out by the Long supporters that the Governor is indebted to the friends of Senator Reed for his selection as chairman of the Joplin convention, the Reed fight in the State Committee on Charles M. Hay, who was at first slated for chairman, having been successful when they picked on Gardner as the man to defeat Hay.

A Theory of Long's Supporters.

Long's affiliation with the Wilson administration as Third Assistant Secretary of State will, they hope, cause him to be accepted by the partisan Democrats as the administration candidate. Their theory is that if he is so accepted all other candidates must be considered anti-administration, a line of reasoning frequently followed but by no means always correct.

It is the expectation that the Governor in his Joplin speech will give a strong indorsement of the Wilson administration, and it is difficult to understand how he could possibly be considered an anti-administration man, though it is entirely probable that if they had to choose between Long and Gardner the anti-Wilson Democrats would be found in the Gardner camp. In Kansas City Gardner has cultivated the Prindergast faction in politics and the most of the Prindergast following is pro-Reed and thus anti-Wilson. However, some of the Governor's closest political friends here, while affiliated with the Prindergast faction, are not friedly to Reed.

The feeling that Hawes may get into the face may be due to little more than the impression that has gone out that the wets are to test in Missouri the wet and dry issue, their belief that a candidate on such an issue would be successful, and their opinion that Hawes, because of his State-wide acquaintance, would be the logical candidate.

Sophomore Who Was Crowned Queen at Washington U. St. Patrick's Day Ball

MISS ELIZABETH BRADSHAW, a sophomore in the Washington University college department and a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority, became St. Patrick's Queen in a midnight ceremony at the St. Patrick's day masque and ball, given by the engineering students Wednesday. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Bradshaw of 5130 Washington boulevard. Her father is vice president of the Wrought Iron Range Co.

St. Patrick, who is the patron saint of engineers, was impersonated at Washington this year by Edward L. Bowles of 6242 Waterman avenue, a senior. He placed the crown upon his Queen's head in the presence of 500 costumed dancers.

Davis to Open Campaign for Senate at Jackson.

Lieutenant-Colonel Dwight F. Davis, candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, will open his campaign in Cape Girardeau County next Saturday, when he will deliver two speeches, one at Jackson, the county seat, at 3 p. m., and the other in the courthouse at Cape Girardeau, at 7:30.

Davis-for-Senator organizations have been formed in Cape Girardeau, Ste. Genevieve and Perry counties. A number of business and professional men of St. Louis—members of the Davis Club here—will accompany the candidate to Cape Girardeau to attend his campaign opening.

Davis spoke last night before the negro clubs of the American Legion, at Jefferson and Lawton avenues. He will attend the Republican congressional convention of the Seventh Congressional District at Sedalia, tomorrow.

A Brickenridge Long-for-Senator Club was organized at Marshall, Mo. yesterday, with a charter membership of 98, including prominent Democratic leaders and county officials. Saline County is one of the Democratic strongholds of the State.

Resolutions declaring that because of his "tried and true democracy" Long would lend strength to the ticket were adopted.

ST. GENEVIEVE DEMOCRATS CONDEMN DRY LEGISLATORS

Convention Says State Senator Belken and Congressman Rhodes Misrepresented Constituents.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

STE. GENEVIEVE, Mo., March 20.—At a mass meeting here today Democrats of St. Genevieve County elected Dr. F. E. Hinch, T. B. Straughan, C. J. Stanton, Miss Ethel Godair and Mrs. Charles Coffman as delegates to the State Convention at Joplin. The delegates were instructed for Edward F. Goltra for the National committee. Resolutions adopted indorsed President Wilson's administrations, deplored opposition to ratification of the peace treaty, commended the administration of Gov. Gardner and approved the work of State Representative Leo Karl.

The resolution condemned "misrepresentations of their respective constituencies of our Senator Belken in the State Assembly and of Marion E. Rhodes in Congress of the United States in the matter of prohibition. Being unqualifiedly opposed to prohibition as being subversive of the rights of the American citizen, we are as unqualifiedly opposed to prohibitionists of whatever degree in public office."

GIRL NOT PRISONER OF CHICAGO NEGRO, OFFICIAL ASSERTS

Evidence in Chambliss Case Shows That Bertha Weibeck Came and Went in Daytime, State's Attorney Says.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, March 20.—A Post-Dispatch staff correspondent inquiring here today into the indictment of Dorsey Chambliss, a negro policeman, in connection with the death, Feb. 3, of Bertha Weibeck, 17 years old, a white girl of Pawnee Rock, Kan., obtained more minute and somewhat different statements, both from the State's Attorney's office and those interested in Chambliss' defense, than reported to St. Louis and other cities.

Chambliss, together with Emma Ross, a negress, and James A. (Peg Leg) Murphy, a negro, yesterday was indicted by the Cook County grand jury on charges of conspiracy to commit abduction and seduction and enticing a female into a house of prostitution.

After his indictment Murphy turned State's evidence and has been removed to a hotel, the identity of which is kept a secret. The Sheriff has been seeking Chambliss and the Ross woman for 24 hours, but as yet has not found them. After the Weibeck girl's death, Chambliss was stripped of his star and police buttons, but released, as was the Ross woman, on $1900 bail. Their bail under the new charges following the death of the Weibeck girl was fixed at $50,000 each.

Police Rescued Her.

Dispatches following the arrest of Chambliss stated that when the Weibeck girl applied to him as a policeman for direction to a friend's home upon her arrival from Kansas, he took her to a house in the negro section and there kept her prisoner, subjecting her to the visits of negro men for several weeks, until she dropped a note from a window of a house, which reached the police, who rescued her.

Public feeling in Chicago has been much disturbed by the nature of the case and the publicity given it. This condition was aggravated by the visit of Gov. Allen of Kansas, demanding prosecution of the policeman and intimating that politics was being invoked to enable him to escape penalty. Chicago welfare societies also made similar charges. A Chicago newspaper for several days ran near the top of its front page in large letters: "What about Bertha Weibeck?" This has induced another newspaper circulated among negroes to answer: "Here's about Bertha Weibeck," and under that caption to allege that race prejudice is inspiring the prosecution of the negro policeman. And, in turn, to declare that the prosecution is the result of a political frame-up.

Assistant State's Attorney James T. McShane today gave to the Post-Dispatch correspondent a synopsis of the evidence upon which the indictments of Chambliss and the negress and other negroes were obtained. It reveals that the white girl was not kept prisoner in the Ross woman's home, but went freely to employment at the twine plant of the International Harvester Co. during the day, returning each night to the house kept by the negress. It further changes other aspects of the case as published by Chicago newspapers.

Girl Made Statement.

This is McShane's statement in substance, which, he said, was based largely upon a statement made by the girl just before her death:

Bertha Keibeck came to Chicago Sept. 29 accompanied by Catherine Schauer, a young woman whom she met while employed in the Fred Harvey Hotel in Hutchinson, Kan. Upon their arrival they went to the home of a sister of the Schauer girl and thereafter answered advertisements for female help. This resulted in th employment of the Wiebeck girl in the home of William M. Scharnoff, 3613 Wabash avenue, a white man, as a domestic. She remained there until Nov. 17 or Nov. 24, it is not certain which. On that day she determined to return to the home of the Schauer girl's sister and to seek more remunerative employment. She had been paid $10 a week as a nurse maid for three children. She went about a half block from the Scharnoff home in search of a drayman to transfer her trunk. She observed Chambliss in the uniform of a policeman and accosted him.

He offered to telephone a drayman for her and led her into a cafe near Thirty-fifth and State streets, which is notorious as what is known in Chicago as a "black and tan" cafe. (A place frequented by both whites and negroes). After telephoning he suggested that they have something to drink and each took a glass of beer. The Weibeck girl during their stay at a table related to Chambliss that she was much worried because she could not send more money to her family in Pawnee Rock. She said that her father was a cripple and that she was virtually their sole support.

She told of letters from her mother, saying:

"If the pig dies, we will all go to the poor house." She had sent during her employment as a domestic about $45 to her parents.

Chambliss told her that he knew where she could make $40 to $50 a week. She agreed to meet him the next night and learn more of this opportunity. She kept her promise and on this occasion accompanied him to the Ross woman's house nearby.

She remained there approximately six weeks. During the period of her stay she accompanied Murphy, a negro, who lost his leg in the war, from the Ross woman's house to another house. At this period she had become ill. The house to which Murphy conducted her was poorly heated and after a short time he took her to another house, steam heated. While there, the Weibec girl wrote, or caused to be written, a note to her chum, the Schauer girl, informing her that she was ill and asking her to come to see her. She said nothing concerning any imprisonment. This note was mailed and upon its receipt by the Schauer girl, the revelation of the Weibeck girl's condition came. She incriminated Chambliss in statements and he was arrested. During her stay at the city hospital the Weibeck girl contracted pneumonia and when it became apparent that she was about to die, she made the statement of which the foregoing is an abstract.

She Remained Six Weeks.

Chambliss, after his arrest, was defended by an Alderman representing the Second Ward, which is largely inhabited by negroes. This was one of the circumstances that led to the cry of "political influence." Chambliss issued a statement in which he discharged the Alderman as his attorney, and declared his innocence of the girl's charges, saying that his only acquaintance with her was upon an occasion when he was called to eject her by the Ross woman. He declared that at that time the Weibeck girl threatened "to get his job."

The chief features of Chambliss' defense will be that the Weibeck girl was older than 17 years, the age she gave. It is asserted that she registered for employment with the International Harvester Co. as having been born in July, 1897.

It further is asserted that evidence will be introduced to show that she came to Chicago at an earlier date than the one she gave and that during the interim between her arrival and death she was associated with other men than Chambliss.

The indictment charges seem to depend upon the girl's age and Associate State's Attorney McShane now is preparing to visit Kansas to seek proof on this issue.

ST. PAUL CENSUS 234,595; A GAIN OF 9.2 PER CENT

Rock Island (Ill.) Population Is 35,177, Increase of 44.6 Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Population statistics for 1920 announced tonight by the Census Bureau included:

St. Paul, Minn., 234,595, an increase of 19,851, or 9.2 per cent, over 1910.

Albany, N. Y., 113,344, increase 13,091, or 13.1 per cent.

Rock Island, Ill., 35,177, increase 10,842, or 44.6 per cent.

Watervliet, N. Y., 16,073, increase 999, or 6.6 per cent.

Rensselar, N. Y., 10,823, increase 112, or 1 per cent.

Schenectady, N. Y., 88,723, an increase of 15,897, or 21.8 per cent over 1910.

Hamilton, O., 39,675, increase 4396, or 12.5 per cent.

St. Paul was the twenty-sixth city of the country in point of population in 1910, when it had 214,744 people, and showed an increase of 51,679, or 31.7 per cent in the preceding decade. Denver, twenty-seventh city, and St. Paul's nearest rival in 1910, with 213,381, has not been reported for 1920, nor has Rochester, N. Y., which was twenty-fifth with 218,149. Louisville, which was twenty-fourth, has reported 234,891 for 1920 and has been passed by Toledo, O., thirtieth in 1910, whose population in 1920 was 243,109.

Albany, N. Y., was fiftieth in 1910 with 100,253 people and an increase of 6.5 per cent in the decade.

Robbed of $450 on Sleeping Car.

Jean Day of Oklahoma City, Ok., en route to Washington, D. C., was robbed of a purse and $450 aboard a sleeping car in the yards at Union Station while he slept, he reported to the police yesterday. He said he had put the purse on a window sill when he retired Friday night, believing the sill safer than the pillow. The purse and money were gone, he said, when he got up to dress.

POLICEMEN TO CARRY ARMY AUTOMATICS

Change From 38-Caliber Weapons Likely to Take Place in Two Weeks.

The automatic pistol of .45 caliber, the same as was used by the American Expeditionary Forces in France, is soon to replace the small .38 calibre revolver as the official weapon of the Police Department, it was learned at headquarters yesterday.

The change is expected to give policemen a 50-50 chance with the automobile, which is becoming a general aid to fugitives in escaping from the police, the Police Board believes.

The Police Board for several weeks, it is learned, has been considering the change, and if the plans as outlined are perfected the change will be made within the next two weeks.

The Board has been assured that the desired weapons can be purchased for the department at a certain figure. An offer has already been received by the Board, it is stated, for the revolvers to be laid aside by the force, and in the change the policemen will trade in the old weapons for the new, the Board footing the difference in price.

.38 Calibre Weapon Used.

The change follows a line suggested by the Post-Dispatch on Jan. 22 last, when Patrolman Harry J. Shea of the Angelica Street District, emptied his police revolver in killing the "lookout" for the Water Tower Bank robbers and had only one bullet left when the lookout's companions rushed out of the bank, climbed into an automobile and escaped. Had Shea been armed with a more powerful weapon, it was argued, he might have succeeded in wounding some of the others.

The present revolver was adopted as a uniform weapon by the Police Board 10 years ago and no change has been made in it since. It is a small pocket piece, holding six shots, but policemen are allowed to carry only five shells, being required to carry the hammer on an empty chamber.

The new weapon being considered holds eight steel-jacketed shells, seven in the clip and one in the chamber. In a pinch, nine shots could be carried, but eight would be the rule for safety's sake. The bullets would be effective at a greater distance than with the present weapon.

Training for Policemen.

The fact that the automobile figures so largely in the crime annals of the present day as an aid to robbers and others in eluding the police had a great deal to do with the board deciding to arm the force more effectively. Another point made by Chief of Police O'Brien in urging the change was a line frequently used by the Chief in reports sent to his office from the outlying districts: "Patrolman —— fired several shots in the chase and believes he wounded one of the robbers."

"There are too many of the 'wounded' ones getting away," said the Chief yesterday.

A special course of training will be given the men in handling the weapon. The pistol to be supplied the department under present plans comes with holster and two clips, in other words, ready for use except the bullets.

A policeman will be able to carry it outside his pocket just as handily as the smaller weapon is now carried inside the pocket, the Chief and police board believe. Should negotiations fall through for this particular brand of pistol the board will select another kind of the same effectiveness, it was said yesterday.

ACTIVE WORK FOR Y. W. C. A. HOUSING BEGINS TOMORROW

Women at Tea Make Final Plans for $500,000 Campaign in Behalf of Girls Who Work.

LETMAR CLUB AN ACTIVE SUPPORTER

Residence Districts to Be Canvassed by Women, Who Will Also Aid Men in Downtown Section.

The active campaign of the Letmar Club and the Y. W. C. A. to raise $500,000 with which to provide adequate housing facilities for girls and women who work will begin tomorrow morning. For several weeks preliminary activities have been under way, a feature of which was the filming of a play, "No Address," in which prominent St. Louis women took leading roles, and which has been shown at local theaters during the past week, illustrating the trials of a girl who works in finding a respectable rooming place.

Mrs. Harvey G. Mudd, chairman of the committee of the two organizations, presided yesterday at a tea given in the ball room of the Hotel Statler, at which team captains and workers were given final instructions and the completed plans for carrying on the campaign were discussed. Nearly 500 women attended and the interest manifested in the plan for betterment of conditions for the working girls was evident.

The city has been divided into districts, with women's teams to solicit in the residence districts, and teams of men, supplemented by teams of business and professional women, working in the downtown section. Mrs. Charles Swingley will be in charge of the campaign in the West End district, with headquarters at St. John Methodist Church, King's highway and Washington boulevard. Mrs. O. C. Blumeyer will have charge of the work on the South Side, with headquarters at her residence, 2916 Milton avenue, and Mrs. Samuel Van Horn, 4808 Hall Ferry road, will supervise the collections and campaign in North St. Louis. Mrs. Julia Shipley Carroll is chairman of the Business and Professional Women's Committee, and Wade Childress has been named chairman of the Men's Committee. A. J. Davis is in charge of the Manufacturers' Campaign Committee. General headquarters have been opened and will be maintained throughout the week at 312 North Eighth street.

According to statements made at the meeting yesterday, the preliminary campaign has been the means of arousing such decided interst that but little trouble is anticipated in raising the $500,00 needed. Mrs. Mudd, speaking to her team captains at yesterday's meeting said.

"It is now up to us. The public has been well informed of conditions existing here, and cannot but believe that it will be and is interested in the welfare of the girls who work. Put it up to them squarely, ask them how they would relish the thought of one of their own relatives being obliged to walk the streets at night in search of a respectable rooming place. Hundreds of girls are lost, disappear completely, each year. We are now going to do what we can to prevent that sort of thing in St. Louis."

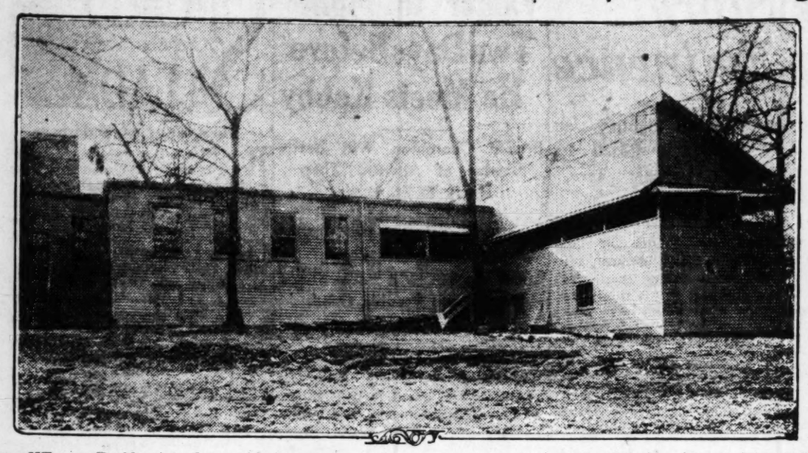
J. Lionberger Davis spoke on the need that exists for suitable housing conditions and accomodations for girls coming from other cities to work in St. Louis.

Revelations in Survey.

He said that, according to an industrial survey made here, 27,000 girls employed in St. Louis have no home influences and are living in hotels, lodging houses, rooming places, and other places of "temporary" shelter. The same survey disclosed the fact that there are only 496 beds in the nine institutions of the city which specialize in caring for working girls. This number will be further diminished in July, when the lease of the Y. W. C. A. on the Annex at St. Charles and Fourteenth streets expires and cannot be renewed unless some drastic measure is taken. The Annex has 150 beds.

The Letmar Club maintains a girls' club at 3658 West Pine boulevard, the 25 rooms of which are wholly inadequate to care for the increasing number of applicants. It is planned from the campaign now under way to build two large dormitories, one in the West End and one downtown. The former wil be under the supervision of the Letmar Club and the latter under that of the Y. W. C. A.

New $10,000 Open-Air School of Tuberculosis Society Now in Operation With 25 Pupils Attending



THE new Residential Open Air School built by the St. Louis Tuberculosis Society was completed early this month and now is in operation. The building, which is a wing of the Night and Day Camp at 9500 South Broadway, had a capacity of 25. The dormitory is a pavilion with open sides and another pavilion simillar to the dormitory is used as a schoolroom. The children live, work and sleep in the open air. The quarters for bathing are in the administration building of the Night and Day Camp and are, of course, indoors.

The Residential Open Air School was established in December, 1918, by the St. Louis Tuberculosis Society as an experiment in building up sickly children, and was housed in a section of the Night and Day Camp. It quickly demonstrated its success and the Tuberculosis Society took steps to make the school permanent and enlarged its capacity.

The new building cost approximately $10,000. The society provides living necessities, recreation and a resident nurse. The Board of Education supplies the teacher and schoolroom equipment and a physician. The cost to the Tuberculosis Society is approximately $2.10 a day a child. The school is for girls only.

Children who have spent six months at this school have been able to return to their old places in the grade schools. The fourth set of little girls now is attending school.

RENE VION PAPIN, ST. LOUIS BARITONE, DIES IN NEW YORK

Rene Vion Papin, 48 years old, a native of St. Louis, a music teacher and concert baritone, known professionally as Leon Renny, died yesterday in New York, following an operation for appendicitis. He had lived in New York for about 15 years, and had sung throughout the country and in European capitals. He was unmarried.

His mother, Mrs. Adelaide Papin, widow of Theodore Papin, lives in Los Angeles. A brother, J. Vion Papin of 424 Lake avenue, a member of the Post-Dispatch staff, was with him at the time of his death. Mrs. Winfield Scott Lloyd of 4319 Lindell boulevard is a sister.

ENEMY ALIEN LEAPS THROUGH OPEN JAIL WINDOW AND ESCAPES

August Schultz, 31 years old, German enemy alien sailor held at the city jail for the Federal Government, pending deportation, escaped yesterday morning by leaping from a window in the living apartments of Jailer McCully. He ran to Fifteenth and Popuar streets, pursued by John Becker, a guard, and escaped in the railroad yards.

Schultz, with another prisoner, had been taken by Becker to McCully's rooms to clean them. The window had been opened because of dust and Schultz made a dash for it as they were returning to their cells. Becker injured his kneecap in falling during the chase and was unable to follow longer.

ST. CHARLES COUNTY ROAD BONDS PASS

$1,000,000 Issue Carries by 2350 to 929—$560,000 Federal Aid Expected.

St. Charles County passed a $1,000,000 bond issue for the improvement of county roads and state highways yesterday by a vote of 2350 to 929. A two-thirds majority was needed.

It is not known how soon the money will be available. The bonds, which will probably bear 6 per cent interest, will be for 20 years, and will be issued in blocks from time to time during the coming 20 years. They will be in denominations of $100 and larger.

About 60 miles of state highway are in St. Charles County and State and Federal aid under the dollar-for-dollar plan is expected on these to a total of about $560,000, making a total good roads program of $1,560,000 for the county.

Boone's Lick Trail, the highway to Columbia and Kansas City, for 30 miles is in the county. This and the old Mathasville road will receive Federal aid.

The remaining $440,000 of the bond issue will be spent in the 37 road districts according to each district's assessed valuation. Local committees will direct the expenditure and select the kind of road surface to be used, under supervision of the County Court.

The Mathasville roads is from St. Charles to a ferry landing on the Missouri River, just across the county line in Warren County and opposite Washington, Franklin County. It is at present in poor condition. Its improvement will give a new outlet from St. Louis to the southwestern part of the State and will provide a short cut from that part of Missouri to Northern Illinois, by way of St. Charles and West Alton.

In the campaign for the bonds an old and decrepit mule has been led about St. Charles by a negro for several days. On the mule's bedraggled blanket was the sign, "This is what bad roads did for me—vote for good roads."

RABBI PROBE SUED FOR $10,000 OVER DEATH OF CHILD

Baby Alleged to Have Bled to Death Following Operation Performed by Churchman.

Rabbi Samuel Probe of 4356 Page boulevard yesterday was sued for $10,000 damages by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Alper on account of the death of their son, Israel, less than a month old, who, according to the petition, died Jan. 28 after the rabbi had operated on the boy in accordance with a Jewish custom. It is alleged that the rabbi, who is authorized by the Jewish synagogues to perform the Mosaic operations, was unskillful and negligent in the task in the case of the Alper child, and that as result a hemorrhage occurred and the boy bled to death.

When a reporter asked Rabbi Probe for a statement he said he had performed so many of the Mosaic operations that he did not recall any particular case at present. Furthermore, what he had to say in the matter would be said by him in court, he added.

Furs Valued at $400 Stolen.

Furs valued at $400 stolen from the Alton Fur Co., of East St. Louis, are being sought by the St. Louis police at the request of Meyer Wiseman, proprietor of the store. He said he had been told by a motorman on a bridge car that a man described as "short and stocky" had boarded the car at 6 a. m. Friday carrying two arm loads of furs and had ridden to this side with them. When Wiseman opened his store that morning he learned it had been robbed during the night.

To Frankie Mason: He Who Fights and Runs Away, Should Learn to Fight Another Way

Two-Base Error by Bogart Beats Cardinals, 2 to 1

Haines, New Righthander, Again Shows Well for Branch Rickey's Club.

NINTH INNING RALLY FAILS

Shotton Fails to Deliver With Bases Full and 2 Out in Final Round.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., March 20.—For the first time in the five games the Cardinals have played the Athletics, the Rickeymen today failed to produce any runs and suffered their first defeat of the series, 2 to 0. The series now stands, four games won for the Cardinals against one by the Athletics.

It was the tightest game of the series to date and was featured by air-tight pitching on both sides. Jess Haines went seven rounds for the St. Louisans and held the Mackmen to three hits. Only one of these came in the fourth frame when the Mackmen scored their two runs. A base on balls had preceded the hit, while an error followed the safety, the misplay by Bogart being responsible for the second and what proved to be the winning tally.

The Cardinals again outhit the Athletics, six blows to three. However, the attack was not bunched, save in the ninth inning, when a belated rally was staged and three hits were assembled and produced the one St. Louis run. When the final man was retired three men were on base.

Sand-Lotter Stops Cards.

Charley Eckert, the Philadelphia sand-lotter, worked five innings for the Athletics and held the Cardinals to two hits and not the semblance of a run. Pitcher Rommel, late of the Newark (International League, team) finished the game. Three of the four hits off the latter came in the ninth inning.

The fourth proved the big round for the Macks. With Walker gone, Witt drew a pass. Then Griffin elevated to Heathcote. Dugan followed with a long double to left, on which Witt scored from first base. Dykes followed with an ordinary fly to left field, but Bogart made an inglorious muff and Dugan scored while Dykes went to second on the error. That ended the Philadelphia tallying for the day.

Several times the Cardinals threatened to break through, but most of their hard drives were aimed at some waiting fielder. Once, in the seventh inning, with runners on first and second, a liner from Clemons' bat went straight to Galloway and a double killing followed.

Belated Rally Falls Short.

The Cards almost pulled the game out of the fire in the ninth. With Hornsby gone, Fournier singled and moved to second on Bogart's infield out. McHenry went up for McLaughlin and singled, Fournier scoring. Joe Schultz batted for Jake May, and singled. Schultz swiped second, and Clemons was then intentionally passed, filling the bases. Shotton hit the first ball pitched and rolled to Dugan.

May Exhibits Fast Ball.

Jake May performed for the first time against the Athletics. He went only two innings, but in that time showed the Mackmen what a real fast ball is.

Milton Stock missed the matinee because of a pair of "sties" on his eyes. Janvrin moved to third and Dr. Johnny Lavan performed at short for the first time since the Athletic series started.

While base hits were scarce, Heathcote continued to break in. He got a single the first time up.

The Athletics deserved one run off Haines. The big fellow looked like a real pitcher. He fanned Amos Strunk twice.

Columbus Buys Barger.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 20.—"Cy" Barger, a pitcher and formerly manager of the Memphis, Southern Association club, has been sold to Columbus of the American Association, it was announced here tonight.

Carpentier, in First Chapter of Life Story, Tells of Struggle Toward Boxing Eminence

Promoter Who Threw Georges Out of Cirque de Paris, Later Paid Him $10,000 for Bout With Jeannette.

By GEORGES CARPENTIER.
European Heavyweight Champion and Challenger of Jack Dempsey.

I WAS slim, pale, something of a human yardstick, when I took my first boxing lesson.

The evening I did so, I remember vividly; it was a half-shy, half-frightened boy of 12 years of age that was persuaded to go to the fighting pit built up in a gymnasium by Francois Descamps—or Prof. Descamps, as he was then—master of boxing, acrobat, thought reader, many things rolled into one, entre nous, not the least, a decided, even pronounced and avowed Socialist of the rebellious order.

Those who did not know or understand Descamps voted him a crank; they did not laugh outright at his peccadilloes; that they dare not have done, for he was masterful, at times intolerant, unlike any other man in Lens, where he was quartered and where I was born.

Descamps Hypnotized Me.

It was his very originality, his complex character, overbearing and yet richly splashed with humor, that took hold of me and hypnotized me.

As I first remember him, he was as a pointer fastened with nose on to a trial; always on the hunt for game, which game was "likely youngsters." In his grand manner and with gesticulations, oh, so eloquent! he would declare:

"I will give to France the best boxers in the world."

And when he sought and obtained my parents' permission to enroll me as one of his pupils, he struck terror into my heart by the terrible way he explained what my duty to him was.

"You have come to me as little Georges Carpentier; you are now Prof. Descamps' pupil; you belong to me. I am your teacher, your master, your father. Francois Descamps is everything."

Though so young, I had already begun to work, not as a pit-boy, as is so often said, but at a colliery where my father was employed.

My station in life was like that of many other Lens boys. My education had been rough and ready; automatically I passed to the coal mine.

Fascinated by Boxing.

One day I went to a fair, and there I saw some Englishmen give an exhibition of sparring; so long as they stayed in the neighborhood, so long was I hanging round and about the booth. They kind of gripped me by the throat; I could but stare and wonder at them, and it was when my big eyes were opened widest that Descamps saw me.

He has since told me that, having watched me at that fair and seen how positively I yearned to fight like the British, he made up his mind that he would take me to his gymnasium.

When I first put the gloves on I made what was an astonishing discovery. I felt no awkwardness when I struck a fighting attitude—to stick out my left hand, to duck and dodge and the rest of it seemed to be natural. And when I was stealing away from Descamps' place, he whispered:

"Come tomorrow night, the night after, and always. You will leave the colliery, and some day you will go to Paris and make your fortune."

And I did go to Paris—how wonderful it was—perhaps a year later, receiving two third-class tickets and 10 francs for a fight of 10 rounds.

The Fight I Didn't See.

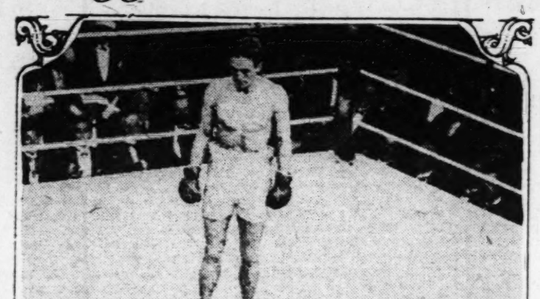
It was on a Friday that I fought; the following day Joe Jeannette and Sam McVea took the ring for the promoter who had given me my first engagement. Such a good show had I given that I supposed I would be allowed to see it without payment. So Descamps took me by the hand and led me to the promoter, saying:

"I am Prof. Descamps; this is my pupil, Georges Carpentier. We want to see the fight."

Before either of us had time to know what had happened we were bundled into the street with the least possible ceremony.

Descamps and myself hung about the Cirque de Paris, and heard the cheers of the people at the ringside, and afterwards waited in the streets until morning for the first train to take us back to Lens.

In 1914, from the same promoter, I received more than £2000 as my share for my fight with Jeannette at Luna Park; and when I was paid I could not help reminding Mr. Vienne of the night when he had pitched me into the street rather than give me the cheapest of his tickets to look upon what would have been the first fight between professionals I had been permitted to watch.



Georges Carpentier at Work.
The picture was taken just after the French Champion had knocked out Beckett, British title-holder.

Defeated All Rivals.

At the end of a year from the time I had my first lesson there was not a boy who could stand up to me for three rounds. They who lived round and about my home spoke of me as a freak, and then the day came when I had my first fight for money. I won and pocketed 25 francs.

Money did not come rolling to either Descamps or myself. Mostly we dreamed about it, and it is a fact that many times had it not been for a tour of the countryside cafes on a Sunday, and giving an extraordinary performance consisting of thought-reading, acrobatics, juggling, and boxing, times would have been dreadfully hard. We have collected as much as 50 francs by going round with the hat at this and that cafe on a Sunday afternoon, which in those days was prodigious business.

One day, very shortly after I had beaten Jim Sullivan, then a British champion, at Monte Carlo, I asked Descamps why he was forever declaring that I would become a champion. Said he:

"One night your mother came to tell me that you had stayed out late, that you had been a naughty boy, and she begged that I would chastise you.

"'Tomorrow,' I answered, 'when Georges comes for his boxing lesson I will thrash him well, and then I will tell him why I have done so.'

Tried to Give Me a Hiding.

"You came to the gymnasium as usual, we put on the gloves and got into the ring. 'Now,' said I to myself as I got you on the ropes, 'here is for giving you the hiding of your life. When I have done with you you will be sorry you stayed out late.' So I went for you, but you side-stepped and I hit the air, and before I knew where I was you had crossed me with your right and I was out to the world for 20 seconds.

"There was no more boxing lesson for you that day. I nursed my chin and aching head, but I was happy because then I knew you would become a champion."

It is true that Descamps first taught me how to box. No boy could have had a better teacher, but I received my best lessons in the ring itself.

I was always out for a fight; by actual fighting only can a man hope to reach the top of the pugilistic tree. Theory, imparted to you in the gym, is all very well and necessary, but it does not always work out in practice.

Every Boxer Teaches Me.

Do you know that every man I have fought has taught me something, has done much to perfect my fighting. One of the cleverest boxers I ever met was Sid Burns at Olympia. He taught me much that I had scarce dreamed about. I beat him on points, it is true, but up to that time I had met no boxer equal to him.

I do not mind confessing that it was my defeat of him that caused me to enter my first European championship with Jim Sullivan without the least doubt of winning. Said I: "If I can beat Burns, surely I will triumph against any man of my weight."

It may not be suspected, but I would have it placed on record that my victory over Sid Burns opened for me the door to championship honors, wide fame, and until the war came a considerable fortune, for then I had made a million francs out of the ring.

Carpentier Next Sunday Will Tell Of His "Worst Three Minutes."

GEORGES CARPENTIER, war hero and Europe's champion boxer, prospective opponent of Jack Dempsey in a world's title match, has written a series of seven articles about his ring career, the first of which appears herewith.

Next Sunday the versatile Frenchman will tell about his "worst three minutes" in the ring—a colorful, exciting story.

Carpentier and his bride are expected to reach the United States today or tomorrow, at the latest.

Pikeway Hurlers Pitch Fine Ball In Opening Game

Lyon and Scurlock Engage in Pitching Duel With Former Winning for Regulars.

Airtight pitching by Lyon and Scurlock featured a 2 to 0 victory of the Washington University regular nine over the Reserves on Francis Field, yesterday afternoon. Considering the short training period that the collegians have had and the poor condition of the diamond on which they played, the game was unusually well contested.

Lyon continued to show his good form and gave reason to indicate that he will be the first string hurler of the Pikeway force this season. He allowed only two hits and a pair of walks, the first safety coming in the eighth inning. Last week, Lyon pitched for the Reserves and held the Regulars scoreless and down to one hit, which was made in the ninth inning with two out. Thus he has allowed three hits and no runs in 18 innings.

Scurlock also showed well, being touched for only four hits, one of which was rather scratchy. Leo Shanley, the regular first baseman, was the only player who could touch him with any consistency. He got a double, a single and two hard wallops which went directly to the fielders.

Stole Third With Bases Filled.

The Reserves looked dangerous in the eighth inning, but a promising rally was nipped by Pitcher Scurlock's unsuccessful coup of stealing third base when the bases were full. Linnemeyer gained a life on Zoeller's error. Schewe then got the first hit off of Lyon, and Russell sacrificed them along. Scurlock forced Linnemeyer. Magualo then walked and the bases were full. McKim, a rather dangerous hitter, was at bat, when Scurlock attempted his steal. This, of course, forced Schewe at home.

Innisfails Battle Millers for Title

The Ben Millers and Innisfails, at present tied for first place in the St. Louis Soccer League, will meet in a play-off contest at Cardinal Field today to decide the 1919-20 champion. The clash will be started at 2:30 o'clock with Phil Kavanaugh as referee. Regulation 45 minutes halves will be played.

One of the surprises of the season has been the downfall of the Millers since Christmas. Since that time nine regularly scheduled league games have been played and Ratican's charges have won only one. Four have been lost and a like number tied. St. Louis' national cup competition representatives have counted only 12 goals against 22 for the opposition. The lone victory came Feb. 8, when the Innisfails were beaten, 2—1.

For the contest today, Ratican will use his strongest lineup. Nick Reidy has returned from the South and will be at right halfback. There also is a chance that Jimmy Dunn, who was injured some time ago, will be back at center forward. Willie Foley of the Irishmen, does not expect to make any switches.

Navy Fencers Best Columbia.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 20.—The Annapolis Midshipmen defeated Columbia University in a dual fencing engagement, today, 11 bouts to 3.

FANNING AND LACLEDE WILL PLAY FOR TITLE

The basketball teams of the Fanning and Laclede Schools are scheduled to meet at the Mullanphy Playground gymnasium next Wednesday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock to decide the Grammar League championship. In the semifinal last week, Fanning eliminated Ashland by a 3—3 score.

WESTERN WOMAN WINS IN SECTIONAL NET MATCH

BERKELEY, Cal., March 20.—Miss Helen Baker, representing the West, defeated Miss Eleanor Goss of the Eastern team, in the Berkeley tennis court today, in the first intersectional tennis competition for women in the country. The score was 3—6, 6—2, 6—3.

In the second match Mrs. George Wightman East, defeated Mrs. Ethel Bruce of Los Angeles, West. The first set score was 6—4, the second 2—0, when called on account of rain. The competition will be continued tomorrow.

Yale Wins Tank Title.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 20.—Yale won the Eastern Intercollegiate swiming meet tonight with 34 points, Pennsylvania was second with eight points, and Princeton third with six. Edwin Binney Jr. of Yale broke the intercollegiate record for the 50-yard event, going the distance in 24 3-5 seconds.

English Stars In Penn Relay Meet

PHILADELPHIA, March 20.—Oxford and Cambridge Universities of England will be represented in the twenty-sixth annual relay carnival of the University of Pennsylvania on Franklin Field here on April 30 and May 1 by a team of runners who will contest for the two-mile college relay championship of America.

This announcement was made tonight after Murdock Kendrick, chairman of Pennsylvania's Track Committee, had received a cable that the English universities would send a combination team. The message stated that Rudd, Montague and Killegan of Oxford, and Montain, Tatham and Gregory, of Cambridge, would compose the team. They will be accompanied by A. N. S. Jackson, as manager, and Alfred Schrubb, famous distance runner and for several years coach of the Harvard cross-country team, as coach.

Montague is rated as the greatest distance man in England, and it was announced, if Pennsylvania can find suitable opponents for him, a special three-mile race will be put on. The relay management will query American colleges at once for entries, for this race. Montague six weeks ago won the Cambridge-Oxford cross-country run, making a new record.

Rudd also has a good record as a runner, finishing close up in the 440-yard English championship last July.

The English squad will leave England April 7.

Valger to Fight Two Days Before He Meets Kabby

French Champion Will Battle Lawler at Atlanta, Then Hurry to St. Louis.

ASHER'S HAND IMPROVES

Local Bantam Will Be in Shape to Oppose Frankie Osner at Alton, Ill.

By John E. Wray.

Unless Boxer Benny Valger is physically and scientifically a superman, or unless somebody lied, to use the shorter and uglier word, Harry Kabakoff will face a very tired man at the Coliseum here, next Thursday night. This assumption is based on a telegram from the Atlanta (Ga.) fight promoter, stating that Valger would positively keep his engagement there, next Tuesday to box Jack Lawler.

If Valger opposes Lawler on that date, and then railroads back to St. Louis for the fight on Thursday, he will not have time in which to recuperate, either from his battle with that good lightweight, Lawler, or from the long and tiresome train ride.

Entering the ring under such conditions it is hard to be expected that he will be able to give a tip-top exhibition, backed by his whole heart and his best energies.

Another fighter recently attempted a similar stunt here—Tommy Teague. Reporting here the day following a battle in Indiana, Teague attempted to face a second or third rater, Frankie Tucker. The result was a splendid lacing for Teague and a very indifferent contest on the part of the loser.

Kabby No Foe to Be Dispised.

Valger is a high class feather (or lightweight) and local enthusiasts would certainly like to see the French champion take the field at his best, against Kabakoff. The St. Louis man is by no means to be dispised; and if Valger is not on edge he may suffer a very nifty boxing lesson at the hands of Kabby, the man who trimmed the British champion, Joey Fox.

The local promoters are not at fault, in this matter, as Valger's manager wired Sullivan he would cancel the Atlanta bout and come direct to St. Louis. Yesterday he wired Atlanta he would be there—or the promoter so states.

Who's the Ananias?

A Commission Would Help.

Cases of this sort make a boxing commission almost imperative. With a governing body to pass on all local matches and dates, there would be no battered men entering the ring for main events.

Milwaukee's commission has established several good rules, among them is one that no fighter who shall have taken part in a boxing bout within a week prior to an event scheduled in Milwaukee, shall be permitted to compete. Such a rule is essential, for main events at least.

Babe's Hand Belted.

Detroit writers, according to exchanges, appear to have differed as to Babe Asher's showing against Patsy Wallace. The Detroit News reporter saw Patsy Wallace as winner and depicted him as a dancing faun, without power and with much wasted energy.

He did not tell that Asher floored Wallace, that Asher fought with a bad hand from the very first round and that Babe beat his foe with one hand.

Manager Eckert wants a local club to bring Wallace here for a bout as soon as Asher's hand heals. An X-ray showed the injury had progressed favorably. Asher meets Frank Osner at Alton, Thursday.

Under a Boxing Commission.

New Jersey's commission form of boxing government, by next June will have produced about $140,000 in revenue for the State. See what Missouri is losing by not having a commission!

BOB MOHA TO BE FIRST TO OPPOSE CARPENTIER IN UNITED STATES RING

CANTON, O., March 20.—That Bob Moha, Milwaukee, will be the first opponent on American soil of Georges Carpentier, Frenchman, who holds the European heavyweight championship, was the statement made here today by Vincent Moha, brother and manager of Bob.

The match is tentatively set for Benton Harbor, Mich., on the afternoon of July 5, according to Moha, who stopped here en route from New York to his home in Milwaukee. While in New York he conferred with a representative of the French fighter.

The feature bout of the amateur boxing show staged last night at Jefferson Barracks was that between Dotson of the Medical Corps and Mickey of the South Broadway A. C. at 125 pounds. The former was the winner. He used a left and right swing to good advantage. The results:

128 pounds—Bruner, Eighteenth Co., knocked out Weber, Sixteenth Co., in second round.

125 pounds—Guckler, Star A. C., defeated Wahlberg, Twenty-third Co., three rounds, judges' decision.

135 pounds—Dotson, Medical Corps, won from Mickey, South Broadway A. C., three rounds, judges' decision.

135 pounds—Bielch, Star A. C., defeated Murphy, Q. M. C., three rounds, judges' decision.

Young Foley and Young Dennis boxed three round exhibition.

Officials—Walter Heisner, referee; Sergt. Kattner and W. J. Fitzpatrick, judges; Soldier McGovern, timer, and Lieut. Mandel, announcer.

Princeton Wrestlers Lose.

ITHACA, N. Y., March 20.—Cornell defeated Princeton in a wrestling match tonight, 27 to 4.

SPORT SALAD

By J. C. Davis

Maplewood Maunderings.

RENTS are daily soaring upward,
So is ice cream, fish and soap;
And for we poor, common peepul
There is hardly any hope.
For the lowly spud they're asking
One simoleon per peck,
And the butcher and the baker
Hand it to us in the neck.
Shoes, they tell us are advancing.
Also sauerkraut and cheese,
From our earnings they are taking
Every nickel they can squeeze.
It is rumored bread and butter,
Corned beef, onions, tripe and trout
Shortly will be climbing higher
Till the prices knock us out.
Pickled herring's also soaring,
Likewise eggs and milk and lard,
While the price of tea and sugar
Hits a poor man pretty hard.
Movies, too, have raised their prices,
While for four, plus tax, a throw
They will let you see the "Follies"
From the eighty-seventh row.
Taxi rates, silk shirts and stockings,
Evening gowns and party frocks
Leave yours truly faint and gasping,
High and dry upon the rocks.

RECHERCHE, EH WHAT?

The Detroit Boxing Club is going to put its patrons on a sartorial diet of "soup and fish." Any bird not dressed up to the requirements of regulation evening attire will be denied admittance to the show. Smoking will not be permitted even on the three rear seats and you will not be allowed to park your Ford under the seat with your hat. Admission by card only at $1 to $5 per card.

IMPORTANT IF TRUE.

The Yankee catchers instead of saying "one down" say "one away." Looks like first division.

Babe Ruth's bats have arrived at the Yanks' training camp at last, but Babe's batting eye is still numbered among the things that are not.

Babe is expecting the lost home run optic to turn up at any minute. In the meantime he is making a speciality of fielding and cutting off home runs attempted by other birds trying to butt in on his specialty.

Housing their ball teams is one of the tough problems that confronts the baseball magnates this year. But we don't hear of any of them trying to get Connie Mack's cellar away from him.

As the Governor of New Jersey said to the Governor of Rhode Island, "What's your'n?"

The Oakland club of the Coast League seems determined to nose out all rivals for the pennant in that body. They have signed Rollie Zeider to captain the team and play second base.

GUESSING.

As we get it the many presidential candidates can't decide on a war cry. They are wavering between "A Full Dinner Pail," and "A Full Beer Bucket."

Chicagoans Roll Into First Place In A.B.C. Event

Nevaril and Hartman Bowl 1258 in Two-Man—Other Leaders Are Unchanged.

PEORIA, Ill., March 20.—The lead changed in the two-man event at the American Bowling Congress today, when J. Nevaril and A. Hartman of Chicago, rolled into first place with 1258. They replaced O. Whitehead and E. Grubb, St. Louis and A. Schultz and F. Haack, Sheboygan, tied for several days with 1257. Leaders in other events failed to appear despite the presence of many sectional and State champions.

While the scores in the singles were unusually high, F. W. Sallee of Columbus, with 651 was the only man to land among the big prize winners, going into tenth place.

Leaders are:

Five-man event—Brucks No. 1, Chicago, 3086; Fleming Furniture Co., Cleveland, 2947; Horlicks, Racine, Wis., 2923; Ernies' Lunch, Chicago, 2902; Crystal Park, Canton, O., 2915.

Miss Pollak defeated Miss Edith Sigourney, Boston, in the final of the singles, 6—6, 6—2. She outspeeded and outsteadied her opponent and won by superior tactics.

In the doubles, Miss Pollak and Mrs. Morris outplayed Miss Gertrude Della Torre and Miss Caroma Winn, New York, 6—3, 6—4. Mrs Morris was very strong at the net.

Sothoron Allows Bronchos Only 1 Hit in 6 Innings

Right-Hander's Pitching Is Feature of 9 to 4 Victory for the Browns.

SOUTHPAW BAYNE WILD

Burkemen Rap Out 18 Safeties —Sisler and Williams Get Home Runs.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 20.—Hits of every description were made today by the Browns in the game against the Bronchos, ranging from a bunt to home-run drives, and as a result of the heavy bombardment the St. Louisans easily defeated San Antonio, 9 to 4. The victory was the third straight gained by Manager Burke's crew against the local outfit.

The star of today's contest was Allan Sothoron. Sothoron held the locals to a lone single in six innings. Catcher Gibson getting the safety in the third inning. Sothoron struck out four men and did not give a base on balls. Besides his pitching, Sothoron surprised with his batting. Up four times, he collected a double and two singles, and was directly responsible for four of the runs registered by the Browns.

Manager Burke sent Billy Bayne to the mound starting the seventh. The young left-hander was troubled with a bad case of wildness. Three walks, a hit batsman and a triple in the seventh resulted in San Antonio scoring four runs. Bayne managed to get through the eighth and ninth innings without any further scoring, but he was always in trouble.

Sisler and Williams Star.

Only a few fans turned out for the game, although the weather was ideal.

George Sisler beat out a bunt in the third inning and in the ninth caught one of Wetzel's pitched efforts squarely and the ball sailed over a high sign board in deep center field for a home run. Ken Williams cracked out a pair of clean singles and a homer. Hank Severeid and Walter Gerber both contributed their part, both getting a pair of singles and a double.

The Browns scored two runs in the second after Williams and Jacobson had fanned. Severeid singled and went to third on a double by Gerber. Sothoron scored both with a double.

Sothoron Drives in Run.

Williams led off the fourth with a single, and after Jacobson filed out Severeid, Gerber and Sothoron singled, scoring Williams and Severeid.

Gedeon started the fifth with a single. Tobin followed suit. Sisler filed out, but Williams hit for one base, scoring Gedeon.

Severeid paved the way for a pair of runs when he started the sixth with a double. Gerber beat out a bunt and Sothoron singled, scoring Severeid. Manager Nee benched Ross and sent Wetzel to the hill. Austin beat out a bunt, filling the bases. Gedeon lifted a sacrifice fly to Brown, scoring Gerber.

Sisler counted the Browns' final run in the ninth with his circuit smash.

Tomorrow morning the Browns will visit Kelly Field as guests of Lieut. Doyle, a former St. Louisan.

De Palma Breaks Record.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 20.—Ralph de Palma broke the record for the Los Angeles Speedway today for the third successive time when practicing for the automobile races to be held tomorrow. He made the mile-and-a-quarter track in 28 2-5 seconds, a speed of 117.19 miles an hour.

Just before De Palma made that record, Jimmy Murphy had torn one-fifth of a second from the record De Palma had established yesterday. Murphy made a lap in 28 3-5 seconds.

Fourteen drivers will compete tomorrow in two heats and a final, a total distance of 150 miles.

In the first heat of 50 miles Joe Thomas, Joe Boyer, Eddie Hearne, Tommy Milton, Ira Vail, John de Palma, Bert Klein, will race.

In the second, for the same distance, the drivers will be Eddie Pullen, Ralph de Palma, Roscoe Sarles, Ken Goodson, Jimmy Murphy, Eddie O'Donnell and Bennie Hill.

The four leading cars in each heat will compete in the final.

St. Louis Teams Are Eliminated in Final of Their Divisions.

COLUMBIA, Mo., March 20.—Northeast High School of Kansas City won the State high-school basketball championship here tonight by defeating Fayette, 41 to 20.

Webster and Kenrick Lose.

Northeast and Fayette went into the final by eliminating two St. Louis quintets—Webster Groves and Kenrick—in the division finals. Northeast was the victor over Webster, 46—7, while Fayette trounced Kenrick, 31—23.

Kenrick earlier in the day had beaten Warrensburg High, 23—22, to go into the final of Division 1, while Webster won from Columbia, 21—19, in the second division.

Kenrick fought valiantly throughout the game, constantly menacing the Fayette lead, but worn out by previous games, was unable to get out in front. Gallemore, Fayette center, starred with 10 field goals. The first half ended 14—11, favor Fayette.

DETROIT, Mich., March 20.—Ownership of the Detroit Americans will in a few days rest with Detroiters, it became known today. With the announcement that John Kelsey and Walter Briggs, Detroit manufacturers, were to acquire the interest in the Tigers held by the Yawkey estate of New York. One thousand shares are involved at a price said to be in excess of $500,000.

Kelsey and Briggs secure, besides a half interest in the franchise and players, an equal holding in the Tiger Park.

Hugh Jennings will continue as manager.

GLEASON SAYS HE HAS ANOTHER "BABE" RUTH IN COLLEGIAN FALK

He is "Bib" Falk, baseball star of the University of Texas, who will join the Sox when he graduates in June. Falk is a 6-footer, plays the outfield and first base and a wonderful batter. He hits lefthanded, as does Ruth. Gleason is uncertain whether he will use Falk in the box or outfield.

Millers' Chance to Win U.S. Soccer Title Is Dwindling

Team Has Won Only One Game in Last Nine Played, and Faces Long Period of Idleness Before Final Contest Can Be Reached—Hard Luck Has Weakened Eleven.

By John E. Wray.

ANOTHER stumbling block has arisen in the path of the Millers' soccer team of this city in its effort to win the national football championship of the United States, the first ever entered by a Mound City team. After surmounting various obstacles and overcoming a number of bad breaks, the St. Louisans today are farther away from the U. S. championship than at any time during the season, notwithstanding they have successfully passed through the fourth round of cup tie games.

The Millers' chief enemy at present is the schedule, which makes it improbable that they will enter the final match for the championship (provided they win their way through the fifth and the semi-final rounds) before the first of May.

This means that the Millers will have only two games to keep them fit within the space of five or six weeks and possibly longer. It spells deterioration in the local players' team work, for it is virtually impossible to hold the men together for practice, after the league season here has ended. Today's the playoff is the last scheduled.

In addition to the probable lack of practice and condition that confronts the Millers, the team is still suffering from the loss of several stars and will go into the fray weakened, even under the best conditions.

The team has won only one victory in its last nine home games—think of that, for a prospective national championship eleven! It has been beaten four times, and has tied four contests. This is not the eleven one could wish to carry the banner of St. Louis eastward against strong aggregations like the Robins Dry Docks.

Somebody Had a Brainstorm.

UP in Canada some incandescent soccer scribes are pounding the proposed tour of the All-St. Louis soccer and baseball team through the Scandinavian countries.

The author of one burning screed writes into the proposition the statement that the St. Louis team is going into Germany and Austria to play and that therefore the plan is anti-British and in line with other propaganda being sent out to separate the American and the Briton, and more especially it appears, to wreck the International Football Federation.

It's all right, friend. The only thing wrong with the proposition is that the United States team is going to play neither Germans nor Austrians. This fact pulls the cork of the objection and lets out the superheated air.

The United States Football Association, far from trying to flout England and Canada and France, is trying its best to get into the international arena and promote a real world's championship soccer series, in which only home-bred players will represent this and other countries.

To this end it has selected an All-American born aggregation—chiefly from St. Louis where they have only American players—to spread the gospel abroad.

The squad is going abroad by invitation and the limits of the tour, as set forth, include only Scandinavian countries. If there is any ground for feeling offended at this, Canada must be sensitive indeed. Or is it merely jealous that Sweden has, for the third time, selected American-born players?

Fortune for Carpentier.

GEORGES CARPENTIER, the French champion boxer and genuine blown-in-the-bottle war hero, lost about $250,000 in the Lens coal mines, as a result of their destruction during the war; but he seems to be in a fair way to recoup his fortunes quickly.

According to advices from Paris and from this side, Carpentier is now confronted with an earning probability of about $200,000, within the next nine months. Of course a considerable part of this will have to go in super-taxes, wherever he earns the money; nevertheless it is probable that $150,000 will be his own personal portion for the next 12 months.

Here's the "dope" on Carpentier's immediate future, with respect to the world's championship as told by Al Lippe, an American promoter now in Paris:

"No one has made Carpentier any offers," writes Lippe," except Charles Cochran, the English promoter; Tex Rickard, the American promoter, and See and Vienne; Vienne and See are partners in several big clubs in Paris. See is also owner of three newspapers in Paris, and any offers they make are bona fide."

Lippe also sends the information that Carpentier will get $50,000 for the moving pictures that he will make at Los Angeles, and another $50,000 from the Pathe people for pictures of his American tour to be shown in Europe. He is also getting $5000 a week for seven weeks from Jack Curley for a theatrical engagement, with an extra $1000 for each matinee.

Vienne and See, according to Lippe, have offered the Frenchman $50,000 guarantee to fight Jeff Smith, the crack Jersey middleweight in Paris, but he refused it until after the Dempsey fight.

Cannefax Still Draws Title Pay

Angle Champion Shows Check to Prove His Title Has Not Been Annulled.

Robert Cannefax, holder of the world's three-cushion billiard title, who recently parted company with the "tour of champions," conducted by R. B. Benjamin, because of a disagreement with the manager of Willie Hoppe, is in St. Louis campaigning militantly against the propaganda released here by Benjamin, who preceded the angle billiardists.

While in St. Louis with Pocket-Champion Greenleaf, Keogh, Peterson and Hoppe, Benjamin told the Post-Dispatch he had recommended that Cannefax's title be annulled and that his $200 a month salary for winning the event be withdrawn.

Cannefax stated no such opinion was contemplated and that he was still receiving his $200 monthly salary, and showed a check dated March 19 in proof. He also stated that the billiard manufacturing concern which fosters the professional game, was paying him $1800 a year as a player, a total of $4200 a year.

Cannefax stated that he had conferred with the Brunswick-Balke company relative to Benjamin's statements and had been informed that if anybody were railroaded out of the game, it would be Benjamin, not Cannefax.

Cannefax explained his offer to play Kleckhefer for the title on the cushions of a rival concern. He said he had made the proposition, conditional upon receiving $7500 cash, the winner take all the gate receipts, but added that he had not expected it would be accepted.

Cannefax plays two exhibitions daily, at the Grand Hall, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Otto Reiselt and Charles McCourt, who are playing with Cannefax, clash in a 20-point match, after which Cannefax opposes the winner. The same program obtains each performance.

WORCESTER IS AWARDED NATIONAL ROWING MEET

NEW YORK, March 20.—The Annual rowing regatta of the National Association of amateur oarsmen was awarded to Worchester, Mass., at a meeting of the association here tonight. The races will be held on Friday and Saturday, July 23 and 24.

Unusual interest is centered in the selection of the course and dates for the regatta this season, as the winners will be seriously considered for places on the United States team to compete in the Olympic Games Regatta.

The selection of dates during July for the regatta is unusually early, but was made necessary owing to the connection between the races and the Olympic events. According to Antwerp entry blanks, the entries of the American crews must be made not later than July 1, but the American Olympic Rowing Committee has asked the Belgian Olympic authorities for an extension of time to be able to send entries a month before the holding of the races on August 27, 28 and 29.

World Golf Title Will Be Settled In National Open

Best of British Talent Expected to Compete in Tourney at Inverness, Toledo.

By CLARENCE L. WOLFF, District Golf Champion.

The National Open Championship at Inverness Golf Club, Toledo, this summer, promises to be the greatest in the history of American golf. That the event is to be replete with international flavor is assured by the recent announcement that Great Britain is to send several of her finest players to compete for our national title. With the best of all foreign talent present, including, no doubt, the holder of the British Open Title which will be played for in June, and in which the cream of American golfers will also participate, the winner of the Inverness event may justly lay claim to world's championship honors.

Not since Francis Ouimet achieved his famous victory by defeating the English champions, Vardon and Ray, at Brookline in 1913, has our soil been invaded by foreign golfers. Despite the protracted lull in England during the war, golf—the favorite sport of the Britisher—has been revived with a rush, and now comes the report that Vardon and Taylor will be sent here to play in our greatest classic.

The first and only successful attack upon the American Open Title was made in 1900 at Chicago, when Harry Vardon and J. H. Taylor of England easily outclassed a large entry of native players and finished first and second respectively. Again in 1913, Vardon, with another teammate, Edward Ray, defeated a fine field of home professionals in a triple tie for first place, only to be decisively defeated on the next day by the perfect golf of an unknown amateur and ex-caddy, Ouimet.

1 to 0, Favor England.

With Vardon's single victory over here, the International score stands 1 to 0 in favor of England. America, notwithstanding the attempts of Evans, Ouimet, Travis, Travers and others, has never won the British open title. The best accomplishment of our native sons on foreign green was the great victory of the veteran, Walter J. Travis in the English Amateur championship in 1904.

Travis "putted" his way to victory in this tournament, using a Schenectady putter with marvelous accuracy. This style of putter at that time was an innovation, and being an American invention, had not yet been introduced over there. A great roar of protest was heard from the disciples of St. Andrews, after Travis' wonderful performance. They claimed his putter was a mechanical device and constructed in violation of the rules.

The Royal and Ancient lawmakers immediately legislated against its future use and since that time the Schenectady putter has been unconditionally barred from all English competitions. These lawmakers probably never realized that it was Travis himself—a wizard on the green—and not his club, that was performing such unusual feats.

Hilton's Fluke Victory.

With the victory of Travis, America held the edge in the international amateur controversy until 1911, when H. H. Hilton, the fine English player, won the U. S. amateur title for Great Britain from our own Fred Hereshoff by a fluke shot which hit a rock in the rough and bounded on to the thirty-seventh green.

There will be at least three very interesting disputes decided at the Toledo tournament. The first will be between the American and British golfers for international, if not world, supremacy. The second, between the American-bred and foreign-born professionals, and the third, a repetition of the battle between the professionals and amateurs. For three successive years the amateurs were victors in the open event, but Walter Hagen's victory last year at Brae Burn interrupted their winning streak.

Noted players expected to compete in the national and international rivalry are as follows:

INVADERS—Vardon, Ray, Ayton, Mayo and Sherlock. Duncan and Mitchell have withdrawn.

HOME-BREDS—Hagen, Brady, MacNamara, McLean, Deigel, French, Hoffner.

NATURALIZED—Barnes, Hutchison, Edgar, McDonald, Ross, McLeod, Fotheringham.

ST. LOUISANS EXPECTED TO SHINE FOR TIGERS IN MEET WITH JAYHAWKERS

COLUMBIA, Mo., March 20.—Kansas City sport enthusiasts will see what is perhaps the best Missouri track team that ever appeared in Kansas City when the Tigers meet the Jayhawkers for their seventeenth annual dual indoor meet there next Friday night.

With St. Louisans Scholz and Massengale, the Tigers are counting on two places in the dashes, and Williams should take first place in the low hurdles, second being a toss-up. The high stick event may go to Kansas if the Jayhawkers show a reasonably good man, for Simpson has so far been unable to develop a high hurdler of merit. For the quarter Simpson has a string of men he can offer, including Bahlman Parker of Kansas City, Jack Barlow, Tiger captain; Massengale, Brownlee and several others.

Kores Goes to Toledo.

TOLEDO, O., March 20.—Infielder Art Kores of the Louisville club of the American Association, was purchased today for Toledo by Manager Bresnahan, according to word received here by Secretary Wicks. Kores would not report to Louisville last year.

Mt. Vernon Wins Title.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., March 20.—Mt. Vernon won the championship in the State High School basketball tournament here tonight, defeating Canton by a score of 18 to 14 in a hotly contested game.

Hunting at Pamlico Sound

Sportsman Describes Thrills of a Three Days' Expedition Spent in Shooting From a Battery.

By Horatio Bigelow

Behold, by the bay-shore's sedgy banks
The wild geese squadrons deploy their ranks;
In wedge-like columns, in crowded files,
They sweep o'er the bay, over sandy isles.

—McLellan.

Pamlico Sound is probably one of the most interesting bodies of water for wildfowl in the country. It is 110 miles long and 25 miles wide. On the beach side the water is from 6 feet to 4 feet 6 inches in depth, and this is the feeding place and home of ducks, geese, brant and swans, made happy by the sandy muddy bottoms, solid with a superabundance of wild celery.

While brant and broadbill (bluebill) predominate, there are many redheads and butterballs, black ducks, mallards, sprigs, widgeon, canvasbacks and geese and swans.

Roanoke Island is 12 miles long and three miles wide, surrounded by Roanoke, Croatan, Albemarle and Pamlico Sounds.

Between Oregon and New Inlets, 40 miles north of Cape Hatteras and near the eastern shore of Pamlico Sound, lies Pea Island. The greater part of the island is owned by a shooting club and there I brought the "Dude" to let "Cap'n Jesse," the club keeper, initiate him into the mysteries of duck and goose shooting.

Shooting at Pea Island.

An uneventful trip from New York, by way of Cape Charles and Norfolk, landed us with our guns and shooting "duds" at Elizabeth City, North Carolina. Here we boarded another boat for Mantea, Roanoke Island. At Mantea we were met by "Cap'n" Jesse Etheridge, the club keeper, who guided us to the Tranquil House, where we put up for the night.

The next morning, after breakfast, Cap'n Jesse set us, with our duds, aboard the club's motor boat and got under way about 11 o'clock for Pea Island. This motor boat was a sharpie, with a six-horsepower engine, and, though slow, was well adopted to the shallow waters of Pamlico Sound around Pea Island, as she only drew eight inches of water, despite a 22-inch propellor.

Thousands of Waterfowl.

We did not see many fowl on our way down the sound until we arrived off the Fish House, some five miles from Pea Island. A flock of swans off Bodie Island is all that I recollect. These big birds looked like a fringe of snow along the shore of the marsh, but as we approached and they flopped heavily off, we saw what they were. From the Fish House to the island we saw raft after raft of wildfowl, thousands and thousands of geese and tens of thousands of ducks. Along the sky line the great masses of moving fowl looked like clouds of smoke from some distant factory, and the roar of their wings, as the huge rafts broke up at our nearer approach, sounded like distant thunder.

The Market Shooter.

The next day was much warmer, with little or no wind stirring when we started with the motor boat and the battery outfit. The latter consisted of a large flat-bottomed skiff carrying a shallow battery (a large watertight box which is weighted down level with the water when ready for shooting and the decoys placed opposite), and some 300 redhead and broadbill decoys, and a small shoving skiff for "tending the battery." There is no bag limit here, and the sale of game has only been prohibited since 1918.

When we passed the sharpie of Randy Farrell, the market shooter, Randy was standing with his head out of the hatchway smoking an after-breakfast pipe, and we sung out, "What luck, yesterday?"

He grinned, pointed to a string of ducks hanging from the rigging, and grunted, "Sixty-three."

We grinned back with thoughts of killing a few ourselves that day, and asked Payne where he was going to "tie out" (a Southern expression meaning anchoring the battery).

"Jack Shoal, sir, I reckon," said he. "I'm going to put you where we've killed about all our redheads this season."

"All right, Payne, that sounds good to us," we agreed, and soon were sitting waiting in the motor boat while Payne and Eddie tied out the battery.

The Dude tossed up a coin to determine whether he or I went in first, as we were to have two-hour relays. He won, and lay back in the narrow coffin-shaped box.

"Keep well down, sir," called out Payne, and we chugged away in the motorboat and dropped anchor half a mile to leeward.

Farrell had tied out his battery on Rock Shoal, a mile or more to windward of us, and we could occasionally hear his bang! bang! but nothing from the Dude. Several bunches of redheads seemed to us to fly over his stool, but no shots.

Lone Black Brant.

A lone black brant flew over the battery. A faint puff of smoke, a sharp crack, and the wary bird struck the water with a tremendous splash. The Dude waved to us vigorously to show how he had scored, and, standing up, shot once again at the brant, which he had winged with his first barrel. This time the bird's head dropped and it drifted slowly toward us.

Soon a large flock of broadbills swung by, high in the air, but just as it seemed as if he would not get a shot, the tail of the flock dropped down into his decoys. The Dude shot twice and then once more. Two that time. A flock of redheads then flew by, and the Dude shot one, and later killed a single redhead which he jumped up from among his decoys.

Now My Turn.

Soon it was my turn. "Now you'll get a chance to kill some," said Payne, as the tender pushed off.

Soon the ducks began to come—all broadbills. They would show up on my left and fly along as if they did not see the stool until they got back of me, and then would sweep down over me like a flock of bullets. I shot again and again without getting one. Two birds down when I should have killed a dozen or 15! Disgusted I signaled to the Dude to take my place before my time was up, and he killed a few more in good shape.

Then, as we had a long way to go, we had to take up the decoys just when the birds were flying thickest. In 35 minutes all the decoys were in the skiff, and the battery aboard and tied down. Pretty quick work for two men.

Good Sport From the Battery.

On the following morning I had the first two hours in the battery, and though the breeze was very slight, the fowl were moving well. The first shot killed a single broadbill, and the next two shots a pair of the same species. Then, as the tail of a big flock swept over the decoys from the left, I killed one with each barrel, and repeated this performance as another bunch swung by from the right. Then I tried a long shot at a redhead flying outside the decoys and missed, and ended up with a pair of redheads—one to each barrel. This was the best shooting I had ever done from a battery, and I was consequently elated—though, of course, the ducks stooled well and the battery was practically in calm water.

Our Banner Day.

Friday was the best day of the trip. We killed five brant and 30 ducks that day, and I was the lucky man who was in the battery when the ducks were flying thickest, during the noon spell. In a little over an hour I killed 16 ducks and two brant. I was not shooting as well as the day before, but killed at least one nearly every time I sat up. With an automatic gun I should probably have killed 25 ducks.

Two shots I recall especially. One was at a brant that was flying outside the decoys on my left. I gave him both barrels and he still flew on, but in a most peculiar manner. He swooped up and down, rolling heavily from side to side, and finally fell dead in the sound a half mile from the battery. The other shot was at a single broadbill that hurried by on my right. He was going so fast that I could hardly get my gun on him before he was back of my head, and I fired without seeing him at all over the barrels; but he crumpled up stone dead.

These three days in the battery netted us 80 ducks. Also six black brant, which we were much pleased to kill, as neither of us had ever shot one before. We also had 12 geese that we had shot earlier in the week, and we killed two more each on Saturday.

We were certainly sorry to leave the place, and decided that mighty few winters in future would pass by that did not find us at this great resort of waterfowl.

Puchta Likely to Oppose O'Donnell

Proposed Bout With National Amateur Champion Tommy Murphy Is Called Off.

Roger Cornell, matchmaker of the National Sporting Club, announced yesterday that the proposed match between George Puchta, St. Louis amateur lightweight champion, and Tommy Murphy, Kansas City, National amateur 135-pounder, had been called off because Murphy refused to make 135 pounds at 5 o'clock the evening of the bout. The Kansas Cityan held out for 135 pounds at noon, but Tommy Bramell, who is looking after Puchta's interests, considered that weight would give the champion too great an advantage over the local boy, whose best fighting weight is 132 pounds, ringside.

As a substitute for the Puchta-Murphy bout Cornell probably will match Puchta with Mike O'Donnell of the Stag A. C. The show will be held at the Armory March 29.

John J. Stephens, athletic director of the Stag Athletic Club, said last night that O'Donnell questioned Puchta's right to the city lightweight title and that he would agree to the 135-pound weight at 6 o'clock for the South Broadway A. C. boxer. O'Donnell said the club would put up any desired guarantee that their boy would make the weight.

St. Leos Oppose Keen Kutters in Park Final Today

Elevens Battle at Fairground No. 2 to Decide Soccer Supremacy.

The St. Leos and the Keen Kutters are scheduled to play in the first of a three-game series to decide the Municipal Soccer Association championship this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The contest will be played at Fairground No. 2 and an admission fee of 25 cents will be charged to a certain section of the bleachers. This money will be used to defray expenses of the champions to Memphis.

In going into the final, the St. Leos defeated the Wagner Starters, 2—1, and the Eckharts, 3—0. The Keen Kutters vanquished the Trumbulls, 2—1, and in the semi-final last Sunday won from the Paul Muellers.

Arrangements have been made to accommodate 10,000 patrons in the bleachers. The rooters of the St. Leos will occupy the north side and the Keen Kutter followers the south.

Paul Murphy has been selected to referee the game, while Oliver Miller, J. Asinger, Richard Wall, J. Kelly and J. Craddock will officiate as linesmen and timers.

GRAND AND OLIVE CORNER VALUATION $12,000 A FOOT

Leases on Premises of 50 by 155 Feet, Owned by Thomas Halpin, Will Net Annual Rental of $24,600.

By BERRY MOORE.

Soon leases will be recorded at rentals that will give the 50x155 foot strip, embracing the southwest corner of Grand avenue and Olive street, owned by Thomas Halpin, the veteran pharmacist, a valuation of more than $600,000, or more than $12,000 a foot for the 50-foot Olive street frontage of the property, figured at a 4 per cent basis, thus placing it on a par with realty in the central business district of the city.

Two leases for parts of the premises, which comprises a three-story building of a former type, were concluded yesterday by Frank X. Hackmann, president of the Hackmann Real Estate Co. L. Shertz, president of the St. Louis Restaurant Co., acquired a 50-year lease of a store, 25x155 feet, and two floors above at 3602 Olive street, at $450 a month, and the Shertz Restaurant and Bakery Co. a 50-year lease of the store 40x80 feet, at 317-19 North Grand avenue at $300 a month. The two leases represent an aggregate annual rental of $9000.

The Olive street store will be occupied with a cafenet similar to restaurant of that type in New York.

The Hackmann Real Estate Co. also expects to effect a lease of the store 40x80 feet, embraced in the Halpin property, at 321 North Grand avenue, at $300 a month, the south part of the Grand avenue depth of this property having been divided into stores.

The Union News Co. recently obtained a 50-year lease through the Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co, at a rental of $12,000 a year, of the store and two upper floors, 25x70 feet of the Halpin building at the corner of Grand, which was formerly occupied by Halpin's drug store.

With the store at 312 North Grand avenue leased for $300 a month, for which negotiations are now pending, the net rentals of the Halpin property, having a frontage of 50 feet on Olive street and 155 feet on Grand, will aggregate $24,600.

DETROIT MAN LEASES OLIVE ST. PROPERTY

Reconstruction of Buildings About Arcadia Hall on Imposing Scale Is Projected.

Jeffe L. Woods, of Detroit, has concluded negotiations with Robert W. Walsh for a 99-year lease of property at the northwest corner of Theresa avenue and Olive street, 250 x250 feet, and is said to have plans for its improvement on a large scale.

The present improvements include 24 houses, 11 on Theresa avenue, 10 on West End place, a private street forming part of the property, and three on Olive street, among them Arcadia Hall, formerly known as Dreamland.

Buildings of various kinds are being discussed to replace the dwellings, which are of a somewhat ancient type. These include a large building with automobile show rooms and a lofty hotel structure, according to Walsh. Arcadia Hall will not be disturbed or incorporated in the proposed operations, according to Walsh, who is of the Widman & Walsh firm of architects.

Woods is said to have ample resources to carry out his project on a pretentious scale.

BREWERY PROPERTY TO HOUSE STRAW PLANT

Tract and Buildings at Boyle and Duncan Sold to New York Concern.

W. R. Comey & Co. of New York, which maintains several plants for the bleaching and coloring of straw for the millinery trade, has purchased the last of the property of the defunct Mutual Brewery Co., a tract 400x200 feet on the northeast corner of Boyle and Duncan avenues, on which are two large buildings, and a number of out buildings, through the Mercantile Trust Co. While the price was not divulged, it was said yesterday that the bondholders of the Brewery had fared much better than they expected. The improvements on the property originally cost more than $250,000.

W. R. Comey, who handled the transaction for his company, said that the buildings were ideal for a bleaching and coloring plant, for which purpose it will be used. The two main buildings are expected to be in operation by Sept. 1, while the remainder will be reserved for further expansion. The entire output of straw of his company for the millinery trade of the southwestern part of the United atStes will be handled at this plant, he said.

W. V. Delahunt, vice president of the Commonwealth Trust Co., Joseph Delabar and Joseph Carr, cashier of the Chippewa Bank, represented the bondholders of the brewery company. John F. Schoptlin, industrial commissioner of the Mercantile Trust Co., and George H. Streiff, negotiated the sale.

The J. I. Case Threshing Machine Co. purchased the northern half of the property of the brewery company a year ago for about $80,000 and since that time has been using it as a distributing point. The site is in a rapidly developing manufacturing center.

REALTY COMMITTEE APPEALS FOR AID OF Y. W. C. A. HOUSING PLAN

A committee of the Real Estate Exchange, of which R. S. Williams is chairman, has sent the following circular letter in behalf of the campaign for housing for girls who work, to members of that organization:

"The Young Woman's Christian Association has found it necessary to conduct a campaign to raise $500,000 to furnish temporary quarters for young women who are coming to St. Louis to work, many of whom will make their permanent homes here. The city is growing, and there are literally thousands of women and girls coming here, many of whom have never been in a large city before and who are unable to obtain respectable homes. The Y. W. C. A. attempts to fill this need by giving them rooms and board at a very low rate until they can get permanent living quarters. The Association Is calling in the business organizations throughout the city to help with the initial fund.

"A committee authorized by the board of directors of the Real Estate Exchange will call upon you during the early part of the week to receive your pledge for this work. We trust that your response will show your approval of the cause."

CITY REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

Kingsbury Boulevard in Ames Place

Kingsbury Boulevard runs without a break through Parkview and Ames Place from Skinker Road to Pennsylvania Avenue.

In Ames Place it is a magnificent parkway 100 feet wide, with a central lawn, one-way drives of red gravel and electric lamps on ornamental standards.

Midway between the University and Delmar-Olive lines, crossed at Melville Avenue by the Kirkwood-Ferguson line and opening into Pennsylvania Avenue on the west, and Parkview on the east, it is as convenient as it is exclusive.

Several handsome lots are still for sale in the block between Melville and Adelaide avenues. The prices have not advanced since last Summer, but will be raised 10 to 20 per cent on April 15th. Our representative, at Pershing and Pennsylvania avenues, will be glad to give you prices and terms.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone. Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

A. A. K.—A perpetual motion motor has never been invented.

GREGGIE ELIAN.—Bob Martin "whipped" Andrew Peltier Dec. 16, 1918.

T. J. K.—The artist, William Chandlee, was never the Post-Dispatch cartoonist.

MRS. JOHN R. BRADSHAW.—St. Louis University and Washington University both rank as high class institutions.

BECKIE.—The naming of your canoe is a task too great for us to undertake. We have never been able to name our own.

FLINT.—You addressed us correctly. We do not know where you can get a flint and steel unless it may be had in some curio dealer's shop.

R. A. T.—Oklahoma did not give her soldiers a bonus. There are a number of bills before Congress at present, but no action has been taken.

WORRIED GIRL.—If you cannot decide as to the state of your own feelings or those of your friend, a stranger would hardly be able to do so.

W. M. A.—If you make over $1000 and your son makes over $1000 you should have paid an income tax. If your son turns all his money over to you, you must add it to your return.

K. Z.—We should think that a university graduate in journalism would have no difficulty finding a position somewhere, especially encourage the employment of university graduates.

G. W. E.—A gold dollar of 1853 is worth from $1.50 to $1.75, but if it has a hole in it it may not be worth that much. The only gold quarters we have ever heard of were coined in California and if there were any made in 1860 there is no premium on them.

THANKFUL.—We are afraid that nothing can be done to take the color out of the white spot on your middy. The collar will probably continue to fade. Perhaps if you had soaked it in salt water before you washed it, the color would have held.

M. J. H.—In Missouri you can marry immediately after your divorce is granted, but it is safer to wait until the end of that term of court. All depends upon your contract with the suit clerk. They might be able to keep your money and they might not.

VIOLET C.—We do not know what the law in Kentucky is regarding the salaries of County Health Officers, but the law recently enacted in Missouri provides that the compensation shall be mutually agreed to between the Health Officer and the County Court.

SAD GIRL.—It may be all right for a girl to go to shows by herself, but it certainly is not all right for her to smile or speak to men whom she does not know. Perhaps if you would cultivate some girl friends they would introduce you to some of their boy friends.

OUT FOR A GOOD TIME.—It would be wise for you to consult some of the ladies of the church or the minister regarding the old-fashioned dances. There are many good games in Bancroft's Book of Games, which can be seen at the Public Library.

IGNORAMUS.—You can collect your alimony no matter what state your former husband moves to. You can sue for it if necessary. A wife can will her property to whom she pleases, but her husband would still have a one-third interest in it, of which he cannot be divested without his consent.

AN HONEST AUTHOR.—No, an author does not need a license to sell his stories. If your stories are good you will be able to sell them. If you wish training along the line of writing you do not want the name of a dramatic school. Why do you not take a course in short story writing at some university?

ISABELLA LEVI.—The President of China is Shu Shih Chang, Antonio Almeida is the President of Portugal, Yoshihito is the Mikado of Japan, Alfonso is the King of Spain. Frederick Ebert is President of Germany.

IGNORANT.—Yes, the law forbids any person from making and using an article upon which the patent is pending. You can write to the U. S. Patent Office, Washington, D. C., for copies of any patents you want. The patent laws are in the United States Statutes. You had better employ a lawyer to draw your patent allowed, unless you have had experience.

BLUE EYES.—If you made a mutual agreement to live together as man and wife, and you were introduced as his wife you were legally married at that time. If time has to elapse before it is legal. He cannot then marry another woman without first obtaining a divorce from you. Go to the Legal Aid Bureau, Municipal Courts Building, for advice.

MAVIS.—A 1-cent piece dated 1858, if made of nickel with a flying eagle stamped on it, is worth from 1c to 5c. If the coat is copper with an Indian head on it, it is worth from 25c to 50c. A gold dollar of 1851 is worth from $1.50 to $1.75. The answer to the question regarding the motion picture actress can probably be found in some motion picture magazine.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be answered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given. Questions that cannot be publicly discussed, if showing evidences of sincerity, will be answered when accompanied by stamped envelope.)

JOSEPH.—There is no scientific method or any other method of lengthening the human body.

READER.—If you are 5 feet 2 inches tall and 4 years old your minimum weight should be 105 pounds, maximum 160 and average 133.

MRS. B.—The condition you mention is suggestive of some heart trouble. Take or send your boy to a physician for a thorough examination.

THANK YOU.—If you have indigestion regulate your diet and take essence of pepsin and bismuth. Relief has long prevailed that some constituent of drinking water is responsible for it. What this is, however, is unknown. That locality is in some manner responsible for it is in the fact that removal from a territory subject to it arrests its development, and that the disease will develop in a healthy family moving into a locality subject to it. Any change in the water supply of a district subject to it has led to its disappearance. Goiters are much more common in women but men are also afflicted. These remarks apply to simple goiter.

H. H. H.—You can receive free medical treatment without being placed under confinement. Only cases arrested by the police or known to be public characters are confined.

A CONSTANT READER.—The exciting cause of goiter is still unknown, although a belief has long prevailed that some constituent of drinking water is responsible for it. What this is, however, is unknown. That locality is in some manner responsible for it is in the fact that removal from a territory subject to it arrests its development, and that the disease will develop in a healthy family moving into a locality subject to it. Any change in the water supply of a district subject to it has led to its disappearance. Goiters are much more common in women but men are also afflicted. These remarks apply to simple goiter.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of my dear mother, Nellie E. Bauer, who departed from me one year ago, March 13, 1919:
Surrounded by friends, I am lonesome.
In the midst of my pleasures I am blue,
A smile on my face, still a heartache,
Aching and longing for you.
There are griefs that cannot find comfort,
And wounds that cannot be healed,
There are sorrows so deep in the human heart
That cannot be revealed.
Sadly missed by daughter,
GRETRUDE F. WALSH. (c)

In loving memory of our darling baby, Walter Housman Jr., whom the Lord called home one year ago, March 18, 1919, aged 6 years 8 days:
A bud the Great Gardener gave us,
A pure and loving child,
He gave to our keeping
To cherish, undefiled.
Just as the bud was opened
To the glory of the day,
Down came our Heavenly Father
And took our darling away
Sadly missed by a heart-broken
MOTHER AND FATHER.

In memory of my dear daughter and our dear sister, Mathilde Niehaus, who died one year ago, March 21, 1919:
Do not ask us if we miss her;
Oh, there is such a vacant place.
Oft we think we hear her footsteps,
Or we see her smiling face.
'Tis not for tears of that moment shed
That tell how we loved that soul that fled;
'Tis silent tears through the long year wept
And fond remembrance kept.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, SISTERS AND BROTHER.

In memory of our dear mother, Mary Burkhardt, who departed this life one year ago, March 20, 1919:
Joying mother, true and kind.
No friend like her on earth we'll find,
God called her home, it was his will,
But in our hearts she lingers still,
For all of us she did her best.
May God grant her eternal rest.
Sadly missed by
CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.
Mass at St. George's Church, Monday, March 22, at 8 a. m.

In loving remembrance of our dear husband and father, J. L. Trojanowski, who departed one year ago, March 9, 1919:
We often sit and think of you,
When we're alone in sorrow,
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
One year has passed away.
We grieved when he departed;
Time was too short to say farewell
To those he loved dearest so well.
We miss his coming footsteps—
His hand in ours everywhere;
Home is not home, dear, to be
Since my husband is not there.
Sadly missed by his WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In memory of my dear husband, beloved son, and our little friend, Baby King, who departed this life one year ago, March 22, 1919.
A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we love is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
A loving husband, son and brother, true and kind;
No friend like him on earth we'll find,
God called him home, it was his will,
But in our hearts he lingers still.
By all of us he did his best; may God grant him eternal rest.
Sadly missed by Wife, Mother, Father, Sister, Brother and all his friends.

In memory of my dear wife, Mrs. Bertha Willer, who died March 19, 1919:
Just one year has passed since you have past away,
I saw your suffer, I heard your sighs,
With aching heart and weeping eyes
I saw you sinking hour by hour,
Yet could not help you with all your power.
But now she calmly sleeps at last
All pain, all aches, all suffering past;
Forget her, no, it shall never,
Friend may think that the wound is healed,
But they little know the grief
Within my heart concealed;
Though from you I had to part
Your memory still dwells in my heart.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND SON.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Mary Beatrice Amodio Meehan, who departed this life March 21, 1915:
It was Passion Sunday and the first day of spring,
When the clock struck 10, then the half hour, one;
O mother, we knew then that the hour had come;
Just five years ago today since our dear mother left us,
O Lord, keep kneen the grave that lies beneath the wide and starry skies.
Make aware the resting place of her rest.
Those hands are folded on her breast.
Oh, loving mother, true and kind,
No friend like her on earth we'll find,
God called her home, it was His Will,
But in our hearts she lingers still.
For all of us she did her best.
May God grant her eternal rest.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, CHILDREN AND BROTHER.

In remembrance of my darling daughter, Agnes E. Winters, who passed away March 20, 1917:
My heart in deep sorrow returns to the day,
As memory recalls how death bore you away,
And left me in tears, in grief and in woe,
When I stood by your bed-side years ago.
Three years with all its changes,
Since death strangely bade us part,
But, my dear Agnes, all these changes
Cannot take you from my heart.
Gone in the best of your day,
Blighted in womanhood bloom,
Gone from a heart that loved you,
To sleep in the silent tomb.

YOU will always get the "busy signal" when you are "down and out." Get your money "Everyman" needs a suit; buying what you do not "need" is an easy road to "realizing" what you cannot buy. Get what you need when the needling is good. We have "released" for the "First Run" hundreds new suits. Play the "Short Bank Roll" against the "long green." You might have "short-coming" what you cannot buy. Get what you need when the needling is good. We have "released" for the "First Run" hundreds new suits. MAYBE the "only thing" you have saved in life for that "rainy day" is your old umbrella. Play to "our game." For 10 years we have saved thousands of dollars for "our trade" instead of had "old shower-stick" stuff. We have "increased" our clothing business 50 per cent because our prices are right; we save you money. You "will always" be in the bowels of the hockshops if you continue to pay those "high prices." $24.98, $29.98 and $34.98 will still buy a good suit at "the place to buy clothes." What the Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop means to you. These fine garments are made by the manufacturer for display or modeling purposes for traveling salesmen; they are made much better than the regular goods after they show them off; now buy them at a big discount; we give you the benefit of our immense buying capacity, this policy enables us to save you $10 to $15 on "living" the "high cost of living" we claim with our "5 big stores" eliminating all unnecessary expense. You cannot see the difference. Never in the "history" of these "United States" will you "see prices" as "high." Now, don't be "misled" the "out in the open" paying for the high rents "which don't get you anywhere." All we ask you to do is "shopping around" first and come here last, and we will certainly get your "dough." Buy more, pay less." Vandeventer, Market, Sarah, Manchester, Chouteau and all other lines transfer to our door. "Sample Suits," $24.98, $29.98. Sample pants, $2.98, $3.46, $4.98. How to Get What You Want

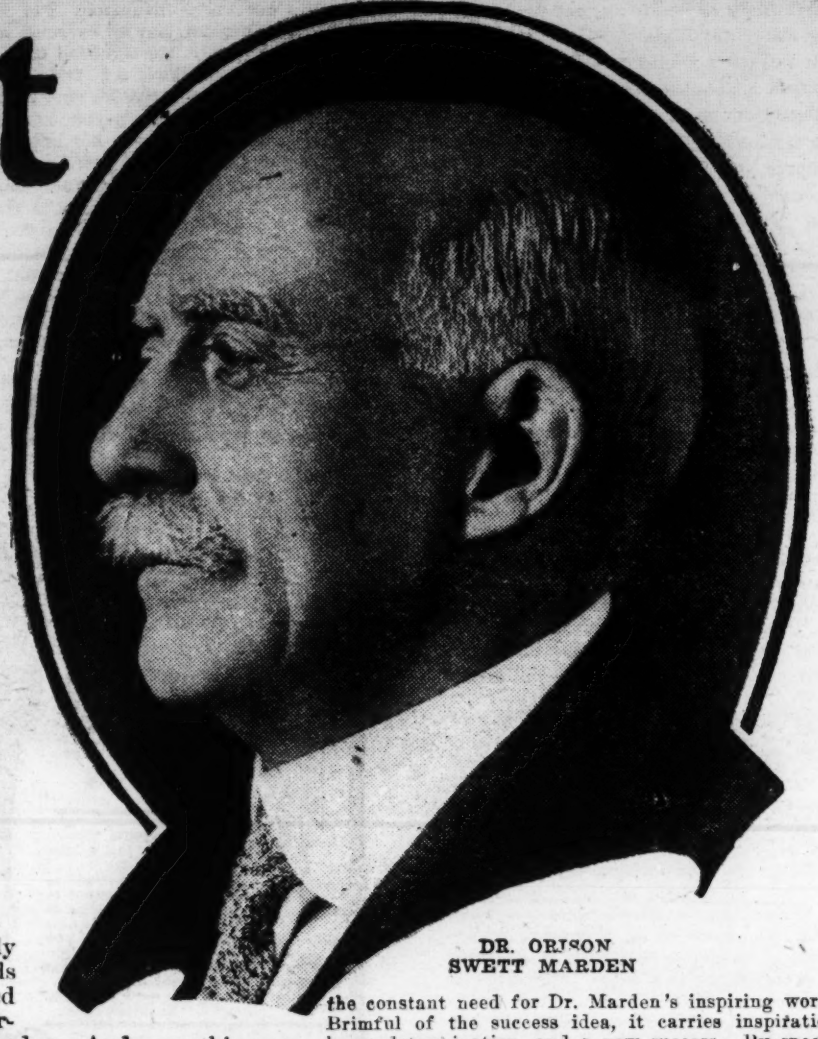
A Remarkable System of Personal Efficiency

Taught by Dr. Orison Swett Marden, The World's Greatest Inspirational Writer, Who Has Helped Thousands of Discouraged Men and Women to Brilliant Success.



DR. ORISON SWETT MARDEN

NO matter what you want—whether it be wealth, power, position, fame, health, friendship, or any kind of material success—it is no longer necessary for you to grope for it blindly, uncertainly, wasting your energy and brain power in an unequal struggle against circumstances and environment.

There is a sure and certain way of reaching your goal, of attaining your desires, of realizing your ambitions. There has been worked out for your guidance a definite plan of action which if followed intelligently will put you on the road to assured success. So clear, so simple, so explicit are the instructions that any one can grasp their meaning quickly and put them into practice. A single hour devoted to their study may change the course of your whole life. Many a man who had thought himself possessed of only moderate ability—yes, many a self-confessed failure—has suddenly found himself a new man mentally and spiritually, with a wonderful new power of accomplishment, new courage, new ambition and new opportunities for success, simply by following the suggestions given him by Dr. Orison Swett Marden.

Charles M. Schwab, the commanding spirit of the steel industry in America, in acknowledging his indebtedness to Dr. Marden, said: Dr. Marden's writings have had much to do with my success.

What Four of World's Leaders Say

When such men as Theodore Roosevelt, Charles M. Schwab, John Wanamaker, and Lord Northcliffe—all leaders in their fields—have felt so strongly the debt of gratitude they owe this man that they have not hesitated to acknowledge it in writing, surely you also can be helped to develop your latent powers, to fill a larger place in the world, to make a new success of your life.

Lord Northcliffe, the great English publisher who is a world figure, wrote: I believe Dr. Marden's writings will be of immense assistance to all young men.

Read under their pictures on this page what these four great men have said about Dr. Marden's writings!

These men are only four of the thousands that have been aided by the ambition-firing words of Dr. Marden. And now, this man who can awaken through his everyday writings the determination to win a bigger success, has outlined a definite plan for you to follow.

There is nothing mysterious or difficult about Dr. Marden's teachings. They are clear, direct, personal. You will recognize their truth and their value to you as soon as you read them, just as thousands of other ambitious men, in all walks of life, have done.

From $12 a Week Clerk to—

Twenty years ago, J. C. Penny was a $12.00 a week clerk in a small western town. Today he is the head of a $20,000,000 business. He attributes the beginning of his success to Dr. Marden's writings and writes: "Until seventeen years ago I had never made a right start. I was working for little better than starvation wages. I was pretty much discouraged over my lack of prospects. Then something happened to me that influenced and dominated my whole career—I came upon the inspirational writings of Dr. Orison Swett Marden. So, you see, I owe a great deal of my success and the success of the J. C. Penny Co. to Dr. Marden."

W. A. Rockwood of Binghamton, N. Y., writes:

"One copy of your magazine has been the means of my closing a deal amounting to several thousand dollars."

Leonard A. Paris, of Muncie, Indiana, says:

"Dr. Marden's writings helped me at a time when I was more discouraged than I have ever been in my life and proved the turning point in my career, enabling me to secure a fine position, and after two years to secure an interest in a retail business doing upward of $200,000 a year."

John Wanamaker: I would, if it had been necessary, have been willing to have gone without at least one meal a day to buy one of Dr. Marden's books.

What 10 Minutes Will Do

Instead of putting his teachings in the form of an expensive course, costing thirty or forty dollars, Dr. Marden has insisted that you be given the benefit of his training for almost nothing. He has put the whole inspiring, mind-developing course into a single book, entitled "HOW TO GET WHAT YOU WANT." A book that, in the first ten minutes of reading, gives you an entirely new viewpoint.

In order to get the most from this book of success, every ambitious man and woman should read in connection with it, THE NEW SUCCESS—MARDEN'S MAGAZINE. It is published to fill, for thousands, the constant need for Dr. Marden's inspiring words. Brimful of the success idea, it carries inspiration, hope, determination, and a new success. By special arrangement both the book and a year's subscription to the magazine can now be secured for only $3. You don't have to risk a single penny. "How to Get What You Want" and the New Success will be sent you entirely free for a five-day examination.

Theodore Roosevelt, when president of the United States, wrote to Dr. Marden: I am so deeply touched and pleased with your editorial that I must write and tell you so.

Celebrities Shun New York as Birthplace

BY RING W. LARDNER

TO THE EDITOR:

I hope they won't nobody take offences at this article as nothing is father from my thoughts than try and get people mad but it looks to me like when a person finds out some interesting facts of history it is their duty to slip it along to my army of readers.

Well the other day I was comeing home from old Chi and like usual whenever I hop on a train the first thing I always do is try and make acquaintances with some stranger so as I can maybe improve my mind a little by listening to their conversation and incidently improve their mind a whole lot by makeing them listen to what I got to say. So I went in the club car and looked them over and picked out a bird that you could tell he was a Dr. on acct. of how sanitary he acted and I said to myself I will get acquainted with that bird because the way the trains are acting up now days they's no telling where they will stop and they might pull up along side of a drug store.

So I set down by him and told him who I am and he seemed tickled to death and finely he ast where I live at and I told him and to return the compliments I ast him where he lived at and he says "I am a New Yorker." So I ast him was he born in N. Y. City and he give me a look as much as to say what was the matter with me and then he ast me was I jokeing and I said what do you mean jokeing and he said "Of ccurse you know I wasn't born in N. Y. City because nobody ever was."

So now it was my turn to ask him was he jokeing and he says "If you think I am you can get a bet out of me. If you can name me one person that was born in N. Y. City I will pay your fare there."

Well I am pretty well acquainted around the Big Town, as I have nick named it; so I immediately begin springing the names of some of my friends in the hopes that he wouldn't know if they was born in the Big Town or no, but he says "You are just bluffing as I know where every one of those birds were born and none of them was born in the Big Town."

"Listen," he says, "let's take a look at the different people that ma es up New York's principle industrys li e baseball and actors and singers and artists and writers and etc. and you will see that every one of them is immigrants. For instants there is Morris Gest from Wilna, Russia, and there is Irvin Cobb from Paducah, Ky. and there is Babe Ruth from Baltimore, Mary."

Well to make a long story out of a short story he went ahead and named pretty near everybody I ever heard of and where they was all born and I only wished I had of took it all down on paper and pencil so as I could give full details but the best I can do is set down all as I can remember of it and maybe in some cases I have got the towns wrong but any way here it is as follows in the order named inclusive under the different head lines.

Getting Examined For Life Insurance

BY JAMES J. MONTAGUE

THERE had been an epidemic of blood pressure around town, and we were getting worried. Nearly all our friends had it, in varying degrees of acuteness.

They still went about their business, it is true, but they wore long faces and recited their symptoms whenever they found anybody who would listen.

For quite a while we thought that blood pressure was catching, like mumps, and we avoided all of our acquaintances who boasted of having it.

But later, in a newspaper article, we learned that almost anybody, at our age, was likely to get it, and that the harder you had been working the greater would be your susceptibility.

On account of repeated and exaggerated snowstorms, we had been working very hard.

No sooner would we get the walks all cleared off than along would come another blizzard and pile them higher than ever.

At the end of seven weeks, during which we must have handled 30 long tons of snow, we felt exhausted and had a pain in our side. Furthermore, our temples would throb at the mere thought of another blizzard.

This, we figured, must be an indication of blood pressure. We stopped shoveling snow, but it didn't do any good. We gave over work of all descriptions, and got no better.

Soon we developed symptoms at an alarming rate. We had pains in our chest and side, a burning sensation in our cheeks. Our collars began to get too small for us.

We were diffident about consulting a doctor. We were afraid we could not stand the shock of what they would have to tell us about ourselves.

Yet something must be done, that was certain.

One day a young friend came in and offered to sell us life insurance on a plan which, he said, would be practically giving it to us.

"You never can tell what will happen," he said. Then glancing at us searchingly, he added: "At your time of life a man is likely to get blood pressure and be off like that." And he snapped his fingers suggestively.

This gesture of his supplied us with food for thought. If we went off "like that" there ought to be a little something for the wife and children.

We lapsed into deep thought, from which we presently were roused by the consciousness that our friend was still talking.

"Besides," he was saying, "one of the surest ways to find out about yourself is to get yourself examined for life insurance. Of course, I don't know that my company will take you—it's very particular—but if you do pass the examination, you at least know that you're all right."

That settled it. We made out the application feverishly, and he took it away with him.

The next day a sepulchral voice over the telephone said:

"I am Dr. Smith of the Rock-Ribbed Life. I have made an appointment for you in half an hour. Can you keep it?"

If we had been told that the hangman had made an appointment with us we could have been little more startled. However, we managed to reply in a husky voice that we would be there.

For half an hour we sat trembling on a chair in the doctor's anteroom. What would we do, what COULD we do, if he told us that we had blood pressure and refused us?

In our mind there developed pictures of—but we cannot dwell on such painful matters.

When we entered the doctor's office we found a solemn looking man with black whiskers, who seemed to eye us despairingly.

At his request we took off our coat. He undid the first few buttons of our shirt and massaged our chest with a telephone transmitter, holding the receiving tubes in his ears.

We tried to make jocose comments to cheer ourselves up as he paused and listened, first here and then there.

But he held up a warning hand and we desisted.

At least a hundred times, at his request, we said, "Ninety-nine," that apparently being the telehpone number of the particular part of our anatomy he was trying to communicate with.

The number must have been busy, for presently he shook his head and hung up the telephone. We thought he glanced at us com-

members of the order and rent payers themselves, stood by and did nothing when a street was torn up. The landlords and their agents could get no protection. They soon stopped tampering with the water.

Then had yet another battle.

And all this happened because Joe Mooney, police reporter, got riled up about a little, with no legal machinery willing or able to move in their behalf, is difficult to see. It looks as though the tenants had won and would force a compromise on the speculators, who will likely retire with heavy losses.

niseratingly as he did so, but we had no time to think long about anything.

He got out a rubber strap three or four feet long and wrapped it about our arm. We knew what that meant.

Blood pressure!

It felt comfortable at first, and our fears began to dissipate. We didn't have any blood pressure. Why, we could hardly feel the thing. But soon it began to bind. Then it felt as if the late Bob Fitzsimmons had seized us by the upper arm. The doctor was looking attentively at a little gauge connected in some way with the strap.

He was shaking his head sadly. We began to shake our knees in unison. For a time we thought we were going out, but by exercise of great will power we kept our feet. He signified that the examination was done.

"How about it? Did—did we pass?" we quavered.

"You will receive your notification," he said gloomily.

We put on our coat again and went out. The world seemed to smile—but not for us. The skies were clear, the air warm. People were laughing and chatting. We didn't see how they could do it.

Three days we spent in frantic suspense. At the end of that time we gave up. We did not work, we ate hardly anything at all. Blood pressure, we knew, was aggravated by working and eating. We might as well put off the day of doom as long as possible.

One evening as we were coming home with laggard steps and slow, giving our heart as much consideration as was possible, the postman who was passing thrust a letter into our hand. We opened it with shaking fingers. It contained a bill for the life insurance premium for which we had applied to the Rock-Ribbed. A little reasoning showed us that if we hadn't passed we wouldn't have got the bill.

An hour later we were informed that dinner was ready.

"Can't come just yet," we said. "We have got to shovel the snow off a hundred feet more of sidewalk before another blizzard comes up."

Havana Goes to the Opera

Cubans drinking highballs and eating ice cream at the same time. However, it is not hard to do, I can assure you.

There is no after-theater dancing in any of the hotels or restaurants in Havana, proper, and the deadly cabaret is also nonexistant, as some monetarily ambitious New York restaurateurs know to their sorrow. Havana society doesn't dance in public places and the haute and demi-monde do not mix at adjoining tables, as they do in New York.

If one must dance, however, there is a fast floor and a wicked band out in Cedado. For Havana has everything. This suburban establishment is called El Carmelo, and is run along supper club lines, which means that anyone who has the price of a couple of drinks is admitted.

I didn't feel like dancing, but the moonlight ride to Cedado appealed to me, so we buzzed out to El Carmelo. A head waiter who used to be a captain at the Biltmore welcomed me with open arms and escorted me to a table. However, El Carmelo was as dull and as drab as the Inglaterra restaurant was gay and colorful.

Less than a score of American visitors were jazzing about to the poorest imitation of American dance music I ever heard. The only Cubans there were the waiters and the musicians.

The head waiter and a sad-eyed American hostess told me the place kept open until 3 a. m., but I was willing to take their word for it. There are some American innovations which are not an improvement on Cuba's institutions. And if the island republic ever goes—ry it will be because of the efforts of Americans to make Cuba drink their way.

asked. The Sheriff said he supposed the grandfather would become George's guardian.

"Never," she said. "Pa has done me all the dirt he can. He can't have my boy. Don't you ever let your grandpa be your guardian," she commanded, turning to her son, who was present. He replied obediently.

Sheriff Sapp told her that some of the members of her family could accompany her to the penitentiary.

"No, I don't want them to go," she said. "They were against me when I needed help, now they can go their own way. Let Mrs. Sapp go with me," and thus, in the same car with the man for love of whom she had paid such a heavy penalty, she was taken away to prison. And the gray and bent father, who saw her go, said:

"The hand of the Lord has been heavy upon me, but the guilty must suffer."

Women say La-may stays on better than any other face powder.

Up to the present time it has been almost impossible to get a face powder to stay on the face longer than it takes to put it on. You powder your nose nicely, and the first gust of wind or the first puff of your handkerchief and away goes the powder, leaving your nose shiny and conspicuous, probably just at the very moment when you would give anything to appear at your best. A specialist has at last perfected a pure powder that really stays on; that stays on until you wash it off. It does not contain white lead or starchy rice powder to make it stay on. This improved formula contains a medicinal powder doctors prescribe to improve the complexion. In fact, this powder helps to prevent and reduce enlarged pores and irritations. It is also astringent, discouraging flabbiness, crow's feet and wrinkles. This unusual powder is called La-may (French, Poudre L'Ame). Because La-may is pure and because it stays on so well it is already used by over a million American women. All dealers carry the large sixty-cent box, and many dealers also carry the generous thirty-cent size. When you use this harmless powder and see how beautifully it improves your complexion you will understand why La-may so quickly became the most popular beauty powder sold in New York. We will give you five thousand dollars if you can buy a better face powder anywhere at any price. Herbert Roystone, 16 East 18th St., New York.

Philadelphia's Successful Revolt .. Against Rent Profiteers ..

Organized by a newspaper reporter, 30,000 tenants have curbed avaricious landlords and stopped evictions, despite zealous constables and efforts to shut off water supply in homes—Miniature though bloodless warfare with victory for the renters

THEY haven't raised the rents in Philadelphia—much. Not that they haven't tried. The avaricious landlord is found in all sections, and in the last year or so he has flourished amazingly except in Philadelphia.

All of which is due to Mr. Joseph E. Molony.

Mr. Molony is a thin and rather nervous little man, not far the pleasant side of 40. He is neither bulky nor official nor terrible. He wears no special badge of might or courage. Neither has birth favored him with fortune nor life with high estate. He is simply the police reporter of the Philadelphia Press, "and a durn good police reporter," one of his colleagues assured me. He is a proud member of the great, silent middle class, married, settled, satisfied to mind his own business, convinced that this is a good world if not disturbed too much by its own evil spirits. He is as the world goes, a good citizen.

Nevertheless, Molony has achieved greatness. No doubt he will deny the disconcerting charge. But 30,000 Philadelphia families will support me in the estimate. And perhaps I can demonstrate to you the essentials of greatness in him.

Joseph E. Molony is president of the Tenants' Protective Association. This lodge of rent payers has 30,000 families as members in Philadelphia and 10,000 in West Philadelphia, where Molony resides and where he founded the order. He and his associates have defeated the landlords in every attempt to put undue strains on the purses of tenants in the town of William Penn. Molony and his followers have forced Constables to cease evicting for nonpayment. They have dared the Sheriff to make forcible entry and caused that official to stand inactive. They have held up the rents of every profiteering landlord on their lists and forced hundreds of owners to terms. They have put an end to the evictions of the poor. They have stopped conscienceless speculation in dwelling houses. They have utterly beaten the profiteers.

It is no exaggeration to say that Molony and his band are slowly attracting the attention of the entire East. Associations in imitation of the original Philadelphia body are springing up in many sections. The rights of tenants are becoming a political issue in many parts of this complaisant land. In Philadelphia the tenants have driven their point so far that no one in the city who is willing to pay $1 for protection need have his rent increased.

One evening more than a year ago Joe Molony went home from the reporters' room in the city hall and found a notice of rental increase. The landlord wanted $28 per month instead of $18.

The Molonys lived and continue to live in West Philadelphia, in one of those endless two-story individual houses which number more than 350,000 in the city and of which more than 250,000 are rented. Usually such houses consist of six rooms and bath. Whoever has been in the Pennsylvania metropolis must remember them, row on row, block on block, mile on mile of them, unlovely, stark, narrow—little better in any way than a New York flat and little cheaper than in our pre-war days, fuel and labor being considered. These ubiquitous houses called forth the rather cynical denomination City of Homes, under which Philadelphia struggles to this day. In the days before the war boosts started these houses brought from $16 to $30 a month, depending on size and location. As said, the Molony rent was boosted about 60 per cent in one leap.

The Press police reporter and his wife discussed the matter at dinner. As soon as the meal was over Molony put on his coat and went out into the night. He pulled the bells at nine different houses in nine separated localities—and found that similar boosts had been levied in each house. He invited the nine men to his home to talk business. They met the following night and the Tenants' Protective Association was formed then and there, each man paying a dollar.

The first stipulation was that there were to be no assessments after the payment of the initial dollar, and no paid officers. Ten thousand circulars were immediately printed, the association going into debt for them, and these were distributed all through West Philadelphia. They called a mass meeting for the following Sunday at a local theater. At this meeting the membership went up to 60.

Each of these members was now made an organizer in his own district. Tens of thousands of further circulars were printed and distributed by volunteer workers. The newspapers carried yards of notices about the activities of the rebellious tenants. More and more members paid their dollars and took up the work. Proselyting went on at a furious pace. In a little while West Philadelphia was fairly well organized. The movement had begun in the right place.

In West Philadelphia, which is not a separate community, but merely a section of the city, are most of the great industrial plants of Philadelphia. In this region reside the workers at Hog Island, the great Westinghouse works, the various shipyards and the big Delaware River plants—the lower middle class, with some sprinkling of the upper.

The tenants soon found that the houses in which they lived were owned in great blocks by individual landlords. A typical block of the section contains 60 such houses, all generally owned by the same man, usually a speculator. One man has been found and brought to book who owns 500 of the dwellings. These men took advantage of a Government-sponsored movement. It will be remembered that Secretary of Labor Wilson launched a "buy-your-home" drive while the war was still on, the idea being backed by patriotic and thrifty motives. The people went to buy and found that the speculators had anticipated them and snapped up everything in sight. The speculators adopted the policy of rent boosting for the double purpose of forcing sales at exorbitant prices or mulcting, through rents, those who could or would not buy. Two thoughts with but a single end.

This community ownership played into the hands of the tenants, for when they came upon one of these singly owned blocks they signed up every tenant in it, converted it into a fort and held it, 60 tenants against one speculator. They did the same thing with apartment houses. Soon West Philadelphia, as you passed along the residential streets, was a static procession of the white cards of the tenants' association. Every window held one, a glaring notice to rent boosters.

Next the tenants went after the newspapers. Their unpaid publicity agents got the editors to print extended stories of every pitiful eviction case that happened in the town. The harrowing details were not omitted and the name of the landlord, not the agent, printed in full, with his address and business. That caused some running to cover.

Again, the tenants notified the constabulary force of the city that strict compliance with the law would be demanded and compelled. A Constable is not permitted, under the Pennsylvania law, to make a forcible entry for the purpose of eviction. If the tenant refused to admit him, he must not force his way or raise any window or otherwise trench upon the thule of burglary. Of course, the Constables had always been breaking the law to please the landlords, who paid for such peccabilities. But now the tenants threatened the arrest and criminal prosecution of all such Constables. More than that, they took advantage of the fact that all Constables are bonded in $10,000 and threatened to sue these officers on their bonds.

The Constables went out of the eviction business after five of their number and eight landlords had been arrested, charged with forcible entry and maltreating tenants.

There remained the Sheriff. This officer is empowered with forcible entry rights if a court order of eviction be issued. The courts naturally issued such decree on the solicitation of the badgered landlords and the Deputy Sheriffs went out to execute them. But three days' notice is required by law, as in New York. In those three days the tenants' association drummed up a defense.

When the Deputy Sheriffs went into a block, confidently expecting to throw the balky family into the street, to earn their fees and to put an end to this preposterous bloodless revolution of the tenants, what a sight greeted their eyes!

The block was packed from one end to the other with tenants—a thousand of them, mostly women. Among them moved the pickets of the association, counseling them to remain silent, to make no move, to attempt no physical demonstration, to utter no cry. There they stood like statues, the whole thousand, arms folded, eyes serious, silently protesting. The Deputy Sheriffs took a good look through this crowd and decided that the climate at the office of the Lord High Sheriff was far more conducive to longevity.

The Sheriff was ordered out only once. The next time he refused to go. The dictum of the court lay on his desk, with none to do it reverence—or at least no officer willing to execute it. The Sheriff explained that owing to the weather and the juxtaposition of Mars and Uranus, it was deemed better to leave these evictions to the melancholy hands of time.

Since then there have been no evictions in Philadelphia, but the Tenants' Protective Association has spread all over town. The landlords or the speculators are wild and by that token baffled.

But the struggle is going on without abatement. The thing is that the tenants have the upper hand—on the theory that possession is nine points always. They have possession not only of the houses but the rents. The landlords have refused to accept the proffered money, so the tenants have collected all rents through their local associations, deposited the money in banks and proceeded to hold it till the owners listen to reason. They have offered the landlords reasonable increases, based on greater taxation, actual increase in outlay for repairs, etc. They have also offered to guarantee a net return of 6 per cent on actual investment. The landlords have spurned these various compromise measures and are fighting stubbornly.

First they turned off the water in the streets, knowing that without water there must soon be evacuation The tenants' association enlisted all the plumbers in the order, who turned the water on again free of charge. Next the landlords turned the water off and poured plaster of paris down the holes. This hardened, so that the streets had to be dug up to put the water on again.

The tenants moved immediately and decisively in this dilemma. They went into the police stations of every precinct and signed up the officers, including the Sergeants and Lieutenants. The police, being members of the order and rent payers themselves, stood by and did nothing when a street was torn up. The landlords and their agents could get no protection. They soon stopped tampering with the water.

They had lost another battle.

Now they are preparing for a great spring drive, to take place on April 1. On that day notices will go out that there will be no more renting. All houses must be bought or evacuated.

The Tenants' Protective Association is already countering with notices to all members which read:

"Don't buy! Don't get out! Don't pay an exorbitant increase in rent!"

Just what the owners of houses will do about it, with no legal machinery willing or able to move in their behalf, is difficult to see. It looks as though the tenants had won and would force a compromise on the speculators, who will likely retire with heavy losses.

And all this happened because Joe Molony, police reporter, got riled up about a 60 per cent jump in rent. (It's been jumped another 60 since then, on paper, and the average increase demanded has been 100 per cent or more.) But Joe Molony says there will be no such boosts, and he has made good on all his promises. And, it should be noted, he accomplished these ends through his personal effort and initiative, and not through the power and influence of the newspaper by which he was employed.

THE COW PUNCHER WHO DRILLED FOR WATER AND FOUND OIL

That was many, many years ago and the cow puncher is now one of America's very wealthy men, yet he secretly mourns the tide of events which drove his cattle off of his grazing lands — Reminiscences of the old days :: :: :: ::

W. T. WAGGONER.

"YOU say you want me to talk about the old days in Texas—cow punchin' and all that? Well, have a seat and—here, lady, meet A. B. He's my daughter, Electra's, husband. She's my only daughter and I named Electra, Tex., after her."

W. T. Waggoner, known to his friends as "Ole Tom" Waggoner, multi-millionaire, capitalist, stockman and oil man, of Fort Worth, Tex., leaned back in his chair, pushed his soft black hat to the back of his head, munched a half-smoked cigar, crossed his legs and folded his arms. A picturesque type of the real Westerner of pioneer days in Texas. And little changed by time and fabulous prosperity. Though Waggoner does not discuss the offer, it is generally reported that he has refused an offer of $50,000,000 for his oil holdings alone.

"I will never give up my cattle, though. I love a cow better than anything in the world, except my children," the millionaire added in a velvety, sentimental tone.

He is modest, quiet, plain and dresses in the simplest manner. And he is happiest when he is out on his ranches among his cattle and roaming over his extensive plains.

"I love to work. When I go out to the ranch, I always walk from the station out; it's only a mile. But the children, they always ride. I think they like oil better'n they do cows. They ain't so much work about oil," he said, with a chuckle. There are three Waggoner children—Guy and Paul Waggoner of Fort Worth, Tex., and Electra Waggoner Wharton of Dallas.

W. T. Waggoner saw the first spurt of oil that ever came from Texas soil. In 1902 he built Electra, Tex., now the center of the Electra oil fields. Crude oil was selling at 40 and 45 cents a barrel and nobody wanted it at that. Naturally, when the wealthy ranchman let his contract for a 2000-foot artesian well, he wanted water. His own disgust vibrates in every word and tone when he tells the story of the drilling of the "water hole."

"I wanted water, and they got me oil. I tell you, I was mad, mad clean through. We needed water to drink ourselves and for our cattle to drink. I said dsmn the oil, I want water." And the cattle king brought his fist down with a bang. He still resents the intrusion of the oil derricks on the land that he stoutly maintains belongs to "my cows by rights."

For 10 years this first Texas oil well lay dormant. Long before the opening of the Petrolia fields inhabitants of Electra carried away oil in buckets and used it as fuel, to oil machinery and to dip cattle to remove ticks.

While white-faced cattle roamed the plains and ranchmen worked 16 hours a day raising these cattle and tilling the soil, this same soil covered a pool of liquid gold flowing silently, steadily, waiting to be utilized, ever offering its gentle suggestion by constant appearance in the "water hole." But a "prophet is not without honor save in his own country." The little "water hole" was abandoned and has never been drilled to this day of mad excitement over the oil in Texas. It is still a "jimmied" well. Waggoner tells in his quaint simplicity the story of the well.

"Oil in them days sold for 'four bits' a barrel, and nobody wanted it at that. But when I left Electra in 1905 and come to Fort Worth, somebody was cute enough to 'jimmy' that well. Do you know, I sure didn't know what in thunder they was doin', throwin' old socks and shirts and shoes and pants in that hole and jammin' 'em down with scantlin'. But I reckon now they thought I wouldn't never develop that oil. And they was about right at that time. I guess there was somethin' missin' up here," he concluded, rubbing his forehead from temple to temple.

"Ole Tom" had rather talk about the "cow punchin'" days than the present days, when, he says, "It's easier to buy a man than hire one now. It's an awful time to live, an awful time."

Suddenly he chuckled again. "You didn't think I was old enough to tell about the cow punchin' days, did you? Why, I've worked with cows 'bout a hundred years. What's that? Do I believe in reincarnation? Nope, I don't." He chuckled again, turned his cigar over and over between his teeth and began.

"'Way back in—let me see." He counted on his fingers, "One, two, three," back to 1861. "Yes, that's the year I started out on Hunt Creek on that west fork of the Trinity River, 16 miles west of Decatur and four miles from Bridgeport.

"But wait, I can remember farther back 'an that. When I wasn't but 8 years old the Indians used to come up to the house and scare the life out of us. My father has fought 'em many a time. One night when I was only 8 years old, my mother and me was all by ourselves. Pretty soon we heard the Indians coming. We got the only gun in the house. And I believe if the Indians had come up to the house I would have shot them."

His eyes twinkled and the color mounted to his face as he progressed with his story. Then his eyes dropped and he talked in that soft conversational tone that so seldom creeps into his talk: "Next mornin' we found our dog out by the gate, dead, with an arrow right through his back. And over by the big gate was the remains of the old fat mare the Indians had killed and eaten and left only the carcass. And I cried, you bet."

This lad of 8 was destined to see more grewsome things. His father, Dan Waggoner, Texas pioneer ranchman, belonged to the frontier militia and was away from home most of the time. He darted in occasionally and got a fresh horse to go back on guard again. This left young Tom alone with his mother.

In 1869 the Waggoners drove their first herd into the Little Wichita country and kept it through the winter. In the spring Tom and "some of the other boys" drove the herd to Kansas City and came home with $55,000. This was the first money they had had of any consequence since the close of the Civil War. They bought steers with it at $8 and $13.50 a head and sold them the following spring for $30 a head.

"And then I did have some money," he said, with more pride than he ever evinced when talking about his ever-towering millions made in oil.

Oklahoma and Indian Territory began to lure the wandering cowman and he herded all his cattle and drove them into the Kiowa, Comanche, Apache country. Against strenuous odds, he fought to remain on a claim comprising 650,000 acres.

"We didn't have no right to that land; we was just intruders," he said, after a pause in his narrative. "It belonged to the Indians and the Government finally opened it up for actual settlement and we had to skidoo back across the Red River into Texas. But them was hot days when we held that land. It cost us a lot of grub to hold that land. The Indian agency made us fence every foot of it. We gave the Indians beef and stood in with the Marshals by giving them beef, tobacco and whisky and playing poker with them. There was always a white Marshal for every branch of Indians."

Eventually the Texas intruders leased the land from the Indians. Their greatest trouble was with the Kiowas, who fought to the bitter end against leasing land to the "palefaces." The white men held councils with the Indians and numerous were the powwows held over the proposed lease. When it was finally agreed to, the Indians demanded currency, gold and silver in payment.

"Me and Capt. S. B. Burnett usually took the money up to the agency, where we turned it over to Chief Quanah Parker. It was always necessary to take along four or five cowboys to look at all the creek crossings to make sure there was nobody there to waylay us. We traveled in horse wagons and ox wagons all the time. We didn't know there was such a thing as an auto in those days."

Waggoner purchased much of his early Texas land at $1.50 and $3.50 an acre, continuing to add to his acreage until he had 600,000 acres. In 1900 he gave each of his three children a ranch of about 90,000 acres. He doesn't remember exactly how much land he gave each one.

The old cattle king likes to recount the hunts of the early days.

"One of the best times I ever had was on Capt. Burnett's ranch in 1906, when Teddy Roosevelt visited there for five days. He was one of the biggest, finest men in the world. He was a good sport, I tell you. For five days we had the time of our lives chasing wolves with Teddy. We caught 17 during that time and Teddy was present when the dogs caught 11 of them."

In 1905 Waggoner came to Fort Worth, Tex., where he still makes his home. He bought the Hunter Phelan Bank, which later became the First National Bank and Trust Co. He has large real estate holdings in Fort Worth and is actively interested in and instrumental in the rapid growth of Fort Worth.

As to strangers, he is most timid; no other word will describe him. He is reticent about his personal affairs and has consistently refused to see newspaper reporters. An incident that occurred in "his" town, Electra, will serve better than anything else to picture the real Tom Waggoner. He donated some land for the school that was to be built. He gave strict orders that his name was not to be in any way mentioned in connection with the gift. When the building was completed and Waggoner went out to see it, he found that the corner stone bore his name. Those who tell the story assert "Old Tom didn't say a word." A few months later, Bob Moore, manager of the Waggoner interests, had a deed ready for Waggoner to sign.

"The school needs some more land, so I have had this deed prepared and it's ready for you to sign," Moore announced, as if everything were settled.

"The h—— you have," replied the rich land owner, who shies clear of notoriety. "You might as well tear it up. Not another acre do they get. I told 'em how to act about that other, and now they can whistle.

The multi-millionaire ranchman doesn't "play society."

A bit of fun on one of the Waggoner ranches when Roosevelt was a visitor.

When Havana Goes to the Opera

Number three of the Post-Dispatch Magazine's special series of articles on winter life and sports in the gay Cuban Capital

From a club box.

By KARL K. KITCHEN.

NEVER judge anything by its exterior. This not only applies to oysters and Brazil nuts, but to opera houses—and especially to the principal "opry house" of Havana.

From the outside the Gran Teatro Nacional, as it is called, is a most ornate and imposing looking structure. From the inside—well, its interior is about as artistic and decorative as the exterior of our Metropolitan Opera House in New York. And in writing this I want to apologize to the factory-like structure at Broadway and Fortieth street, where the most expensive noise in the world is made.

It cost me $10 to acquaint myself with these facts. For orchestra seats at the Gran Teatro Nacional during the winter season of grand opera are "10 bones" each. Music lovers who think that $7 plus the war tax is excessive for an evening at the "Met" should pursue their favorite muse in the Cuban capital. It would reconcile them to many things.

Dowagers are the same the world over.

But as this is a story about a gala night at opera in Havana, let me start at the beginning of the evening—at the dinner at the Restaurant Paris in "the O'Reilly," as the narrow thoroughfare in which it is located is called. The Paris is probably the best restaurant in Havana. Certainly it is the smartest, and if you had one or two of its special absinthe cocktails, followed by a shrimp cocktail, a filet of redsnapper meunier and cheese of fine texture, with grated cocoanut and topped off with a demi tasse of Cuban coffee, green Chartreuse and a 10-inch cigar of the finest tobacco on the island you would probably feel as I did when my companion reminded me that it was time to start for the opera.

"Lead me to it," I said. "I'm ready for anything." So, suiting the action to the word, we jumped into an ever-waiting car—flivvers have entirely replaced horse cabs in Havana—and taxied to the Gran Teatro Nacional.

The great, white stone structure made a beautiful picture in the moonlight as we drove across the Central Park, which it faces at its eastern end. And as traffic ahead of us was blocked with limousines with silk-hatted and coiffured heads in my line of vision, I straightened my tie with anticipation.

President Menocal.

After some slight delay we arrived at the entrance and presented our tickets, which I had purchased earlier in the day. I was somewhat surprised that the lobby was being used as a permanent show room for automobiles and talking machines—that is, until I saw the auditorium.

I don't want to exaggerate, but the interior of the old Academy of Music in Fourteenth street, New York, before it was remodeled for a picture house, was a gilded palace compared with the interior of the Gran Teatro Nacional. The builders evidently spent all the money on the exterior, leaving the white walls and cement floor of the auditorium absolutely bare.

This bareness was further accentuated by absence of an audience of any appreciable size, despite the fact that it was after 8:45, the hour announced for the performance of "La Fanciulla del West." However, it was only a short time after the rise of the curtain that the house began to fill up and by the end of the first act not only was every orchestra seat occupied, but every box was filled to overflowing.

The Gran Teatro Nacional boasts of three tiers of boxes and when they are filled with the wealth and fashion of Havana, as they were the night in question, they transform the barn-like auditorium into something like a theater.

Opera going is one of the greatest, if not the supreme, social event in the Cuban capital. The smart set turns out in force and a visit to the Gran Teatro Nacional is a function. The audiences are as well dressed as anywhere in the world. In fact, smart women of Havana dress for the opera even more elaborately, if more colorfully, than the feminine occupants of our Diamond Horseshoe at the Metropolitan. Some of them believe that an evening toilet should be heard as well as seen. But no one minds that, for the white-walled auditorium can stand a lot of color.

Naturally, there is a great demand for seats when a bill of more than ordinary importance is announced. Orchestra seats have frequently brought $50 and even $100 on special occasions, with the prices of boxes in proportion. The opera and the races are the only public gatherings to which the smart set of the Cuban capital regularly take their womenfolk. And as may be imagined, the womenfolk insist upon attending the opera as often as possible.

When it is remembered that Havana has less than 600,000 inhabitants, the wealth of beauty and the display of jewels which one sees at the opera is really remarkable. Cuban women of the better class, especially the young ones, are often decidedly handsome. Contrary to the popular impression, their skin is very fair and many of them are blondes. The young men of Havana are noted for their good looks and in evening dress many of them lose their somewhat obese lines. The Gran Teatro Nacional isn't Covent Garden and it is manifestly unfair to compare an opera crowd in Havana with a similar assemblage in New York. But a subscription night at the Nacional reveals the upper crust of the Cuban capital at its best and presents a brilliant and colorful picture.

Unfortunately, not as much can be said about the performances of the Italian opera company, which is under the direction of Adolfo Bracale. The opera I heard, "La Fanciulla del West," was given with its three greatest stars—Hipolito Lazaro, Carmen Melis and Giuseppe Danise. But it could only be described as "not bad, not good."

It must be admitted that Lazaro, who is perhaps the greatest Spanish tenor of the day, sings acceptably and that Senora Melis is the idol of the Havana opera public. Director Bracale had announced Emmy Dustinn, or Destinova, as she now calls herself, as one of the stars of his winter season, but for some unknown reason she did not arrive. So Lazaro, Melis and Danise have to carry the burden of the performances.

At the end of the first act of "La Fanciulla del West" the occupants of the third tier of boxes, which are the private boxes of the various fashionable clubs of the capital, withdrew from the rail and joined the throng which filled the foyer and a courtyard at one side of the auditorium. The presence of a bar—as I discovered later—accounted for the crush in the courtyard. And from much of the conversation I overheard I am justified in saying that many of the male opera goers enjoyed the intermission quite as much as Lazaro's liquid tenor notes.

A member of the Gallego Club, which has rooms in the opera house, invited us there to see its great ballroom, in which 5000 people can dance at the same time. But it should be explained that in Cuba the dancers remain on the same spot through a dance. Five thousand foxtrotters in this ballroom would necessitate the calling out of the police reserves and a complaint to the Board of Health.

A Cuban beauty.

The Gallego Club, to which all Cubans whose families come from the Spanish province of that name are eligible for membership, also has a bar. I don't know how many bars there are in the opera house building—I only found three.

A warning bell sent us back to our seats and we were repaid in returning by the arrival of President and Mrs. Menocal, who took their places in what would correspond to a stage box in our theaters at the rise of the curtain.

Youthful beauty.

There was no stir over their arrival, despite the fact that they were accompanied by the Minister of War and two or three other high Government officials. I was informed that it was quite the usual thing for the President to drop in at the opera, as his wife was very fond of music, and that there was no occasion to get excited. Accordingly we restrained our emotions.

During the second intermission, in which we were almost killed in the rush to one of the bars, we learned that the next D. K. E. fraternity convention would be held in Havana, and that President Menocal has arranged to send the Cuban navy to New York to bring the delegates to Cuba—the navy consisting of one gunboat. Havana is an ideal spot for a fraternity reunion and if you are a "Dke" I'd advise you to write to the Minister of Marine and reserve sleeping space on the ship.

The third act of "La Fanciulla del West" was like the second one, only more so. It was productive of a lot of applause and Senora Melis was bombarded with bouquets. As the tiers of stage boxes are within the prosceuium arch, as in many continental theaters, it was not difficult for their occupants to score hits with the flowers. There was a great deal of bowing and all that sort of thing, and when the final curtain fell it was after midnight.

An American visitor.

Cuban society does not dine out before attending the opera, but it is the fashion for gay parties to gather around the tables at the Hotel Inglaterro, which is located next door to the Nacional, and partake of ices and cooling drinks. After-theater suppers, as we used to know them in the gone-but-not-forgotten-days, do not obtain in the Cuban capital. Ices have the call, so to speak, and as their variety is infinite the fair sex is in its seventh heaven. What surprised me at the Inglaterra was the number of

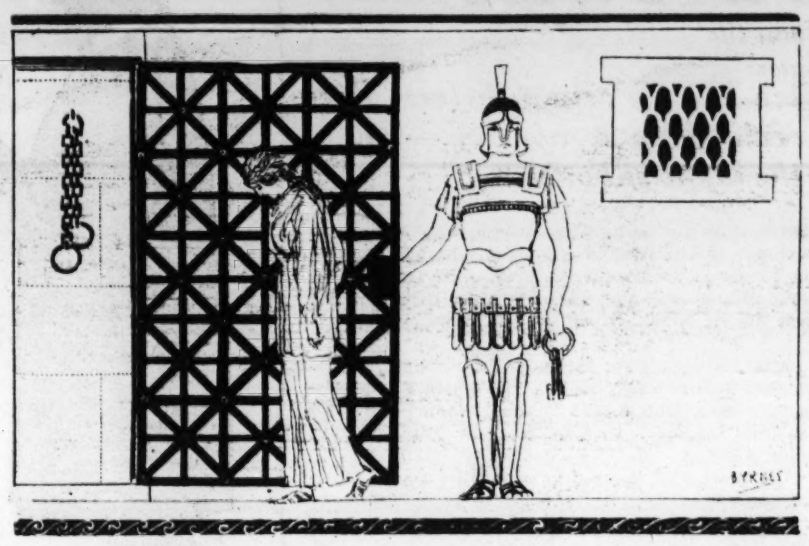
Spartan Father Helps Send Daughter to Prison for Murder of Her Husband

"The guilty must suffer," says aged Illinois farmer, who appeared in the tragedy as the avenger of his son-in-law — Lawrence Clugston was given ground glass and arsenic while being nursed by Mrs. Clugston and Dr. Alverson, her clandestine lover



THE Clugston case is ended. The prisoners have been taken away to the Illinois Penitentiary, and the chief characters in the story who remain at liberty are 16-year-old George Clugston, whom black tragedy has made an orphan, and the aged S. J. Bagley, broken by the grief of having to send his daughter to prison.

Romance that budded when Lawrence Clugston, a "bound boy," carried the school books of Alice Bagley, a prosperous farmer's daughter, along the roads of McDonough County, blossomed 20 years ago, but instead of mellowing with the years, has suddenly been reduced to bitter ashes by the hot, blasting atmosphere of passion and murder.

When Lawrence's parents died, more than 30 years ago, he was taken into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Miller, on a farm near Macomb, Ill., and by them was reared. A docile, easy-tempered boy, he grew to be much liked by everybody in that section, and particularly by Alice Bagley, whose own comparatively high standing never for an instant made her conceal her affection for the bound boy, who was a few months her senior. High-spirited and gifted with a quick and sharp tongue, she effectively forestalled any comment that might have been made upon the difference in her station and that of her sweetheart. Nobody cared to provoke a shake of her black curls and an angry flash of her brown eyes.

As for Larry Clugston, he was devoted as a lamb. It was common knowledge that "he worshiped the ground Alice Bagley walked on," an attachment which was more than heightened by his conviction that she was far too good for him.

S. J. Bagley, her father, was a stern man, but a just one. While he ruled his own family, he was no despot, and, moreover, he was a true democrat. Larry Clugston might be a bound boy but he was industrious, honest, and known throughout the section for his agreeable manner and modesty. Therefore, said Bagley, if his daughter, Alice, wanted Larry, and Larry wanted her, it was all right with the father And so, just a little more than 20 years ago, they were married, each being 20 years old.

The happy bridegroom rented a farm and worked hard. In four years a son came, and was named George. Life on the farm is harder for the farmer than anybody, with the possible exception of the farmer's wife, and it was rumored at times that Alice Bagley Clugston wearied of it, and longed for clothes to decorate her tall, handsome figure, and for hours of pleasure away from the cares of kitchen and farm. If this was true, she never confirmed it. She held her head as proudly as before.

If crops were bad and times hard, it did not dampen Lawrence Clugston's dog-like devotion to his wife and son. For that matter, he had never known anything but poverty, and hard work was no new or tiring experience for him. He kept "hitting the grit."

Lawrence Clugston and Mrs. Alice Clugston, convicted of poisoning him, as they appeared 10 years ago.

In this fashion things moved on until 1916. Bagley retired and moved into town. George grew into a tall, frail lad, with the sensitiveness of his mother and the shyness of his father. Mrs. Alice Clugston became more gaunt and more silent.

Then Dr. George Alverson came to town. He was slightly over five feet tall and slightly over 60 years old. His manner was the stiffly formal one assumed by the physician of two generations ago. He spoke deliberately—some said pompously—and stroked the drooping ends of his mustache importantly when he prepared to deliver an opinion. His wife was a small, meek woman, in frail health.

Few would have found anything in common between fiery, headstrong Alice Clugston and the little doctor, with his mannerisms, 20 years her senior. And still fewer would have said that in their meeting, at the home of James Morehouse, a neighboring farmer, the scene was being laid for a somber tragedy, although Morehouse did say later that "they kinder seemed to make eyes at each other from the first."

However, Mrs. Clugston almost immediately developed "heart trouble," and frequently called Dr. Alverson to attend her. Very soon afterward, Mrs. Alverson died, and Dr. Alverson was immediately invited to make his home with Clugstons. Lawrence Clugston gladly assented to this plan, because he was anxious about his wife's health, and was only too glad for her to have expert attention so constantly at hand. Mrs. Clugston went to the Alverson home and helped the doctor pack up and move.

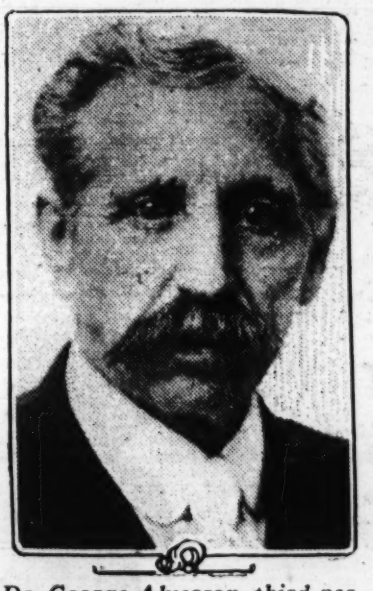
For some reason Lawrence Clugston decided soon thereafter to give up farming, and the family, now including the doctor, moved to Prairie City, a village a few miles distant, where Clugston got work. His wife had begun to take a new interest in life. Dr. Alverson bought an automobile, and Mrs. Clugston frequently accompanied him on calls. Sometimes all four went riding, Lawrence Clugston and his son occupying the rear seat. In a few months Lawrence went to another town to work, a plan which met with no opposition from his wife. Just previously, the family had again moved, this time to Bushnell, another small town in the county.

An office was opened by Dr. Alverson in Sciota, a neighboring village, and he began boarding there. Mrs. Clugston, however, called him on the telephone "almost every day," an operator later divulged, and the doctor made frequent trips to Bushnell in his machine.

This did not go unnoticed by neighbors, and word of it was conveyed to the Bagleys, who lived in Macomb, the county seat. Members of the family protested to her of these goings on, whereupon, with characteristic emphasis, she told them to mind their own business. Lawrence Clugston came back home in the spring of last year, and Lutellus Bagley, a brother of Mrs. Clugston, just home from France, went to Lawrence and warned him to get his wife away from the physician. The husband poohed the suggestion, but said he was thinking that maybe a change of scene would do them all good.

On June 26 he became ill. Dr. Alverson was called. He prescribed, and Mrs. Clugston administered medicine. The patient grew worse. The doctor called it typhoid. On the morning of July 1 gentle Lawrence Clugston died. A few hours previously Dr. Alverson had called in another physician, who confirmed the symptoms as those of typhoid. Arrangements for the funeral proceeded.

But a neighbor was not satisfied. He went to Macomb and talked to Bagley. The latter grimly called upon the Coroner and asked him to stop the funeral, which was to be held that day. It was done. The body was taken to an undertaking establishment, and an autopsy was performed. It disclosed 14 pieces of glass in the stomach. The Coroner ordered Dr. Alverson and Mrs. Clugston to remain under surveillance. The doctor laughed and Mrs. Clugston told her father bitterly that he would regret this "spite work." Bagley turned on Dr. Alverson and cursed him.



Dr. George Alverson, third person in "triangle."

"You destroyed my daughter's home and killed my son-in-law. You're a villain unhung," he said, and strode from the house.

But a further examination revealed that the glass had not caused death. It had caused the symptoms resembling typhoid, however, and an expert from the Chicago Coroner's office was called in. His analysis required a week. At the end of that time he reported that he had found more than five grains of arsenic in the viscera, and that it had caused death.

State's Attorney Hainline acted quickly. Dr. Alverson and Mrs. Clugston were placed in the county jail.

"Who gave Lawrence Clugston that arsenic?" demanded the Sheriff of Dr. Alverson.

"Ask Mrs. Clugston," was the sullen reply.

It was quickly repeated to her. She paled when told what the doctor had said.

"Did he say that?" she asked huskily. "Then I have nothing to say, except that I am innocent," she declared, and closed her lips.

The grand jury met, and Hainline conferred with Bagley. The aged father had grown a little grayer and a little grimmer.

"I never suspected my daughter had anything to do with it," he said; and then he added solemnly: "Larry Clugston was murdered; let the guilty be punished," and he went before the grand jury.

Mrs. Clugston sickened in the jail, and was allowed the freedom of the corridors, one of which led past Dr. Alverson's cell. Two months later, hidden in a pasteboard box in her cell were found more than 40 notes, written by Dr. Alverson and slipped to her through his cell door. They abounded in indisputable proof of their guilty intimacy. The injunction, "read and burn," with which each note closed, had not been regarded. The woman had hoarded her love letters and the secret was out.

But the State's Attorney found her still defiant.

"All right, I do love him. I am guilty of that, but I didn't murder Larry Clugston," she said. "You can't prove that. I am guilty of unfaithfulness, but not of murder."

An indictment charging both her and the doctor

Getting a Hat to Please a Husband

By Helen Rowland.

If it's big it's a tent.

"EVERY spring," remarked the Widow thoughtfully, as the maid entered with a brilliant, flowered box, and set it before her, "I'm glad that I never married again!"

"Of course!" agreed the Bachelor. "And most autumns and winters and summers! But why spring—especially?"

"Because," explained the Widow, toying tentatively with the gay little string that fastened the fancy box, "spring is the painful season, when every married woman has to brace herself to endure the jibes, anathemas and contumely of the man who promised to love, honor and flatter her! The feminine spring hat is the cause of more broken hearts, broken homes and shattered vanity than any other one thing!"

"And of more broken pocketbooks, broken fortunes and shattered illusions!" rejoined the Bachelor, bromidically.

"And of more flirtations and engagements and weddings!" appended the Widow. "Before marriage, it is the most potent factor in catching a husband—and after marriage, the most potent factor in—in"——

"Un-catching him!" put in the Bachelor helpfully.

"The sight of a young girl's flower-like face under a flowery spring hat is utterly irresistible to the average man," continued the Widow, but the sight of the same kind of hat over the same face, after marriage, or even after they become engaged, seems to affect him as the sight of a silk hat affects a small boy with a snowball. It arouses all his latent battling instinct. It is simply impossible for any woman to get a new hat to please the man who loves her!"

"But," protested the Bachelor, "the things which a woman calls a 'hat' are so funny—so grotesque and outlandish and eye-straining!"

"Not a bit funner or more outlandish and eye-straining than the things which a man calls a 'hat'!" retorted the Widow, with a scornful shrug and a snap of her fingers. "His opera hat, his 'bowler,' his Panama, his dinky little plush fedora! If any woman wore such unhuman disfigurements"——

"Let me see what's in the pretty box!" broke in the Bachelor diplomatically, assuming an expression of violent interest.

"I'm afraid to!" confessed the Widow, untying the string, lifting the cover and gazing with ecstatic rapture at the soft mountain of violet tissue wrappings. "I know just what you'll say! At least, I know just what you WOULD say—if you dared!"

"But—I won't—dare!" argued the Bachelor, with perfect reason.

"No—you'll only THINK it," the Widow answered. "But a woman once sued for a divorce on the plea that her husband had never beaten her or called her names, but that he had 'WANTED to' lots and lots of times. It's the same thing to a woman. I'll see it in your eye!"

"I'll shut my eyes," pleaded the Bachelor. "And I won't beat you or call you names—not even after we are—not even for love's sake!"

"Perhaps," sighed the Widow doubtfully. "But the very BEST that a woman can get out of the average husband, when she tries to dazzle him with her new hat is a fleeting glance, a groan, a snort of derision, or a scintillating remark. It's SO heartbreaking—and so crushing to her vanity! And, even if he doesn't call her names, the names he calls that hat would fill a slang dictionary. If it's tiny and chic, it's a 'bad joke,' or a 'pretzel,' or a 'bird's breakfast;' if it's big it's a 'tent,' or a 'merry-go-round;' if it's plain and sedate, she looks like a 'pallbearer;' if it's bright and gay and flowery she looks like 'the back row of the Winter Garden.' If it's expensive, she's 'ruining him,' and if it's cheap, he 'won't be seen on the street with her in it!' And, all the time, the only thing that's the matter with it is that it's NEW—strange—unfamiliar! And the more he loves her, the worse he usually hates her hats"

"Then," suggested the Bachelor, waving his cigarette toward the flowered box, "why don't you take it out and find out just how much I love"——

"And the astonishing thing about it," the Widow hurried on, "is that she can take the very same hat out of the closet the very next year, and his face will light up with pleasure at sight of it, and he will exclaim, 'Now, THERE'S a good-looking hat! Why can't you always wear one like that? It's a corker!' His eye has become accustomed to it! Time and familiarity have mellowed, hallowed, softened, glorified it. It is like his old slippers that he won't let anybody throw away. It is one of his habits of thought. But a brand-new hat is an alien. If we left it to them, there would be no progress at all."

"Progress!" scoffed the Bachelor. "Do you think changing the styles of your hats back and forth every six weeks is 'progress'?"

"Hats," declared the Widow impressively, "are a woman's passion! They are the expression of her artistic soul—a sign of civilization"——

"Like feathers in a savage's head, or an Indian's bonnet!" jeered the Bachelor. "Decorating the head is a primitive custom that appeals to the aboriginal in every woman. Men have outgrown it!"

"Men," remarked the Widow sweetly, as she leaned over the hatbox and lifted the alluring little 'creation' from its enveloping tissue, "have discarded every form of personal decoration. They don't think they require it. To beautify themselves would be 'gilding the lily'!" and she stuck the hat on top of her bright curls and turned to the Bachelor for approval.

"Wonderful!" he exclaimed, squinting at it with a professional eye.

"Marvelous! Delicious! Stunning!"

The Widow looked disappointed.

"Oh!" she pouted ruefully. "And I thought you really CARED for me!"

"I do!" protested the Bachelor, choking back a laugh. "But I ADORE that vineyard on top of it! What is it—a protest against prohibition or a monument to John Barleycorn?"

"Go on!" said the Widow, taking off the hat and smoothing the purple grapes tenderly. "Call it names! I knew you really wouldn't like it."

"No man can possibly love a woman and her hats at the same time!" gallantly ventured the Bachelor.

"No," sighed the Widow, as she folded the little "spring vision" away in its wrapping with loving solicitude, "I suppose it's always a case of 'Love me, hate my hats!'"

WIDOW-CISMS.

What keeps a woman wondering is whom her husband would have married, if she had married the other chap.

When a man sighs that "nobody understands him," don't imagine that he is suffering. He is merely trying to let you know, in a modest way, that he is a profound, fascinating mystery.

A clever man may try to escape love—but a wise one knows that what he fancies is "escape" is merely a temporary respite, until some woman makes up her mind to stop playing and settle him.

A husband is a necessity, a luxury, a blessing, an opportunity, a reward or a dispensation—just according to the way in which you look at him.

There are two kinds of men—those with a sense of humor and those who laugh at motion picture comedies.

with murder was voted. The somber figure of Bagley moved in the scene like an avenging spirit.

"I can't believe Alice did it," he said. "It is the work of that hellhound, but," he added with the voice of doom, "murder was done; let the guilty suffer.

The net closed tightly around the lovers. Dr. Alverson denied that he ever possessed arsenic. A raid on his office at Sciota disclosed a large quantity of it. It was whispered that George Clugston, the pathetic, childish figure in the drama, had said that he "knew enough to send old Dr. Alverson to the penitentiary for killing my father."

Kindly questioning disclosed that more than two years previously, only a few months after Dr. Alverson had met the Clugstons at Morehouse's, the boy, coming home unexpectedly, and leaving his muddy shoes on the porch, had surprised his mother and Dr. Alverson. He cried and swore at the doctor. He said he would tell his father.

"If you ever breathe a word, I'll leave and never come back and you won't have any mamma," Mrs. Clugston told him, and the fear silenced the child. Two years later, however, he gained confidence and confided the secret to his father. The latter told the boy he had been mistaken. "You only thought you saw it. You must never mention it again," he enjoined the boy.

But the prison notes did more than confirm this. Besides the protestations of undying love and plans to marry, there occurred such passages as "I never would blame you to clear myself, so don't let any talk like that bother you. He died of typhoid fever—no one could make me say anything else." And again: "Do you think I think it is your fault that we are here? No, dear; I never thought such a thing."

The disclosure of Mrs. Clugston's shame struck her aged father with sickening force. He pressed the prosecution with less vigor, but it had now acquired such momentum that his aid was not necessary, and he still said, though wearily, that "the guilty must be punished."

The trial lasted less than two weeks. The defense wavered between attempts to show that Lawrence Clugston had died of typhoid, that he had committed suicide and that he had died of a mysterious malady. The jury took one ballot. It was unanimously for conviction of Dr. Alverson and unanimous that his punishment should be life imprisonment. Eleven jurors voted guilty on Mrs. Clugston. The twelfth held out for acquittal for an hour and a half, then went over. Her punishment was fixed at 14 years in prison.

Mrs. Clugston heard the verdict and turned a bitter smile on her father, who sat with bowed head. Dr. Alverson seemed stunned. The pair were taken back to jail to await the argument for a new trial—a motion almost admittedly hopeless.

Mrs. Clugston sent for the Sheriff.

"What are you going to do with my boy?" she

Ten specimens of an art which had its origin fifteen decades ago and now is revived as a novelty — Curious origin of the name silhouette

"SNIP" portraits, which are nothing more than the silhouettes which were popular a century ago, have been enjoying a vogue in the East in recent months, and on this page are shown "snips" of some St. Louisans prominent in social and civic affairs.

Like many other fads and fashions of a bygone age, silhouettes are being revived under a new name. They are clipped out of black paper with scissors, which explains the name "snips."

While they are hardly likely to attain a high place in the artistic sphere, nevertheless some "snippers" have attained a proficiency and accuracy in this line which approaches art. One of the best known of these is Jim Pleasants, who makes "snips" of all comers on the board walk at Atlantic City, and he has been engaged to practice his profession at the board walk show which opens at the Coliseum April 5.

The procedure is to pose the subject before the easel, and make a quick profile sketch, then deftly to clip out the sketch, paste it on a card and pass it over to the subject. It requires only a few minutes.

Results obtained by some of the "snippers" are strikingly effective, as may be judged by the samples of Pleasants' work, shown on this page. The reason for this, artists explain, is that the sketches concentrate the attention of the observer upon the profile, which is the most distinctive line of any figure.

Silhouette portraits were brought into vogue in Europe, and later in this country, by a French artist, in the early part of the last century, and were a favorite ornament on the walls of our great-great-grandparents' homes.

The name silhouette itself acquired its present meaning by one of those peculiar twists that time gives, and, inquiry shows, is far less apt in its origin than the new one of "snips." Etienne de Silhouette was Minister of Finance of France in 1759. Because of the bankrupt state of the treasury, he permitted only skeleton appropriations to be made. This policy was so closely identified with his name that anything only an outline of the real thing became known as "de Silhouette."

THE SEVENTH DAY

By FANNIE HURST

The Seventh Day (Continued)

"I will station a page here to await your maid."

She placed a quick, detaining hand on his sleeve.

"No, no; she will wait."

"As you will, dear lady," he acquiesced, guiding her through the parlors with a quiet ease and dignity.

As they passed through the crowded lobby, she ventured an explanatory remark.

"I almost feel that I am disregarding no convention in dining with you, Mr. Livingston. The wonder of it is that we have not met."

"Life is full of ironies," sighed Mr. Livingston.

They dined beside a splashing fountain with a bank of fern and carnation between them.

"You have redeemed a hopeless, dreary day for a dreary old bachelor."

She smiled at him through a fret-work of fern.

"And you have tempted my adventurous nature to a shocking indiscretion."

"I wish that I might tempt you to reveal your name."

She shook her head prettily.

"That would take all the adventure out of the situation."

"I am bound to discover it sooner or later, and besides," he added seriously, "I want this to be more than an adventure; I want it to be a beginning."

"Oh," she said, archly, "not the beginning of the end?"

"You know better than that," he admonished.

They laughed, and he leaned across the table, holding a crystal goblet aloft.

"To the beginning!"

"To drink in water is an evil sign," she observed, but raised the glass to her lips, and the ice tinkled against its frail sides.

"We will probably meet some day," she said.

"How?"

"Oh, it may be on the high seas, at the opera or in the drawing room."

"But now that I have found you, why begin the search anew?" he urged.

"The Prince must rescue the maiden from the tower."

"Ah, I see!" he exclaimed, in mock enlightenment. "You want to meet me on a prancing steed instead of in the satin parlor of a Broadway hotel."

She could also picture this tired-eyed man strolling the white and brass deck of a yacht.

"Yes, and you must have jangling spurs and a shiny helmet."

He took a long-stemmed carnation from the bank between them.

"At least wear your knight's colors."

She in turn snapped the stem of a flagrant red carnation near its head, and presented it to him with silent grandiloquence.

"And you the lady's," she whispered.

They looked into each other's eyes.

"I am beginning to fear that I am encroaching upon your evening," she said, after they had finished with the salad course.

"If releasing me from a stupid soiree and an hour of cards at the club can possibly mean encroachment, you are offering a delightful substitute; this is a happy respite."

"Yes, but I cannot permit you to sacrifice your social obligations in my behalf. I, too, am obliged to obey the dictates of my engagement calendar."

"Let us ignore these dictates together."

She finished her demi-tasse.

"You tempt me," she said, "but I have already been sufficiently indiscreet."

"I dared not hope that you would heed me," he said.

She watched him blow thoughtful wreaths of cigarette smoke, and leaned back in her chair contentedly.

"Is it possible," he asked her slowly, "that I could have met you at one of Lady Stanhope's house parties last autumn? I think I am beginning to place you."

"No. I was in Italy last autumn, but I have heard Lady Aubrey mention Lady Stanhope's house parties."

She stirred uneasily and looked toward her wraps.

"It grows late," she remarked.

They passed out through the crowded lobby. At the entrance to the little parlor, she gave him her hand.

"Good-by, and thank you for a pleasant hour."

His eyes read into hers with well-bred insistence.

"Isn't it to be au revoir?"

"I'm afraid not," she answered, with a low note in her voice. "At least not until the knight finds the tower."

"At any rate, you have made me very happy, even if I found you only to lose you." He pressed her hand, and she slipped in between the heavy curtains.

It was 9 o'clock when Minnie Stradolis climbed up to her hall bedroom; there were two pink spots on her cheeks, and her throat was throbbing delicately like a dove's. With nervous care she replaced the hat in its box and the tan suit on its wire hanger, then she filled the egg cup with water for the long-stemmed carnation and placed the cup on the iron landing outside her window. She propped the stem against the stewpan, and mothered and caressed the fragrant head.

The sash of the adjoining room opened and a new patch of light fell across the fire escape. A man with hair gray at the temples placed a short-stemmed carnation on his window sill. In the square of light she saw that on his right hand he wore a cheap ring with a crest engraved upon it, and her discerning eye also noted that his shirt studs appeared to be gold.

Plague of Locusts Which Swept Over Palestine in the War

brushing the locusts down from the walls on the three sides attacked.

The whole city of Jerusalem, with the exception of the portion within the walls, fell a prey to the ravages of the locusts, while the entire land "from Dan to Beersheba" was laid desolate.

Disastrous as they were in the country, equally obnoxious they became about the houses, crawling up thick upon the walls, and, squeezing in through the cracks of closed doors or windows, entering the very dwelling rooms. Women frantically swept the walls and roofs, but to no avail. In Nazareth it required several hundred men to sweep together and destroy the locusts, and eight donkeys to carry away to nearby fields the miniature carcases. Stores were closed, and some houses even abandoned. About our houses in Jerusalem they became so thick that one could not help crushing them with every step. They even fell into one's shirt collar from the walls above, and crawled up on one's person. Whenever touched, or especially when finding themselves caught within one's clothes, they exuded from their mouths a dark fluid, an irritant to the skin and soiling the garments in a most disgusting manner.

On May 8 the larvae, already transforming themselves into the pupa stage, reached the quiet of Gethsemane, then in its full summer bloom, but scarcely a day passed before every tender thing was consumed, and even the leaves of the woody cypress and of the olive trees—the latter about 1000 years old—were threatened. Fortunately, by the time the young broods had hatched, a large part of the grain crops had already been gathered, but the fruit and summer crops were ruined. . . . When once the locusts entered a vineyard the sprawling vines would in the shortest time be nothing but bare bark. Fig leaves perhaps of all things best suited their taste, and when once a tree fell a prey to them the ground would be literally layers deep, and the trunk so covered with crawlers as to make it a bright yellow color.

In the early days of June a few scattered locusts of a decided red color were seen about the tree tops. Some supposed them to be a kind of grasshopper, for they were so different in color from the fliers that first came and laid their eggs that it was difficult to detect in them the resemblance to the parents. A few days later the air was filled with quantities of these new flying locusts with the thin transparent wings, producing the effect of a large-flaked snowstorm. It was at first hard to realize that these had not, as most supposed, flown in from elsewhere, but right under our eyes had been transformed from the small creeping locusts, millions of which we had destroyed.

Up to this time the olive orchards had suffered comparatively little. The creeping locusts had not seemed to care for the tough, bitter leaves. But now that these ravenously hungry, freshly-molted fliers appeared, food had already become scarcer, obliging the crawlers to seek the heretofore despised olive, creeping up the trunks layers deep.

Towards evening they settled for the night by myriads upon the olive trees, almost covering them and transforming the dark green foliage into a distinctive red appearance. At once they attacked the small berries, which fell to the ground like hail, and as the fliers wrought destruction above, the crawlers devoured what fell below. Between the two they stripped every leaf, berry, and even the tender bark, leaving only, where such existed, the green tufts of the poisonous mistletoe.

Likewise, every variety of tree was attacked and stripped, with the sole exception of the Persian lilac and the oleander bushes. The succulent cactus they seemed very fond of, but instead of commencing on the edge of the large leaves, they ate away layer after layer over the whole surface, giving the leaves the effect of having been jackplaned. Even on the scarce and prized palms they had no pity.

The devastation was complete. All vegetables and fruits disappeared as by magic. Olives and olive oil were almost unobtainable. Had it not been for the arrival of a shipload of flour and other food commodities from America, the condition of the populace would have been serious.

The locust eggs were found on the banks of the River Jordan, in the salt marshes of the Dead Sea, on the highest mountains, in the valleys, in the beautiful olive groves about Bethlehem, in the orange orchards of Jaffa, and on the sea coast at Tyre, Sidon and Gaza; in fact, they were found in all parts of the country from Dan to Beersheba. Once the alarming extent to which these eggs were laid was realized, the authorities made a proclamation, requiring each male person from 16 years to 60 to gather 11 pounds' weight.

Locusts are not, however, without their own enemies provided by nature. Large flocks of storks flew past Jerusalem during the early days when the adults arrived and after the larvae were hatched, consuming abnormal quantities, for which reason the natives have always given "Abo Saad" a warm welcome.

The male and female locusts are readily distinguished, for the males are by far the handsomer. Each female, loaded with eggs, seeks a place to deposit them, and with her ovipostors can sink a hole four inches deep in the hard, compact soil. The eggs, averaging about 100, are deposited, not haphazard, but neatly arranged in a long, cylindrical mass. It is estimated that as many as 65,000 to 75,000 locust eggs are concentrated in a square meter (three and one-fourth feet) of soil. Allowing for a loss of 30 per cent in hatching, some 60,000 locusts can emerge from a space of 39 inches square.

When first hatched they were quite black and resembled large ants, having no sign of wings; but, as they developed, they cast their little outer skins. Thus they pass through several moults, of which, however, but three stages are plainly distinguishable—the larva, or wingless stage; the pupa, with small wings (or, properly, wing sacks developing), and the full-fledged flying locusts.

Plague of Locusts, Equaling the Biblical Record, Which Swept Over Palestine in the War

Clamor of myriad wings in sky heralded approach of swarms before they could be seen, and darkened light of day — Streets made slippery with pests and Garden of Gethsemane stripped of every leaf — Stirring account written by American Consul there

-o- -o- -o- -o-

LIKE a biblical plague was the terrible visitation of locusts which, during the spring and summer of 1915, ravaged every green thing in Palestine "from Dan to Beersheba," and militated seriously, through the resulting shortage of food and fodder, against Turkish military operations on the Egyptian and Mesopotamian fronts. It will be remembered that during this period the Turks suffered grave reverses at the hands of both the British and the Russians.

A vivid eyewitness description of the plague has now been provided by John D. Whiting, American Consul at Jerusalem. He tells how the clangor of billions of tiny wings descended from the sky before the swarms of locusts came in sight, and how the dense clouds of insects darkened the sun, how the roads were so thronged with locusts that horses could scarcely keep their footing, and how trains were halted for hours. Consul Whiting's fascinating article is given below.

By JOHN D. WHITING,
American Consul at Jerusalem.

"HEAR ye this, ye elders, and give ear, all ye inhabitants of the land—hath this ever happened in your days? Or in the days of your fathers? Concerning it to your children tell ye the story—and your children to their children, and their children to the generation following: That which was left by the creeping locust hath the swarming locust eaten. And that which was left by the swarming locust hath the grass locust eaten. And that which was left by the grass locust hath the corn locust eaten. Awake . . . and weep and howl . . . For a nation hath come up over my land, bold and without number."

Thus the prophet Joel begins his description of a locust plague; and, having witnessed the terrible destruction to crops and fields wrought by these insects in this historic land, one marvels how this ancient writer could have given so graphic and true a description of a devastation caused by locusts in so condensed a form. The modern plague referred to occurred in the spring and summer of 1915, when Palestine was closed to the outside world by the war.

That the locusts helped the allied cause there is no denying. They ravaged the country from the borders of Egypt to the Taurus Mountains, and were a source of anxiety for many months both to the Turkish authorities and the native population. They consumed every green thing, which meant a serious shortage of food and fodder, greatly militating against the movement of the Turkish forces on both the Egyptian and Mesopotamian fronts.

It was towards the end of February that one of our members returned from the picturesque Ain Fara Gorge, a few miles east of Jerusalem, with word that swarms of locusts had flown overhead in such thick clouds as to obscure the sun for the time being. Before they were seen, a loud noise produced by the flapping of myriads of wings was heard.

Immediately afterwards rumors poured in from Es Salt and Bethlehem that similar swarms had also visited them.

At Bethlehem, millions were brought to the earth by heavy showers. They were gathered by the poorer Bethlehemites, many of whom ate them roasted, describing the taste as delicious, especially the females full of eggs. The main reason, however, for collecting them was to secure the small bonus offered by the local Government. Thus tons were destroyed, being buried alive till several ancient cisterns were filled, while in surrounding villages each family was required to produce a stipulated weight. Likewise in Jaffa they were destroyed by being thrown into the Mediterranean, and when washed ashore dead, and dried on the beach, were collected and used as fuel in the public Turkish baths and ovens.

Several days later the locusts were first seen in Jerusalem. Attention was drawn to them by the sudden darkening of the bright sunshine. At times their elevation was in the hundreds of feet; at other times they came down quite low, detached members alighting. The clouds of them were so dense as to appear quite black.

At once these numberless hosts began to prepare for the destruction that was to follow. To be the first to set a good example, the young men of the American colony at once set out upon the work of collecting, for so steeped are the natives in fatalism (Allah had sent the "jarad"—locusts—and they are helpless to fight them), that, unless forced or shown how, few would turn a finger in self-defense.

A few words of our personal experience in fighting the locusts may not be amiss. At first, having already marched a considerable distance from the place of hatching, they were found in endless columns. It was now easy to entrap them. In their path would be sunk a bottomless box, with the inside lined with shining tin up which the locusts cannot crawl, while on each side a wing was provided, similarly prepared with a smooth metal face, with the object of directing them into the box.

The fighters now make two long lines, one on each side of the trap. To noise and racket the locusts seemed only to turn a deaf ear, but a large flag—the darker the better—with which to cast a deep shadow on the ground, proved to be the most formidable weapon one could employ to make them move in the desired direction. In fact, countless numbers could thus be guided and held in check if one but anticipated the general direction they wished to go. Now and then the trap would have to be emptied, or, if the place was to be abandoned in favor of a better position, it was easy, when the bottomless box was almost full, to raise it out of the ground, leaving the locusts behind in the hole, and then hurriedly to bury the contents.

It was found by actual tests that when thus buried in great masses they quickly died. As the evening advanced they became sluggish and hard to move, and would crawl under individual stones or into small piles of rock; but by the morning again instinct would have rejoined them into bands moving together on their campaign of destruction. Thus it was unnecessary to fight them in the late evening or early morning.

Towards the end of their pupa stage their columns became shorter and less constant, and it was more troublesome to trap them, as they had grown large and wary. Often they would become alarmed and, turning tail, escape in all directions.

One evening while trapping them on the upper side of the hill, it was found just in time than an immense number were about to enter the property being protected from the opposite side. At once all efforts were turned in this direction. The trap was sunk into the lower edge of the field toward which they were making. But no sooner had it been set in place than it was seen that meanwhile they had changed their course, and, notwithstanding the laborious task involved, the trap had to be changed, during which time it was "nip and tuck" to keep them from escaping.

Once, however, they made in the right direction, they jumped, hundreds at a time, into the trap. The evening hours were now upon us; the locusts, weary from being driven and benumbed from the cool breezes, seemed to near the trap exhausted. To facilitate matters, with spade and rake, they were scraped into the trap, now constantly being emptied. Thus in about an hour's time four large sacks full were caught and destroyed, each containing, by actual count and weight, no less than 100,000 of these insects. Many escaped and made for a nearby thorny patch, on which were now piled dry sticks and thistles, which, when set afire, burned alive many thousands more. The above is but an average example, showing how and in what quantities they were caught.

To overcome the difficulty of the labor and time required in shifting the sunken trap, Yankee ingenuity again came to the rescue. An old box, tin-lined, was set on top of the ground with an inclined plane leading up to it. The locusts, which can make ascents so much more easily than descents, were driven into it just as readily as into the sunken trap. It was so quickly and easily filled that it proved to be a great success, the only drawback, as with the older type, being the labor of emptying it and the numbers that unavoidably escaped. The next development was a tin hopper set on legs high enough to admit of fastening a sack below. To this the inclined plane was similarly attached. Thus the locusts jumped directly into the bag, which, when full, was detached and replaced with another. After over two weeks' steady and relentless work, the fight to save the fields was given up, and efforts concentrated upon protecting our homes and garden plots.

None but those who have seen them can imagine their countless multitudes and the destruction they wrought. Hearing one evening that they had already reached the German colony and the railway station to the south of the Holy City, we went out the next day to see them. Scarcely had our carriage swung round from the Jaffa Gate than we found the white road already black with them. Ever in the same direction they pushed up the "Western Hill," still commonly called Zion, even entering the houses about the "Tomb of David."

The roads now became so slippery from the masses of the little greasy bodies crushed beneath the horses' hoofs, that the latter could scarcely keep a footing, and had consequently to be driven slowly and with great care. Trains throughout the country stopped for hours at a time, notably on the Damascus-Haifa line near the Lake of Galilee. Countless numbers of them poured into the broad walled road leading into Jerusalem from the west, past the United States consulate to the Jaffa Gate. At the consulate the fight was taken up to save the garden. It lay in the main path of the locusts. The inclosure, about the size of an ordinary city lot, required five men to keep incessantly

By FANNIE HURST

Minnie worked in the Biggest Store. Six days out of her week she doled out hairpins and thread and wore tissue-paper wristlets.

MINNIE worked in the Biggest Store. Six days out of her week she doled out hairpins and thread and wore tissue-paper wristlets; six days she called "Cash!" and carried a lead pencil in her hair; six evenings she ate her lonely little meal in a "Tables for Ladies" lunchroom; and one hour later crept wearily into her small iron bed. But, ah, on the seventh!

This history has to do with the seventh.

At 4 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, Minnie took her tan suit off its wire hanger, dragged her hatbox from under the bed, and unearthed a small and scarcely worn pair of tan pumps.

While she discards the sateen shirtwaist for the tan outfit, we will discuss her.

Minnie lived in a hall bedroom, with a small iron bed, oak bureau, washstand, bowl and pitcher, a straight-back chair and two feet of floor space. She cooked her breakfast, which invariably consisted of a boiled egg and two toasted soda crackers, over the gas jet, and there were a pewter spoon and a china egg cup on the window ledge. She shared the fire escape with the occupant of the adjoining room, and on the small iron landing outside the window she kept a jar of jam and a stewpan. There were three pink-paper roses in a glass vase on Minnie's bureau and a paper-back copy of "Lady Aubrey's Secret" inserted beneath the mirror to give it the desired tilt. It was to this that Minnie returned six out of her seven evenings.

But there is a saving circumstance. On the seventh day Minnie emerged from her chrysalis and black sateen shirtwaist like a Moth Emporatus, and the six days of Biggest Store were left to the empty cocoon of the week. From 4 until 8 o'clock each Sunday, Minnie Stradolis ceased to be; simultaneously she discarded the sateen shirtwaist for the tan suit and the weary yesterdays for the glowing hour which was the beacon of all the weary ones that preceded it.

At each week end there was $1.30 in Minnie's tan purse; that meant a club steak, shoestring potatoes and a tip in a gold hotel dining room, with shaded candles and hidden music. To be sure, the $1.30 represented slightly over one-fifth of her week's earnings, seven hungry noon hours and tortuous walks from the Biggest Store to the ballroom, but those homely secrets were her own.

When she strolled into the marble lobby of the highest-storied and highest-priced hotel on Broadway, she was flushed with a beauty that is commonly born of morning sleep and massage; when she established herself, as was her wont, in a quiet corner of one of the numerous and perfumed parlors, she was a daughter of fortune, fresh from her bath of milk and rose leaves. Who could know that she was awaiting the grand climax of her week, and that when the crowds came fastest and the lights were brightest, she would venture into the gold dining room for one hour—$1.30 worth of dreamland that had cost her six days of aching feet behind the notion counter? It is true that at 10 o'clock Cinderella was once more in the small iron bed, but the beacon light of an unborn seventh day was shining truly across the week's chasm.

Today Minnie put the finishing touches to her toilet with lingering care; she drew the neat-fitting coat snug around her figure, and regarded herself over one shoulder. After the manner of women, she fluffed her hair out from beneath her hat with needless repetition, and posed at herself in the mirror, a half-smile hovering on her lips and in her eyes.

She pictured herself walking smartly through the lobby, she saw loitering heads turn as she passed, she even rehearsed the racy moment when the steel of her knife sank deep into the red of the steak, the quiet dignity of her "Keep the change" and the obsequious bows of the waiter. She hummed a bit as she folded the black sateen shirtwaist away, and shoved the empty hatbox under the bed; then she took a final survey in the mirror. The new boarder in the adjoining room lurched noisily about, and with the weariness born of experience she closed the window which opened out on the joint fire escape landing and turned the key in the bureau drawer which contained her Bible and mother-of-pearl card case; incidentally, she turned her back on Minnie.

There is a parlor in the highest-priced and highest-storied hotel on Broadway, which is done in pale gold and pink; it is like a small, rare jewel box softly tufted in satin and lighted with opal globes; through its gracefully hung doors you can see into the glistening lobby beyond, but the only sounds that penetrate are strains of far-away music and the soft swish of women's gowns.

Within this golden retreat Minnie dropped into the soft embrace of a brocade divan and gave herself up to its luxury; closing her eyes ever so slightly, she could imagine herself journeying through Lady Aubrey's gardens, in a gold and crystal sedan chair, with a graceful ennui in her pose and calla lilies in her hair. There were always calla lilies in Lady Aubrey's hair, and graceful ennui in her pose. The hush of velvet rugs and faint music lulled Minnie's dreaming senses, her tense hold on the tan purse—$1.30—relaxed and she nestled deeper in the pink brocade.

A man in a frock coat and shiny patent shoes dropped wearily on the farthest end of the divan. His hair was gray at the temples, and his eyes were surfeited with too much living; he was the typical clubman and dilettante of the seventh-day world.

Minnie regarded him with the little intake of breath which proximity to those of his sphere invariably caused her. From the supercorrect cut of coat to the shining finger nails, he bespoke Inverness coats and cabs. Minnie did not exactly know what constituted an Inverness coat, but no drawing room novel was complete without one. She could also picture this tired-eyed man in the dark mahogany quiet of his den, or strolling the white and brass deck of a yacht. Her half-closed eyes to all intent and purpose were regarding an oil painting which hung beyond his head, but none of his details was lost upon her; she knew that his cane had a gun-metal knob and that his shirt studs were gold.

She had rehearsed her hour for so long that she was not even surprised when he leaned toward her and spoke.

"That is a very warm and rich bit of work. You admire his school?" He referred to the oil painting, and his tones were deep and serious.

"It's just beautiful," replied Minnie, who had not even observed the portrait, and who was vague as to his meaning.

Her temples were throbbing violently, she felt that she was contaminating this seventh-day creature in even replying, and that he would resent her if he knew, just as she resented Mr. Snuggs in the white goods.

"I see you riding in the park quite often. Only a few mornings ago I was bold enough to canter after you, admiring your mount."

"Thank you," she replied, taking the plunge, and tilting her small head a bit. "The women in my family have always ridden well."

"If you bespeak the race, I doubt it not."

He spoke the words with a patrician grace that thrilled her; she groped for a suitable reply, but none came. There was a pause; she observed that he wore a crested ring on his right hand. She felt it incumbent upon her to justify her unattended presence, and glanced with well-restrained impatience into the lobby beyond.

He was on his feet immediately.

"You are waiting for someone. Can I be of any assistance?"

"Thank you, no. My maid will be here presently; she is unnecessarily long."

She sank back and let her eyes rest on a misty landscape framed in silver.

He followed her gaze.

"I have the twin Corot to that rare bit in my private collection. I am very fond of it."

"Oh!" she murmured. "How lovely."

"There is something compelling in the strength of that stretch of mere meadowland."

"Yes," she agreed cautiously. "I love the country."

He adjusted a pair of pince-nez and regarded her as if seeing her for the first time.

"You are an exotic, and yet you crave the natural?"

She closed her eyes, and the delicate line of her profile met the pink brocade.

"Yes," she recited. "This artificial life, the routine of ball and function, the formality of livery and society, make me long to fly back to nature."

The man moved toward her with a new interest.

"Strange," he half mused, "that when I left my club an hour ago that some call within me prompted me to tell my man, on the spur of the moment, that we are off for the West tomorrow. I, too, am weary of the honk of the automobile, the chug of a yacht, the titter of society. I want the wideness and the mountain tops."

She sighed appreciatively.

"I sometimes even long to change places with my maid."

"I cannot tell you how all this interests me." His face betrayed his eagerness. "Often have I sat behind my chauffeur and envied him. We suffer from ennui, but we do not heed the call; we crave houseboats, but cling to the yacht and ocean liner."

"True, too true!" assented Minnie.

The man regarded her intently.

"If you will pardon the personality, I cannot escape the feeling that we have met before. Could it have been on the Continent?"

"Doubtless," she replied. "One meets so many."

He glanced at his watch.

"Since your maid is delayed, may I crave the honor of dining with you?"

"Thank you, but I am dining in my own apartments. I cannot account for this delay. Annette is usually most punctual."

He did not press further, but bowed and handed her his card.

"At least these few moments have been a pleasure, dear lady."

"H. Dudley Livingston." The name meant nothing to her, but she read it with an intelligent raising of the eyebrows, and glanced again toward the lobby.

"Knowing you at least by hearsay, and since you ask it, I will dine with you, if you will return me here immediately. Annette is stupid."

He smiled with pleasure and rose.

Lillyan is trying it out without much success, for the books won't stay put.

Here you see him at 6:15 of a cold morning about to shut off the alarm and sleep for another hour.

WANTED THIS YEAR
5000 New Photoplays
If the Motion Picture Industry Is to Survive

Stars and producers are searching the country high and low for new, workable story ideas. There's a real famine in photoplays. 3000 are needed this year by producers around Los Angeles alone! Photoplay writers who have learned to write in the action language of the screen cannot turn out their plots and ideas fast enough. Men and women who know how to write photoplays the way producers want them find checks coming back as fast as their efforts are accepted. And the demand for workable motion picture ideas and plots is growing greater every week. Every idea and story is carefully read. Producers are really in earnest. They want every man and woman with imagination to work up in proper form ideas and plots that can be used. They know from actual experience that everywhere around you there is wonderful material for you to choose themes on which to base motion picture successes. But only you can supply them. They want you to work out your ideas for motion pictures. If they are workable and written in the language of the screen, they will reward you handsomely.

$250 to $2000 for motion picture plots
Understand, they do not want literary genius. They don't want flowery language.
They want ideas told in action-language. People who never wrote a single line for publication have made successful photoplay writers.
But don't attempt to send your ideas and stories to the studios until you know how they want them submitted. They can't take the time to teach you.
If you have had manuscripts rejected—be not discouraged.
If you have ideas you know are better than some you see at moving picture theaters, learn how to submit them in screen language—not in magazine and newspaper style.

The Palmer Plan brings the studio to you
The Palmer Plan teaches you how to write for motion pictures. It is not a theoretical course—but is based on actual studio experience. It was devised by Frederick Palmer—the man who has written and had produced hundreds of photoplays.
The Palmer Course takes you through and through the structure around which every moving picture is built. You start work almost immediately on your first scenario. Our experience in studio requirements quickly tells us whether you have found a workable idea. We teach you how to make it producible.
Then our Marketing Bureau will place it before the producer who wants your particular kind of story, if you want us to help you sell it.
$100 to $500 are paid by the studios for clever comedies, $250 to $2000 for five-reel dramatic scripts.
It is endorsed by leading producers, stars, directors and scenario writers. Our members find the Palmer Plan so easy, so simple and so helpful that many of them are already successful photoplay writers.

Advisory Council
The educational policy of the Palmer Photoplay Corporation is directed by the biggest figures in the industry. They include

CECIL B. DE MILLE
Director-General Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

THOMAS H. INCE
Head of Thomas H. Ince Studios.

LOIS WEBER
America's Greatest Woman Producer and Director.

ROB WAGNER
Motion Picture Writer for "Saturday Evening Post."

$3000 for his first story
One member, recently enrolled, sold his story for $3000. Mrs. Caroline Sayre, of Missouri, wrote "Live Sparks" for J. Warren Kerrigan. "His Majesty, the American" (starring Douglas Fairbanks), was written by a Palmer member. And we are developing many more successful writers who will share in the rewards the "famine in photoplays" has presented. Many of our members have accepted staff positions in studios.

Even if you have never written a photoplay or a single line for publication—if you have a spark of imagination—send for this beautiful FREE book—now. SPECIAL Contributors
The Palmer Plan includes a series of special lectures by recognized authorities in their particular fields: Frank Lloyd and Clarence Badger, Goldwyn Directors; Jeanie McPherson, noted Lasky scenario writer; George Beban, Producer and Star; Al. La Creole Liquid Shampoo La Creole Hair Tonic

Right Care Means Plenty of Good Looking Hair

Men and Women Both Should Have It —But Many Do Not

It is really surprising that men and women so commonly permit their hair to lose its good looks and actually to fall out in unsightly quantities.

Men's hair becomes disagreeably oily and stringy and gets thinner and thinner. Women suffer with falling hair and dandruff. Their hair loses it life, beauty and luxuriance.

All this can be easily prevented. Plain neglect is the cause. No more care than is given the teeth will assure abundant, vigorous, beautiful hair if the care is wisely directed.

Simple Directions

Regularly, two or three times a week, apply La Creole Hair Tonic, using the balls of the fingers to rub it into the scalp with a rotary motion. La Creole Hair Tonic stimulates the scalp circulation, supplies the hair roots with needed nourishment, and loosens the clogged dust and dandruff which brushing will remove. Do not use an inferior tonic. It is a dangerous mistake to do so.

Mademoiselle La Creole

The wonderful hair of the Creoles is a mark of their pure French-Spanish blood as well as of the care they give it. La Creole toilet requisites, are favorite for the purpose.

At regular intervals, every ten days or two weeks, the hair should be washed thoroughly with La Creole Liquid Shampoo. If an excessively oily condition exists shampoo more frequently. La Creole will keep the glands and pores open and healthy and preserves the fine hair oils which make the hair soft, lustrous and fluffy. Inferior shampoos and soaps must be avoided because they leave the hair dry, brittle and lifeless. Never fail after shampooing to apply La Creole Hair Tonic.

If these rules are faithfully followed any one can have the charm which beautiful hair adds to the personality. Begin the use of La Creole Hair Tonic and La Creole Liquid Shampoo at once and notice the new beauty and vigorous health of your hair.

La Creole Hair Dressing is a treatment for the gradual restoration of the natural dark color to hair that has grown gray, gray streaked, or faded.

"THAT WELL-DRESSED LOOK"

THE LORELLE

For the woman of long, slim lines, this is a coat with real temperament! Flat in front and back, full over the hips, it is youthful with a great deal of chic. It comes in broad, bright red open plaids with just a body lining, or in plain rich Peachbloom with full lining. The small opening above the cuff is a smart touch.

THE MURROCK

Inspired by Premet, there's a droopy effect to the shoulders of this little coat that is style personified. The Collar rolls high, or fastens to expose the throat. The yoke and the deep cuff at the bottom are as smart as the unusual sleeves. It comes in tweed with a harness stitch trim in back, and also in Peachbloom without the stitching, but with a touch of self-color embroidery, rather a cross-foot design, near the collar facing and on the cuffs. Full lined.

THE SURREY

One simply can't be without a sports coat of this type, and it would be hard to find one so interesting as this particular model! In plaids or plain fabric it comes, some are even in black velvet. Stitching to simulate braid trims some, real braid trims others or you may have it untrimmed. The tuxedo collar, deep pockets and general jauntiness are just what a sports coat needs to be smart.

THE SHOREHAM

It's just dressy enough to be worn in town over a silk frock, but simple enough for motor and country wear as well. Bernard inspired it, and its semi-directoire effect with the collar standing high in back lends an air of tall slimness to the wearer. It is full lined.

Wooltex Tailor-mades

Remember, no matter how much it "looks like" a Wooltex Tailor-made, it just can't be without that Wooltex signature shown above.

Wooltex Tailor-mades are priced at $45, $55, $65, $75, up to $125.

"THAT well-dressed look". An intangible thing, is it not? And yet, one feminine glance, sweeping from chapeau crown to Oxford tips, is all that is needed to decide whether one has it or hasn't it!

A collar that gapes, a shoulder line that extends a bit too far, a hem or seams that pucker—one of these and you forfeit the well-dressed look!

It isn't a coincidence that the collar of a Wooltex Tailor-made lies flat against your neck, that the shoulders are snug and smooth, that the sleeves never lose their shape—good tailoring, like genius, is the capacity for taking pains!

Your assurance that your coat or suit will be smart and well fitting even after months of wear, lies in that bit of white satin which is fastened in the collar of every genuine Wooltex Tailor-made.

It's the Wooltex signature, and you may rest assured that the Wooltex Tailors have spent too many years in the building of an impeccable reputation ever to sign a tailor-made that is not a thoroughbred.

When you're looking for your Wooltex Tailor-made, ask the salesperson for "The Tailored Woman". It's a little magazine of fashions that are and are-to-be. If you'd rather have us send it to you, write us, and we will mail it to you.

In New York Wooltex Tailor-mades are shown by "The Tailored Woman", the exclusive shop on Fifth Avenue at Fiftieth Street. For the name of the shop nearest your home, write us.

At Every Move of Your Hand- Your Nails are Conspicuous

YOU jot down a memorandum —instantly eyes are attracted to your hands. Instantly a judgment of you is formed, based upon the appearance of your nails.

Eyes follow a moving object automatically, follow it as inevitably as they blink when something sudden flies towards them. Nature makes eyes that way.

You will be amazed to find how many times in one day people glance at your nails.

At each glance a judgment is made

Consciously or unconsciously people judge you by the appearance of your hands. Indeed, some people base their estimate of a new acquaintance largely upon this one detail.

People no longer excuse unsightly hands. It requires only a few minutes of the right kind of care once or twice a week to keep your nails in perfect condition. But be sure it is the right kind of care.

The safe method of caring for the cuticle is softening it and wiping it away. This is easily done by the use of Cutex, the pure liquid cuticle remover.

The Cutex method takes less time than the old painful cuticle cutting, and is absolutely harmless. Cutex Nail White and Nail Polish complete a perfect manicure. You will be astonished at the wonderful results you can obtain from one Cutex manicure. Repeated once or twice a week, it will keep your nails in perfect condition.

Push back the cuticle with an orange stick wrapped with cotton and dipped in Cutex. Wipe off the dead, surplus skin and wash the hands. Cutex Nail White and Nail Polish complete a perfect manicure.

Cutex can be obtained at every drug store or department store in 35c and 65c bottles. Cutex Nail White, Nail Polish and Cold Cream are each 35c.

Four famous treatments for improving your skin

DO YOU ever feel dissatisfied with your appearance—wish this or that were different, and long to change it?

One thing you can change—and that is your skin.

Any girl can improve her appearance by improving her complexion. With the right care you can make your skin so lovely in its softness, its smooth, fine texture and brilliant color, that it will outweigh almost any other advantage you could possess.

Remember that your skin changes in spite of you. Each day old skin dies and new skin takes its place. No matter what defects your complexion has suffered from in the past—by regular treatment you can give this new skin the loveliness and charm it should have.

Read the four treatments given on this page. Each one of them tells you some special way of improving your complexion. If your skin is too oily—you can make it smoother and drier by using the famous Woodbury treatment given here. If you are troubled with blemishes—with conspicuous nose pores—use the special treatment indicated for your condition, and see how quickly your skin gains the clearness it has lacked. Is your complexion pale and sallow? By the new steam treatment you can make it glow with radiant color.

Don't neglect your skin—begin today to make it as smooth, clear, and flawless as it should be. In the famous booklet wrapped around each cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap, you will find not only the four treatments given here—but additional treatments for all the commoner skin troubles. Find the treatment your individual type of skin demands, and begin using it tonight.

The very first treatment with Woodbury's will leave your skin with a slightly drawn, tight feeling. This only means that your skin is responding to a more thorough and stimulating kind of cleansing than it has been accustomed to. After a few treatments this drawn sensation will disappear, and your skin will emerge with such a soft, clean, healthful feeling, that you will never again want to use any other method of cleansing your face.

Woodbury's Facial Soap is on sale at all drug stores and toilet goods counters in the United States and Canada. The famous booklet of treatments is wrapped around each cake. Get a cake today and begin your treatment tonight. A 25 cent cake lasts for a month or six weeks of any treatment or for general cleansing use.

SKIN BLEMISHES—

How to get rid of them

Just before retiring, wash in your usual way with warm water and Woodbury's Facial Soap and then dry your face. Now dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy, cream-like lather. Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this soap cream and leave it on for ten minutes. Then rinse very carefully, first with clear, hot water, then with cold.

The regular use of Woodbury's in cleansing your skin will discourage the tendency for new blemishes to form.

Sample cake of soap, booklet of famous treatments, and samples of Woodbury's Facial Powder, Facial Cream and Cold Cream sent to you for 15 cents.

For 6 cents we will send you a trial size cake (enough for a week or ten days of any Woodbury treatment) together with the booklet of treatments, "A Skin You Love to Touch." Or for 15 cents we will send you the treatment booklet and samples of Woodbury's Facial Soap, Facial Powder, Facial Cream and Cold Cream. Address The Andrew Jergens Co., 32 Spring Grove Avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio.

If you live in Canada, address The Andrew Jergens Co., Limited, 32 Sherbrooke St., Perth, Ontario.

OILY SKINS—

How to correct them

First cleanse your skin thoroughly by washing it in your usual way with Woodbury's Facial Soap and warm water. Wipe off the surplus moisture, but leave the skin slightly damp. Now with warm water work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your hands. Apply it to your face and rub it into the pores thoroughly—always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with warm water, then with cold—the colder the better. If possible, rub your face for a few minutes with a piece of ice.

This treatment will make your skin fresher and clearer the first time you use it. Make it a nightly habit, and before long you will see a marked improvement—a promise of that lovelier complexion which the steady use of Woodbury's always brings.

CONSPICUOUS NOSE PORES—

How to reduce them

Dip a cloth in very hot water; lather it with Woodbury's Facial Soap, then hold it to your face. When the heat has expanded the pores, rub in very gently a fresh lather of Woodbury's. Repeat this hot water and lather application several times, stopping at once if your nose feels sensitive. Finish by rubbing the nose for thirty seconds with a lump of ice.

Do not expect to change in a week a condition resulting from long neglect. But use this treatment persistently, and it will gradually reduce the enlarged pores until they are inconspicuous.

The booklet containing the famous Woodbury treatments for all the commoner skin troubles, is wrapped around each cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap. Find the treatment for your skin—begin using it tonight.

PALE, SALLOW SKINS—

The new steam treatment for them

One or two nights a week, fill your wash bowl full of hot water—almost boiling hot. Bend over the top of the bowl and cover your head and the basin with a heavy bath towel, so that no steam can escape. Steam your face for thirty seconds.

Now lather a hot cloth with Woodbury's Facial Soap. With this, wash your face thoroughly, rubbing the lather well into the skin with an upward and outward motion. Then rinse the skin well, first with warm water, then with cold, and finish by rubbing it for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

The other nights of the week, wash your face thoroughly in the Woodbury way, with Woodbury's Facial Soap and warm water, finishing with a dash of cold water.

The very first time you use this treatment your skin will gain in loveliness and color.
